

Growing Roots Quickly.

The common garden radish furnishes an excellent example of the advantages of raising an esculent root as quickly as possible. If the seed is sown on poor soil early in the spring the growth of the plants will be very slow and as a consequence the roots will be tough, stringy and rank flavor. If, on the contrary, a rich, warm soil is prepared for them, the seed soon after the cold spring rains are over and young plants cultivated as soon as they are of sufficient size the roots will be juicy, crisp and of a mild and agreeable flavor. Unless radishes have attained a sufficient size, for the table within five weeks from the time the seed is sown they will scarcely be fit for eating. In France and Holland where great attention is devoted to raising radishes, special pains are given to maturing them as quickly as possible. Sand, pulverized earth and fine well rotted manure are mixed together to form a soil, while the best temperature for hastening growth is obtained by the employment of glass in a hot bed. As the radish is almost the only esculent root that is eaten raw, there are special reasons for raising it in such a manner as to insure its being juicy and tender. But roots that require to be cooked before they are eaten, as turnips, beets, parsnips and carrots, are superior almost in proportion to the shortness of time in which they are raised. If turnips and beets keep up a slow growth during several months they will be tough and stringy, and the former will have a rank taste. If a growth occurs during their period of growth, these roots will be composed in part of fibre so hard that it will not be rendered sufficiently soft to be digested even if boiled for several hours. Long cooking tends to destroy the flavor and nutrient qualities of all vegetables. The quicker any vegetable can be cooked by boiling, the better and more nutritious it will be. Vegetables that have been grown quickly may be quickly cooked, and will accordingly be of fine flavor and of great value for human or animal food. What is true of edible roots is also true of those kinds of vegetables whose edible portions consist of stalks, leaves, head, bud and seeds. The quicker asparagus, lettuce, cabbage, string beans, shell beans and peas are grown the more excellent they will be. Cabbage which is quickly grown is crisp and of agreeable flavor, and is delicious when eaten raw in the form of cold slaw. If it is slowly grown, however, it will be tough, of somewhat rank flavor, and a considerable amount of cooking will be required to render it digestible. The excellence of green peas and beans largely depends on the shortness of time in which they are grown. The sweet corn grown and canned in a high northern latitude is preferred to that produced farther south, probably for the reason that it is matured more quickly. If green corn, peas and beans are quickly produced they may be readily cooked by steaming, which is better than boiling as a means of preparing them for the table, as it extracts none of the soluble matter they contain.

A Celebrated Runner.
The pedestrian feats of the present day, the Boston Journal says, cast into the shade by the recorded exploits of Ernest Mennen, a Norwegian sailor in the English navy, early in the present century. Mennen first attracted attention by running from London to Portsmouth in nine hours, and soon after he ran from London to Liverpool in thirty-two hours. Having distinguished himself at the battle of Navarino, in 1827, he left the navy and became a professional runner. After winning a number of matches he undertook the feat of running from Paris to Moscow. Starting from the place Vendôme at four o'clock in the afternoon of June 11, 1831, he entered the Kremlin at ten o'clock, a. m., on June 25, having accomplished the distance of 1,760 miles in thirteen days and eighteen hours. The employment of Mennen as a courier-extraordinary soon became a popular amusement in European courts. He ran from country to country, bearing messages of congratulation, condolence, despatches, and always beat mounted couriers when matched against them. He never walked but invariably ran, his only refreshment being one biscuit and an ounce of raspberry syrup per day, and two shot rests of ten or fifteen minutes each in twenty-four hours. These rests he took standing; and, leaning against a tree or other support. At such times he covered his face with a handkerchief and slept. After the nap he pursued his way as much refreshed as though he had slept for hours. In 1836, while in the employ of the East India Company, Mennen was charged with the conveying of despatches from Calcutta to Constantinople through Central Asia. The distance is 5,615 miles, which the messenger accomplished in fifty-nine days, or in one-third of the time made by the swiftest caravan. At last he was employed to discover the source of the Nile. Setting out from Silesia on May 11, 1843, he ran to Jerusalem, and thence to Cairo, and up the western bank of the river into Upper Egypt. Here, just outside of Syang, he was seen to stop and rest, leaning against a palm tree, his face covered with a handkerchief. He rested so long that some persons tried to wake him; but they tried in vain, for he was dead. He was buried at the foot of the tree, and it was years before his friends in Europe knew what fate had befallen him.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE SOUTHERN EXPRESS COMPANY AND THE FEVER.—The president of the Southern Express Company has written a letter to agents referring to the fatal experience of last year, when the lives of twenty-eight heroic employees were lost in efforts to maintain the express service intact during the prevalence of yellow fever, and informing them that the office in Memphis has been closed until the quarantine restrictions are removed. The letter adds: "Matter for Memphis, or other places where express offices may be closed, will be taken to the nearest quarantine station, and there held subject to the order of consignees, until means can be provided for its delivery without violating the sanitary regulations adopted by State or municipal authorities. "Matter destined to points on the Mississippi river, south of Memphis, should be sent via Vicksburg or New Orleans, as circumstances may require. "It is to be hoped the fever will not spread, but should it do so, and become epidemic, this company, for the safety of its employees, and the protection of the public health, (by lessening the danger of contagion incident to intercourse with the infected localities) will not undertake to operate its lines beyond the limits prescribed by quarantine regulations."

