

LOCAL

NEW TERMS. From and after the 1st day of January, 1880, the subscription price of the Watchman will be as follows: One year, paid in advance, $1.50...

Mr. Frank Brown is in Wilmington with a lot of fine stock. Our young people enjoyed sleighing all day Tuesday—the first day's "merry jingling" of the winter.

KILN DRIED LUMBER.—Persons desiring to obtain good lumber ready dried on delivery, are advised to apply at this office. Large orders preferred.

Mr. Dr. Reeves has gone to Statesville and takes charge of the St. Charles Hotel. Mrs. Reeves has had some successful experience in hotel keeping and will doubtless improve the St. Charles.

The graded school in this place now numbers about 175 pupils, and is steadily increasing. The School Commissioners are making preliminary arrangements for erecting a suitable building to accommodate it.

The boys have had a lively time this week throwing snow balls and skating and sliding on the frozen creek. It is surprising how much less they suffer in those employments than in bringing wood to the stove.

COTTON PLANTS.—A gentleman in the vicinity employing cotton seed in a compost heap, has brought us a number of cotton plants with two leaves, plucked from the heap. The weather has been warm enough to start germs of all kinds.

Snow.—Monday morning dawned in a snow storm, which lasted, with slight intermissions, all day. It set in with renewed energy Monday night and completed the first snow of the season (for us) at 4 inches in depth, with a crust strong enough to bear a man's weight without breaking.

MATRIMONIAL.—Miss Neppie E. Bailey, daughter of Wm. H. Bailey Esq. and Capt. G. Floyd Johnston, of Mobile, was married at St. Peter's Episcopal church, Charlotte, Wednesday evening. On the same evening, at the residence of the bride's father, James H. Ross, cashier of the Trader's National Bank, and Miss Lelia Clarendon, daughter of Mr. W. J. Yates.

A DISCRIMINATING THIEF.—The Cabinet Shop and Furniture Room of the Messrs. Julian & Fraley, were entered Saturday night and nearly all the work tools of Mr. Fraley carried off. The thief entered at the door of the Furniture Room, but so far as yet ascertained took nothing from it. He passed through a partition door into the work room and to the extreme corner of that apartment where Mr. Fraley's tools were stored in a chest. It is believed he made a light on reaching this point, for Mr. F. thinks he could not otherwise have selected his best tools. However he made a good selection from the chest and carried them off, disturbing nothing else in the shop.

List of unclaimed Letters remaining in the Post Office at Salisbury, N. C., Feb. 2nd 1880: Miss Alice Brown, Dred Baums, Miss L. M. Cobble, Miss Cora Critter, Miss Julie V. Correll, Miss Emily Carson, Mrs. Mary J. Caudle, Lawson Cely, Mr. G. W. Caudy, Mr. G. H. Coon, Mr. Henry Corner, Mr. Mitchell Foster, Miss Hettie Hanes, David Linebarger, Mr. Adam Moony, Miss Lula Murphy, D. A. Miller, John Newland, Henry Powless, John F. Reid, A. G. Smith, Adolphus Sims, Miss Susan Witch, Miss Elizer Wallies col.

Cluster Meeting. The Rowan and Davie Cluster will meet at Unity church, Monday, February 16th, at 11 o'clock, a. m., and be opened by a sermon by Rev. A. L. Crawford, on "Sabbath Observance."

Old Boundary of Rowan. Mr. Editor: Your contributor, "J. R." whose articles on the early history of Rowan County are so interesting and show such careful research, speaks somewhat conjecturally, and without claiming exactness, as to the "point" of beginning and the precise location of the original eastern boundary of Rowan. His conjecture that it started "somewhere near" the southeastern corner of Randolph and thence ran north along the present eastern lines of Randolph, Guilford and Rockingham, is not very far out of the way.

Editor Watchman. While rummaging about in an old dilapidated building in this town a few days since, I inadvertently laid my hand upon a half bound volume which showed unmistakable signs of old age. I hastily, from impulse, opened the book and immediately discovered that it was a history of our present town, written many years ago. Of course, I chuckled to think that I had so fortunately become the possessor of such a valuable book, and perused its contents with unadulterated satisfaction. From this book I am enabled to give you any information in relation to the early history of our town.

