The "New Orleans Jubilee Singers" gave a concert at Meroney's Hall last night and are to give another to-night. They are well spoken of and favorably received.

PAINTING.—Mr. E. P. Brown, who has both taste and experience in the art of painting, will be seen offering his services to the public in that department. His work of recent date here is the best and all sufficient recommendation.

The attention of our readers is called to the ads that appear in this paper, and bespeak for all these enterprising gentlemen the liberal patronage from the public they deserve.

CAMPAIGN PAPER.—It will be seen by reference to another column, that Mr. J. J. Stewart proposes to publish a campaign paper, commencing about the middle of March. Mr. S. is known to newspaper men, and will doubtless make an acceptable paper.

THE LEE.—This gentleman so well known to members of the Legislature and the reading public of North Carolina generally, has quit politics and is now in a new line. He is commercial tourist for Cape Fear, of New York, dealers in Hats, Carpet, Straw Goods. Mr. Lee is endowed by nature and qualified by large experience and a pleasant address to prove eminently successful as a business man. He is here to-day and will visit other towns in this part of the State.

St. Valentine's Day was duly observed here, as indeed it is every year. Many made the occasion of saying pleasant things to their sweethearts and friends, and some "hard cases" put in comic missives to get even with the girls who would talk to please them. Cupid is busy in these parts, shooting at hearts with his little darts, and almost every week compels a couple to parson to seek. It is the same old story and the same old round whenever men and women are to be found. The comic feature engrained upon the ancient sentimental custom of sending valentines is execrable; but the printing press has become of late years as much a money making engine as any thing else; and in the effort to please all tastes and fancies, is responsible for this mischievous innovation. If there were no printed there would be none to tempt the foolish ones who buy and send them.

PAPER FOR THE CAMPAIGN.
I will, if properly encouraged, begin the publication of a campaign paper, on or about the 15th March, 1880; and will continue to print it until after the Presidential election, on or about the 1st of November of the next year. The price will be five cents per copy. A limited number of advertisements will be inserted. All who favor the enterprise are earnestly requested to give to it that substantial encouragement necessary to insure success.

The party is woefully in need of every help a thorough organization; for without it defeat is certain. It is of vital importance to all classes that the Democratic Party should triumph this year, and it will require every effort, first, to properly inform the people; secondly, to organize them; and thirdly, to induce them to go to the polls.

The subject of my paper will be to keep the people well posted on all matters of public interest, on the political questions at issue in this year's campaign, and to effect a thorough organization of the Democratic-Conservative party in Rowan. I want my readers, therefore, all the people in the county. Will my friends in the different sections, assist me in obtaining them by making up clubs, &c.

Flagtown Letter.
FEBRUARY 14, 1880.

Wreath the bow!
The brightest will can find us;
We'll take a flight
Towards heaven to-night,
And leave dull earth behind us."

You will doubtless have the kindness to pardon me should I briefly, goodnaturedly and without malice intent refer to your valuable contributor, "T. O. Massie," who so cleverly, in your last issue, brought me to notice in relation to the date of my previous letter. It is a right T. O. M. (Tom). There's no room for procreation and I reluctantly "own the corn."

You need so frank, so courteous and so consistent in the matter and your words were so rare and racy that I must confess I published it heartily, although entirely at my own expense, the joke, notwithstanding, it somehow irritated me at first, for I never had a piece of bread, particularly thick and wide, but that it felt "wax" to go down upon the buttered side."

We had the pleasure of meeting, this week, Mr. J. W. Brown, of Clarkburg, who is a merchant of that city, who came here on business connected with the Beaver Dam Mining Company. Mr. Brown expresses himself as well pleased with the appearance of this section of the State and sees unmistakable signs of improvement.

Mr. Fillmore Harris, one of El Dorado's promising young men, is clerking here for Elliot & Davis.

EARLY SETTLERS IN SALISBURY.