Racing With Fire.
Last week Mr. and Mrs. Robert Uffner and daughter drove from Frackville to Shenandoah, Schnylkill county, and met with a terrible adventure. They had driven along for some distance when they discovered that the woods were on fire on both sides of the road. After driving through the fire several hundred yards the smoke became so dense that the travelers were nearly suffocated, and they had to lie down in the wagon bed to prevent being smothered. The horses were urged forward and the race continued over the rough mountain road for a considerable distance, with the flames roaring on both sides and myriads of sparks falling in and about the wagon. Mrs. Uffner's dress caught on fire, and her husband dropped the reins to assist her in extinguishing it, when she fainted in his arms. While he was endeavoring to bring his wife back to consciousness the horses were tearing along at a break-neck speed, and the wagon swerved, jolted, and swung around in anything but a comfortable manner. Mrs. Uffner became conscious in a few seconds, however, and just then her husband saw a cloud of dense black smoke enveloping the road, and knew that they had reached the outskirts of the fire and were safe. The travelers were all slightly burned, but fortunately escaped without receiving serious injuries. The heat was so great that the paint on the wagon was entirely burned off, and the horses badly burned. On the same day the omnibus that carries passengers from Frackville to Shenandoah ran the gauntlet, and the driver was severely scorched.—Lancaster (Pa.) New Era.

HEAT AND SUNSTROKES IN ST. LOUIS.—St. Louis, August 4.—The weather is getting exceedingly warm again, and several mild cases of sunstroke occurred yesterday and to-day. The mercury reached 97 yesterday, and at 2 o'clock to-day ranged from 94 to 98 on the principal business streets.

A SHERIFF BUCKED, GAGED AND ROBBED.—Sheriff Thomas F. Worley of Jones county, was attacked on the road leading from Trenton to Jacksonville near John W. Eubank's plantation about daylight one morning last week by three disguised white men and robbed of $650. He was badly bruised, bucked, gagged and tied to a tree, in which condition he was found by Jim Gooding, colored, at about 5 1/2 o'clock, A. M. The men who committed this daring robbery, were blacked up to convey the impression that they were negroes.—Newbern Democrat.

YELLOW FEVER—BLACK VOMIT.
It is too soon to forget the ravages of this terrible disease, which will no doubt return in a more malignant and virulent form in the fall months of 1878. MERRELL'S HEPATINE, a remedy discovered in Southern Alabama and used with such wonderful results in South America where the most aggravated cases of fever are found, causes from one to two ounces of bile to be "cleared" or "scrubbed" from the blood each time it passes through the liver, as long as an excess of bile exists. It is considered a tonic on the liver and stomach; the HEPATINE not only prevents to a certainty any kind of Fever and Black Vomits, but also cures Headaches, Constipation of the bowels, Dyspepsia and all Malarial diseases.

No one need fear Yellow Fever who will expect the Malarial Poison and excess of bile from the blood by using MERRELL'S HEPATINE, which is sold by all Druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 bottles, or will be sent by express by the Proprietors.

Remarkable Cure of Scrofula, &c.
CASE OF COL. J. C. BRANSON.
KINGSTON, GA., September 15, 1871.

GENTS:—For sixteen years I have been a great sufferer from Scrofula in its most distressing forms. I have been confined to my room and bed for fifteen years with scrofulous abscesses. The most approved remedies for such cases had been used, and the most eminent physicians consulted without any decided benefit. Thus prostrated, distressed, despairing, I was advised by Dr. Ayer, of Lowell, Mass., to try Stillingia. Language is as insufficient to describe the relief I obtained from the use of Dr. Pemberton's Compound Extract of Stillingia, and was so well satisfied with its effects that I had continued its use until the present day.

My daughter was confined to her bed about six weeks before she sat up or even stirred over without help. She now sits up all day, and is the most of her time—has walked across the room. Her general health is now good, and I believe, as her limbs gain strength, will walk well. I attribute her recovery, with the blessing of God, to the use of your valuable medicine.

With gratitude, I am, yours truly,
W. B. BLAXTON.

The Mexican Mustang Liniment is a matchless remedy for all external ailments of man and beast. To stock owners and farmers it is invaluable.

A single bottle often saves a human life or restores the usefulness of an excellent horse, ox, cow, or sheep.

It cures foot-rot, hoof-ail, hollow horn, grub, screw-worm, shoulder-rot, mange, the bites and stings of poisonous reptiles and insects, and every such drawback to stock breeding and husbandry.

It cures every external trouble of horses, such as lameness, scratches, swains, sprains, founder, wind gall, ring-bone, &c., &c.

The Mexican Mustang Liniment is the quickest cure in the world for accidents occurring in the family, in the absence of a physician, such as burns, scalds, sprains, cuts, &c., and for rheumatism, and stiffness consequent on exposure. Particularly valuable to Miners.

It is the cheapest remedy in the world, for it penetrates the muscle to the bone, and a single application is generally sufficient to cure.