Editor Watchman. While rummaging about in an old dilapidated building in this town a few days since, I inadvertently laid my hand upon a half bound volume which showed unmistakable signs of old age. I hastily, from impulse, opened the book and immediately discovered that it was a history of our present town, written many years ago. Of course, I chuckled to think that I had so fortunately become the possessor of such a valuable book, and perused its contents with unadulterated satisfaction.

Editor Watchman. While rummaging about in an old dilapidated building in this town a few days since, I inadvertently laid my hand upon a half bound volume which showed unmistakable signs of old age. I hastily, from impulse, opened the book and immediately discovered that it was a history of our present town, written many years ago. Of course, I chuckled to think that I had so fortunately become the possessor of such a valuable book, and perused its contents with unadulterated satisfaction.

Editor Watchman. While rummaging about in an old dilapidated building in this town a few days since, I inadvertently laid my hand upon a half bound volume which showed unmistakable signs of old age. I hastily, from impulse, opened the book and immediately discovered that it was a history of our present town, written many years ago. Of course, I chuckled to think that I had so fortunately become the possessor of such a valuable book, and perused its contents with unadulterated satisfaction.

ROWAN COUNTY.

As stated on a former page, it is not certainly known where the first office was held. But from the Records in the office of the Superior Court Clerk in Salisbury, it appears probable that it was held in June, 1753, only a few months after the county was established. The names of the justices who presided at the courts the first year, were Walter Carruth, Thomas Lovelady, James Carter, James Brandon, Alexander Carter, Squire Boone, Thomas Cook, Thomas Potts, George Smith, Andrew Allison, John Hanby, Alexander Osborne, James Tate, and John Broad. We know, or have some reasons for conjecturing, the neighborhoods from which several of these magistrates came. Walter Carruth owned lands, and probably resided, on the east side of Codd's Creek, adjoining the McKnight's in the Prospect neighborhood. James Carter owned the lands in the southeast quarter of Salisbury, on both sides of Water street, and on towards Crane creek, now called Town creek, and probably lived in the present corporate limits of Salisbury.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

COURT HOUSE.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

At the June term of 1753, the Court proceeded to select a place for the erection of a court-house, pillory, stocks and goal. The section of the Court is substantially as follows: "The Court House, goal and stocks shall be located where the public square of Rowan County, both before and after the war of the Revolution. He deserved well of his country, and his name is embalmed in the hearts of a large circle of honored descendants, and his memory is perpetuated in the name of Dunn's Mountain, in sight of the Public Square at Salisbury, at the foot of which his remains lie interred. This name will often recur in the course of these sketches.

Dr. Tyre York for Secretary of State.

EDITOR WATCHMAN.—During the Session of the Legislature last winter the office of Secretary of State became vacant by the death of Maj. Englehart, and the friends of Dr. Tyre York, the able and efficient member of the House from Wilkes, prepared a petition to the Governor for his appointment to the unexpired term of this important office. This petition was signed by almost every member of the House and the great body of the Senate, besides many of the most influential gentlemen of the State. Yet the Governor appointed another to the place. The Representatives of the people in both branches of the General Assembly since the war need not be informed who Dr. York is. That he has been one of the most zealous, efficient and untiring friends of the State, on all occasions being opposed to any man in his section of the State for any place he asks at the hands of the people, and would in my opinion, add great strength to our State ticket if nominated for Secretary of State. His record as a public man, will show him to have been the unflinching friend of the overburdened tax payers of the State, on all occasions being opposed to any man in his section of the State for any place he asks at the hands of the people, and would in my opinion, add great strength to our State ticket if nominated for Secretary of State.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