We have already mentioned James Alexander, who died here in 1754, as one of the first settlers in Salisbury. We have also mentioned the names of those who were licensed to keep ordinaries or taverns in 1755-6, as John Kyle, John Louis Beard, Peter Arrand, Jacob French, Archibald Craig, James Bower, Thomas Bashford and Robert Gillespie. Bashford & Gillespie seem to have been in a partnership, and bought up a number of lots in the town evidently with the view of holding them until the growth of the town should enhance their value. In 1757 they purchased lots No. 3, 11 and 13 in the great "East Square," from Carter and Foster, Trustees of the Township. These lots contained 144 square poles each, and on one of them they established a village.

Before leaving these early settlers, the reader must have a special introduction to a few of them who played a more conspicuous part in public affairs. The first of these is sturdy German, by way of Pennsylvania, not yet naturalized. His name is

JOHN LOUIS BEARD.
While he lingered in Pennsylvania, Mr. Beard was married to Miss Christina Snapp, of that Province. Coming to Salisbury, he was naturalized in 1753. While many of the German settlers, unacquainted with the English language, and therefore incapable of taking part in public affairs, were content to remain several years as aliens, and whose names therefore seldom appear on the Public Records, Mr. Beard, with a vigor that characterized his after life, immediately assumed his place as an active and energetic citizen. He did not at first settle within the corporate limits of the town, but opened up a farm on Crane Creek, near the Bringle's Ferry road. He afterwards owned the lot on which the Court House now stands, and erected a large dwelling house thereon. In 1768 Mr. Beard was bequeathed a beloved daughter, and having laid her in a grave on his own lot, he made, the same year, a title to said lot of one hundred and forty square poles to certain Trustees of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Salisbury. These Trustees were "to erect and build thereon a church, for the only proper use and behoof of the said German Lutheran Congregation forever. He also granted in the deed the use of the church to the Reformed Calvin Ministers at such time as the said Lutheran minister doth not want to perform divine service in it. The "Reformed Calvin Ministers" were probably the "German Reformed," who were intimately associated with the Lutherans, often using the same building. This lot given by Mr. Beard to the Lutheran Church is the one known as the "Lutheran grave yard," which formerly stood the Lutheran church. It is now sometimes called the "Salisbury Cemetery," and has been recently enclosed with a substantial brick wall by the united contributions of citizens of all denominations. Within its spacious enclosure and beneath its embowered cedars, sleeps the honored dust of multitudes of the once active and earnest citizens of Salisbury.

Mr. Beard left a large family of sons and daughters, whose descendants are still among us. Another early settler here, appearing at the session of the first Court, in June 1763, was

JOHN DENN, Esq.
This gentleman, a native of Ireland, born at Waterford, and on his mother's side connected with the Eskine family. He was a younger brother and was early sent to Oxford University, where he might prepare himself to carve out his own fortune. When he was about twenty years of age he left Oxford, and emigrated to America, landing in New York, where he remained a brief residence there he came to Salisbury, where he spent the remainder of his life. He became in 1753 clerk of the court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions, which office he held until he became a licensed lawyer in 1755. His residence in Salisbury was on the corner of Innes and Church Streets, on the lot now occupied by Mr. P. B. Meroney. After the style of those days, the house which he built to the street, where he lived, here the writer saw a freeman, a few days ago, throw up pieces of old bricks, as he was digging out a place to plant a sycamore tree—doubtless, the debris of John Dunn's family residence, or perhaps the foundations of his law office. There is also a deed on record, from Earl Granville, to John Dunn, dated June 10th 1758, for 470 acres of land on the South branch of Middle Crane Creek, adjoining the lands of John Brandon. He purchased lot No. 5, in the East square, of Carter & Foster, in 1755. He was also the owner of a large tract of land, including Dunn's Mountain, where he made his home after the Revolutionary war.

WILLIAM TEMPLE COLES.
He was another of the early settlers in Salisbury. He was a native of Dublin, Ireland, and was related to the Temple family. In Salisbury he was the proprietor, or keeper of a Tavern, situated on the corner of Corbin and Innes streets, where Klutz's Drug store now stands—the same property that Paul Bangs purchased from Magaine in 1768. He was a Free-mason as he regards himself. His will, still on file in the Register's office, is something of a curiosity. He bequeaths to his wife, Sarah, four lots in the town of Salisbury—her choice from all his Salisbury lots. He leaves to his son, William Temple Coles, Jr., "the whole Town of Salisbury," as conveyed to him by Foster, the former Trustee. His furniture he left to his daughter Henrietta Coles. He bequeathed a half acre of ground in the South Square of Salisbury for a burying ground, one half of it to the Freemasons, and one half to the citizens. This lot lay where the North Carolina Railroad track now is, where the "Bank street" crosses the said road. It is remembered, that when the "cut" for the Road was made many human bones were exposed. By what means the right of the citizens and of the Freemasons to said lot passed away we know not. Neither do we know exactly what claims Mr. Coles had to the "whole Town of Salisbury." And what became of William Temple Coles, Jr., or Henrietta Coles, or where the elder Coles was buried, are questions more easily asked than answered.

