The proposition to tax drummers and peddlers $500 may be a little like the Silver Bill-it may hurt a few (very few) persons, but it will benefit ninety-nine in hundred of the citizens of this State. No doubt of that. Our home merchants are now heavily taxed—that should be reduced rather that increased, and a great deal more tax placed on all drummers and peddlers, whether resident or non-resi

We think there is some doubt as to the wisdom of the proposed tax of $500 on commercial travellers. If as a class they conferred no benefits it would be different But only a hasty glance at the other side of the question will show that the proposition is of doubtful propriety.

What is the business of Commercia travellers? The Hillsboro' Recorder defines it well enough, so we will consider it as that paper presents it. Let th reader review what it says about it. It is proposed to put on this class of business men an additional tax of $150. They already pay $50. And why? On the ground that fithe Legislature must raise more revenue without increasing the taxes on the working men of the State and land owners." We suggest that that is not sufficient reason why commercial travel lers should be single out and taxed beyond due proportion with other subjects ture that brought an unmittigated curse upon the people it might justly be thus singled out, But this is not the case The Commercial traveller, so far from being a curse to the people is a great conwenience to a large part of every community he enters. He is not an evil to any part of the people but a blessing to York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati, St. Louis, New Orleans, Charleston, Wilmington, all the large cities to the yery doors of the people and He saves merchants the trouble, the time, dangers and expense of a trip to these fore. commercial centers. In conclusion, neither country merchants nor the people generally, are under obligation to trade with commercial travellers. It is purely a matter of choice. Every other arenge is wide open to them. They may trade with home merchants, with distant merchants by samples through the mails, or in other way. It is their right to do so, and any restriction on any one of the ways open to them is simply an infringement of right. Instead of restrictions let us have easier and cheaper moles of trade and intercourse.