A Chatham Wedding on the Road. A marriage recently took place in one of the public roads of this county under the following circumstances. It seems that the parents of an expectant bride objected to her marrying the man of her choice, and remembering the old saying, "Out of sight out of mind," they thought the lovers would forget each other if separated. So the stern parents of the young lady sent her in exile to the residence of a relative living in the adjoining county of Moore, but quite near the Chatham line. But the love of this unfortunate couple burned with too fierce a flame to be so easily extinguished, and the gallant hero of our tale, by diligent inquiry, soon ascertained the whereabouts of his lady-love, and by means of an underground telegraph they were speedily in communication with each other. The relative, to whose house our heroine had been banished, soon sympathized with the lovers in their troubles, and a marriage was at once agreed upon. Our hero had, sometime before the banishment of his captive dulcinea, procured a marriage license in this county, which of course could not be used in Moore, and so to avoid any loss of time and the expense of getting a license in the latter county, they determined to be married in Chatham. The boundary line between the counties was only about three hundred yards distant, the nearest point being the public highway. Quite a number of the neighbors were hurriedly summoned, and forming a procession, they marched to the big road, where a Chatham Magistrate met them, and so out there in the public highway with the attendants drawn up in due order was the marriage duly and decorously solemnized. The old neighborhood dither was present, and most excitedly scraped out the wedding music, which so animated the bridal party that quite a lively dance took place, with the road bed for a floor and the blue heavens for a shed. It must have been a novel and amusing scene, and will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw it.—Chatham Record.

ROSADALIS

ROSADALIS CURES SCROFULA. ROSADALIS Cures Rheumatism. ROSADALIS Cures Syphilis. ROSADALIS Cures Malaria. ROSADALIS Cures Nervous Debility. ROSADALIS Cures Consumption. ROSADALIS Cures Scrofula.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA For MAN and BEAST. External and Internal. THE GREAT PAIN RELIEVER OF THE AGE. Mott's Liver Pills. THE GREAT VEGETABLE CATHARTIC REGULATOR. Dr. Rogers' Vegetable WORM SYRUP. Instantly destroys WORMS, and is recommended by physicians as the best Worm Expeller.

FOR SALE BY T. F. KLUTTZ, Druggist, 161y Salisbury, N. C. Chew Jackson's Best Sweet Navy Tobacco. BUSINESS LOCALS. DON'T FORGET IT. COME AND GET YOUR Photographs. C. W. C. WOOLWINE, PHOTOGRAPHER.

WESTERN N. C. RAILROAD. Leave GOING WEST. Salisbury 6:05 A. M. Three Creek 6:29 Elmwood 7:25 Statesville 8:11 Catawba Station 9:06 Newton 9:57 Conover 10:10 Hickory 10:20 Morganton 11:22 Glen Alpine 12:35 Bridgewater 12:57 Marion 1:44 Old Fort 2:28 Henry 3:01 Swannanoa Gap 3:46 Black Mountain 4:01 Conover 4:16 Arrive GOING EAST Salisbury 4:10 P. M. Three Creek 3:30 Elmwood 3:07 Statesville 2:46 Catawba Station 1:51 Newton 1:16 Conover 12:43 Hickory 12:22 P. M. Statesville 10:23 Morganton 9:56 Glen Alpine 9:33 Bridgewater 8:45 Marion 7:57 Old Fort 7:44 Swannanoa 6:32 Black Mountain 6:16 Conover's 6:00 A. M. Trains run daily, Sundays excepted. Train going West will breakfast at Statesville and dinner at Henry. Train going East will breakfast at Henry and dinner at Hickory. J. W. WILSON, President.

HALE'S WEEKLY. On Tuesday, the 7th day of October, 1879, and in the City of Raleigh, the undersigned will commence the publication of HALE'S WEEKLY, A NORTH CAROLINA DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPER.

HALE'S WEEKLY. These four words convey all that a column of prospectus could tell: the good of the State and the success of the party which is the life of the State and the country; the publication of all the news; these are the objects proposed. That he can do the last and contribute to the first and second, the subscriber does not affect to doubt. The people have set their seal of approval upon his past and he does not doubt the future.

HALE'S WEEKLY will be printed from new and beautiful type and on fair white paper. The price will be two dollars per annum. No name will be upon its mail books without the payment of postage. No paper will be sent after expiration of the time paid for. Raleigh, Sept. 15, 1879. P. M. HALE.

BURIAL CASKETS!