Though not permanent residents of the county of Rowan the names of James Innes and Francis Corbin were very familiar in the days of the early settlement of Salisbury. These were Earl Granville's Land Agents, and had in their hands the whole disposal of the lands in the Earl's vast estate. Mosely and Holten were the first Agents, and after them Childs and Corbin. Hillsboro was first called Childsburg after one of these agents. Upon the removal of Childs, the Agents were Corbin and Innes. These gentlemen had an office on the corner of Innes and Church Streets, where the fountain in Mr. R. J. Holmes' yard now is, in close proximity to John Dunn's law office. Francis Corbin was a citizen of Chowan, and resided a few miles from Edenton. He is represented as an extortioner, charging exorbitant fees for his official acts. At one time ten or fifteen men of Halifax county arrested him and compelled him to give a bond that he would produce his books and return all money received by him above his proper fees. Instead of doing this he commenced a suit against the rioters, and some of them were lodged in the Edinburg goal. But on the next day the prison doors were broken down, and the prisoners liberated. Corbin then thought fit to discontinue the suit and pay costs.

James Innes was a citizen of Wilmington and a baron of the court of Exchequer there. He was associated with Corbin in the Salisbury land-office, and one of the principal streets was named after him. But even more prominent among our people were two brothers, who probably came to this country along with Francis Corbin from Halifax or Edenton. Their names were

JOHN and THOMAS FROHOCK.
The name of JOHN FROHOCK, a beautiful round hand appears as "Court Clerk" on the Records as early as 1756, and for a number of years after the large volumes of land titles of various kinds are recorded in the same beautiful hand, and authenticated with his signature. Step by step he grew very wealthy, chiefly, it may appear, by printing and selling public land. The books are largely filled by conveyances either to him or from him. In his will, dated 1768, and proved in 1772, there are named thousands of acres of land in Rowan County, in the forks of the Yadkin, near Salisbury, on Saxaphaw, on Tar River and in Virginia, bequeathed by him to his brother, Thomas and William Frohock, besides thirty or forty slaves, one of which he liberated at death. He was once the owner of the lot on which the Watchman office and Crawford's Hardware store now stands, and in a transfer of said lot between John Frohock and William Temple Coles, the street now called "Fisher's street" is mentioned as "Temple Street." He mentions neither wife nor child in his will, and it is presumed that he was not married. Besides the kindness shown in the education and liberation of his body servant, Absalom, he expressly enjoins that his debtors should not be oppressed or sued, but ample time given to them to pay their debts to his Executors. His brother William does not appear to have resided here, but had his home in Halifax, though one of his daughters married and settled in the vicinity of Salisbury.

THOMAS FROHOCK.
resided on what has been known as the McCay place, and inherited the mill and the lands adjoining from his brother John Frohock, who was probably the builder, certainly the owner of the Mill, and of all the lands lying between the Town and Grant's creek.

Dr. Camthers designates Thomas Frohock as a "bachelor," but the evidence of his will is to the contrary. His will in 1794, leaves his property to his son, Alexander Frohock, and to his daughter Elizabeth, who was married to Charles Hunt, a merchant of Salisbury. There are two or three items of his history of peculiar interest. The first is that he gave to the town the lot now known as the "English Grave Yard," or "Oak Grove Cemetery," and the School House lot immediately in front. The oldest stone in this yard is that of Capt. Daniel Little, who died in 1775, and was laid peacefully to rest just as the stormy days of the Revolutionary war were closing on. In this place, it is said that some of the British soldiers, after the battle of Camden, wounded three, or more, of their fight, were buried. And here were interred some of the British soldiers, who died in 1781 during the time that Cornwallis occupied Salisbury. The grave yard lay unenclosed, until about 50 years ago, when William Gay, the father of the late Mrs. Mary Brown, left a legacy for that purpose. With the proceeds a wooden railing or plank fence was around it, and renewed from time to time until in 1857 the present substantial granite wall was erected by the voluntary contributions of the citizens of this Town.

