The audience during the performance of Rip Van Winkle by Thorne's comedy company in Monroe, last Thursday night had a very exhilarating experience, interest being lent to the proceedings by the enactment of several scenes not on the bills. The Express tells very graphi cally that one J. J. Phillips, of Lancaster at county, S. C., got in the show without paying. The door keeper went to him for the money and he declined to settle. The door-keeper put him out after he had refused to go, but as he went out of the door, he drew a revolver and fired on a young man by the name, of Odell, from Concord, whom he supposed to be the door-keeper. Fortunately, the ball struck the door and glanced off, doing no harm. However, just as the pistol fired, a miserably intoxicated person, perched high on one of the seats within, lost his balance and fell heavily to the floor. Of course the pistol report and almost simultaneous fall of the drunkard, impressed every mind with idea that some one had been shot, and for awhile they had old Cain around there. Finally order was restored and the play proceeded, but not until both the male and female stars of the company had repeatedly implored the crowd to maintain silence.-Char. Ob.