I have just received and have on exhibit in the Room Above the Hardware Store of Messrs. Crawford & Taylor a very Handsome Assortment of Burial Caskets to which particular attention is invited. THEY ARE OF VERY NEAT STYLES, Carefully Made and of various Grades. Will be sold low. Persons wishing anything of the kind should call and see them. I am prepared to Undertake and furnish everything Required. Special attention to Dressing Bodies from Discoloring. I have had much personal experience in this line and feel sure of giving satisfaction. C. W. C. WOOLWINE, Nov. 25, 1879.

"ACORN COOK STOVE." WILLIAMS BROWN. Has the exclusive sale of this celebrated Cook Stove and they are going off like hot cakes. JUST RECEIVED, Saplin Clover, Red Clover and Orchard Grass, Seeds. Come and buy before they rise. AT EXNIX'S Drug Store. NOTE PAPER, LETTER PAPER. Envelopes, Lead Pencils, Pens, Shives, Red, Black, Violet, Blue and Indelible Inks, Copy, Memorandum and Pocket Books, cheaper than ever known before at EXNIX'S. TO ARRIVE A lot of School Books, will be sold very cheap at EXNIX'S. VISITING CARDS, PLAYING CARDS, Chalk Crayons, Russian Bath Soap, Carbolic Soap, Sulphur Soap, Vasoline Soap, Rose Baby Soap, Alsatian Soap, Tooth Brushes, Hair and Nail Brushes, Course and Fine Combs very low at EXNIX'S. 7c.

A FINE JERSEY BULL. At my stable. A rare chance to get a stock with the very best, which all ought to embrace. C. FLYLER, 63m.

PIANOS & ORGANS. FROM FACTORY TO PURCHASER. EVERY MAN HIS OWN AGENT. Luenden & Bates' Grand Introduction. Make continued until Nov. 15th. Call on the kind ever successfully carried out in America. 5,000 superb instruments at factory prices for introduction and advertisement. New plan of selling. No Agents! No Commission! Instruments made on the spot. A special notice is made of the pianos. Agents' rates to all. Only those desiring to sell on this plan. PIANOS, 7 oct. 443, 5 oct. 415, 5 oct. 387, 5 oct. 359, 5 oct. 331, 5 oct. 303, 5 oct. 275, 5 oct. 247, 5 oct. 219, 5 oct. 191, 5 oct. 163, 5 oct. 135, 5 oct. 107, 5 oct. 79, 5 oct. 51, 5 oct. 23, 5 oct. 0. Address for Introduction Sale circulars. LUDDEN & BATES, Savannah, Ga. 92m.

The Best Paper! Try It!! BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED. 35th Year. THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN. The SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN is a large First-Class Weekly Newspaper of sixteen pages, printed in the most beautiful style. Profusely illustrated with splendid engravings, representing the latest inventions and the most recent advances in the Arts and Sciences, including Engineering, Agriculture, Horticulture, the Home and Health, Medical Progress, Social Science, Natural History, Geology, Astronomy. The most valuable practical papers, by eminent writers in all departments of Science, will be found in the Scientific American. Terms, $3.20 per year, $1.60 half year; which includes postage. Discount to Agents. Single copies, ten cents. Sold by all Newsdealers. Remit by postal order to MUNN & CO., Publishers, at Park Row, New York.

PATENTS. In connection with the Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, have had 35 years experience, and now have the largest establishment in the world. Patents obtained on the best terms. A special notice is made in the Scientific American of all inventions patented through this Agency, with the names of the inventors of the Patents. By the immense circulation thus given, public attention is directed to the merits of the new patents, and sales of instruments are easily effected. Any person who has made a new discovery or invention, can ascertain, free of charge, whether a patent can probably be obtained, by writing to Munn & Co. We also send free of charge, a copy of the Patent Laws, Patents, Caveats, Trade-Marks, their costs, and how procured, with hints for procuring advances on inventions. Address for the Paper, or concerning Patents. MUNN & CO. 37 Park Row, N. Y. Branch Office, cor. E. 7th St., Washington, D. C. 23w.

JAMES M. GRAY, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, SALISBURY, N. C. Office in the Court House lot, next door to Squire Haighton. Will practice in all the Courts of the State. Blackmer and Henderson, Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors. SALISBURY, N. C. January 22 1879—4t.

Mortgage Deeds for sale here. Also various other blanks.