

A Family Diary.

The following pleasant suggestion was made some time ago by Scribner: "In a certain farm-house twenty years ago a great blank-book was kept and labeled Home Journal. Every night some one made an entry in it. Father sat down the sale of the calves, or mother the cut of baby's eye tooth; or perhaps Jenny wrote a full account of the sleighing party last night; or Bob the proceedings of the Phi Beta club; or Tomi scrawled "Tried my new gun. Bully. Shot into the fence and hit Johnson's old cat."

On toward the middle of the book there was an entry of Jenny's marriage, and one of the younger girls had added a description of the bridesmaids' dresses, and long afterward there was written, "this day father died," in Bob's trembling hand. There was a blank of many months after that.

But nothing could have served better to bind that family of head-strong boys and girls together than the keeping of this book. They come back to the old homestead now, men and women with grizzled hair, to see their mother who is still living and turn over its pages reverently with many a hearty laugh or the tears coming into their eyes. It is their childhood come back again in visible shape."

Salt on Wheat.

Last spring Mr. Joshua Knight, of Ogle county, Ill., sowed thirteen barrels of salt on two acres seed to wheat, and left a strip in the middle of the piece without salt. The ground on which was sowed the salt produced over eighteen bushels of good spring wheat per acre, while that on which there was no salt was hardly worth cutting—the wheat being badly shrunken, injured by the rust, chinch bugs, etc. I consider this a fair test, and it has never before been published, though I deemed it of sufficient importance to report it to the Department of Agriculture. A similar experiment was tried in Iowa last spring, and the result was published in the Iowa City Republican as follows:

"H. G. Coe, of Cedar county, tried the experiment of spreading three bushels of salt broadcast over two acres of wheat field. The yield was forty bushels per acre, while the rest of the field gave only nine and a half bushels per acre. The straw was bright, not being injured as the wheat alongside of it was, and it stood six inches higher."

The following from the Montreal Gazette is apropos, as it gives the results of valuable scientific experiments on the effect of salt on wheat:

"In an interesting series of experiments recently made on the farm of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, the manure value of salt was unmistakably indicated. An acre of wheat dressed with 300 pounds of salt yielded thirty-nine bushels of grain, with a proportionate amount of straw; while an adjoining acre, left undressed, produced only twenty-nine bushels per acre, with straw imperfectly developed. The entire cost of the crop is not stated, but this experiment shows that the additional ten bushels resulting from the salt were produced at a cost of thirty cents each. In another case a piece of ground intended for wheat was ploughed the preceding fall, and again in May, when it was sowed with salt, and afterward ploughed before seeding. On the 1st and 2nd of September wheat was sown at the rate of two bushels to the acre. The crop when harvested yielded, according to the estimates of the owner, Mr. John Park, not less than forty bushels to the acre, with a luxuriant growth of straw. From these and many similar cases the inference seems to be that salt is a specific for the wheat crop, imparting solidity to the grain and firmness to the straw. But it must not be concluded that the equally good results will always follow the application of salt."—Rural New Yorker.

Charcoal as a Basis for Manure.

The absorptive power of charcoal is well known in the arts. Its capacity in this direction is most remarkable. Accurate experiment has proved that in twenty-four hours it would absorb ninety times its own volume of muriatic acid gas. It is this remarkable quality that makes it so valuable in destroying odor, color and taste in many substances, and preserving meats, vegetables and fruits from rapid decay. Its use as a filter in cisterns is well known, and its value here depends upon the same quality. separates and appropriates to itself the decaying matter and other impurities in water, rendering it pure and sweet. If placed on the surface of the soil it will gather from the air moisture and gases and impart them to the growing plants. On the same principle its value in the barnyard, stables and hog pens, as an absorbent agent, is incalculable. Where used for this purpose, to form the basis of manure, it should be in a powdered state. In regard to this use of charcoal a writer in Bell's Weekly Messenger (London, Eng.), gives his experience and views as follows:

"I am fully satisfied that as a basis for manure charcoal will be greatly appreciated when it is more generally known. I am a great believer in charcoal myself, having taken a hint when quite a lad working upon my father's farm at 'stifle burning.' I noticed how much better the ashes were when burnt black, or only charred, than those that were over-burnt or burnt red. Those black ashes saturated with the runnings of a dung heap or stables used to be a very favorite garden manure, the results being so much better when the 'burn-bake,' as we used to call it, was used than when the liquid alone was used. This gave me a great idea of black 'burn-bake,' which I considered a species of charcoal, and for eighteen years I made artificial manures for my own use, and the last five years for sale to customers. I have used charcoal with the very best results from mixing charcoal with artificial manures, and you will find you have much to learn yet of the good effects of charcoal. I am trying experiments every season on my farm, which is three hundred acres, so that I have an opportunity of judging of its effects upon the different crops, and I carefully note its effect upon my customers' crops. Most of them tell me that they never saw such results from any manure, and that they could not believe that any manure whatever could make such a difference. I attribute my success entirely to a suitable admixture of charcoal. It is a great cleanser and storer of ammonia, and there is more in it than any of us know of yet. Many objectionable plants will be found to disappear entirely by a few applications. It will quickly remove moss and things of that kind, and, from appearance, I believe it to be proof against smut and blight in corn crops. I do not sow or prepare seed corn in any way, but sow it simply as it is, and I do not see any smut or blight of any kind. The manure seems to have a great cleansing and invigorating effect."—Michigan Farmer.

Gov. Seymour on Politicians.

"I never loved the exercise of power, never cared particularly for public places, but I always loved politics, and what is more, I like politicians. They are a much abused class. It is the fashion to sneer at them, but I think, as a rule, they are better men than merchants, bankers, and other representatives of what is called respectability. They make more sacrifices and do more unselfish work for others than business men ever think of doing. They cultivate a certain chivalric sense of honor. Even some who are naturally corrupt will refuse the most tempting bribes when the integrity of their party is involved. I have seen enough of political life to satisfy me that its influence is elevating and not degrading. I would much rather be tried by a jury of my political opponents, who were acknowledged politicians, than by a jury of respectable business men who said that they took no particular interest in politics, but usually voted the Republican ticket. From them I should expect gross injustice and prejudice ten times as intense as my avowed political opponents would display. The man who serves a cause, if it is not a positively bad cause, is enabled by the service. He learns to look at men as well as doctrines, from a higher standpoint than mere personal selfishness. Hence I repeat that I do like politicians as well as politics, but I do not like office."

The length of a lady's train should never be under a foot.

"Twenty years ago," said a colored philosopher "niggers was wuf a thousand dollars apiece. Now dey would be dead at two dollars a dozen. It's 'stifishing' how de race am runnin' down."

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hicough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist, DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequalled.

Beware of Imitations.

The genuine are never sugar coated. Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

LIVER. This important organ weighs but about three pounds, and all the blood in a living person (about three gallons) passes through it at least once every half hour, to have the bile and other impurities strained or filtered from it. Bile is the natural purgative of the bowels, and if the liver becomes torpid it is not separated from the blood, but carried through the veins to all parts of the system, and in trying to escape through the pores of the skin, will assume a yellow or dirty brown color.