Another matter mentioned by Camthers in his Life of Caldwell (page 114) is that "Thomas Frohock in Salisbury and Edenton families in Hillsboro were clerks of the Superior Courts in their respective counties, and had become exceedingly obnoxious to the people by their extortions." * * * "It is said that Frohock charged $15 for a marriage license; and the consequence was that some of the inhabitants on the head waters of the Yadkin took a short cut. They took each other for better or for worse; and considered themselves as men out in the further ceremony." In his last will Thomas Frohock enjoins upon his executors to pay all his just debts of under three years standing, but to plead the "statute of limitation," upon all claims older than that, whenever they could.

A constant tradition represents that Thomas Frohock lies buried in an unmarked grave on the hillside within two hundred yards of McCoy's—once Frohock's—mill.

It is now one hundred years since these old citizens, Dunn, Beard, Coles, Corbin, Innes, John and Thomas Frohock lived and acted their part in the ancient Township of Salisbury. Now their names are never heard except as an antiquarian rummages among the dusty records of a by-gone generation, or questions some old citizen whose memory is stored with the traditions of the past. The places that knew them once will know them no more forever.

IMPORANT LAW-SUIT.

A highly interesting law-suit was begun this week in McDowell county by the stockholders of the Western Division of the W. N. C. R. R. vs. W. W. Rollins and others. Judge Avery on yesterday, at the instance of Maj. W. H. Malouin and Col. J. M. McCorkle obtained an order to show cause why a Receiver should not be appointed. Set for hearing before Judge Gilmer at Newton, on the 27th inst. This suit demands an account of all the doings of Rollins and charges fraud etc.—Blade

An Extraordinary Accident.

In New York, Saturday, a long strip of iron rail forced its way endwise through a street car on the Fourth avenue line filled with passengers, crushing through this seat, penetrating the thigh of Mr. Samuel Glover, a merchant, of Fairfield, Conn., and passing on, lodged against the end of the car, the car was brought to a stand still. The strip of iron was in such a position that Mr. Glover, who had become almost unconscious from the agony he was suffering was literally nailed to his seat. A police officer came up, and, procuring axes and saws, with the assistance of several of the passengers, cut away the rear end of the car to release Mr. Glover. After fifteen minutes' hard work the rail was released from its lodgment, but still the unfortunate passenger could not be released. With a penknife the officer managed to cut away the lacerated flesh of Mr. Glover's thigh to reach his hip. A hack was procured, and he was taken to Ashland House, where he was stopping. Physicians were sent for and pronounced his injuries exceedingly serious.

A MYSTERIOUS PAINTING.

Not 100 miles below Nashville is a curious spectacle known as the "Sun and Moon." It consists of a painting upon an immense rock which rises to an altitude of several hundred feet. As to who painted it is a mystery which was never unravelled. Many think it was the work of the red brother, centuries ago perhaps. But there the sun and the moon shine out in all the freshness of new paint. They are located midway the cliff, and stand out in bold relief. As to how any human being ever reached the spot is a question which has never been solved. It is supposed that in those days they had no giant ladders, could not easily have reached the point from below. The only natural route of that time was a wild grapevine, of which Tennessee is so prolific, and some Indian might have been by this means let down over the dizzy cliff, and when he had finished his work had again been let down or pulled up. At any rate these pictures are there on the everlasting rock, and are likely to remain for future ages.

Telegraphic Progress Last Year.

Last year was remarkable not only for its increase in the miles of railroad track laid, and for the extensive relaying of old tracks, which the period of business depression had kept too long in use, but also for the great amount of wire and cable consumed in the laying of land and submarine telegraph lines.

A great addition was made to the number of miles of submarine cables laid and the repairs and replacing of old cables went on at a rapid rate. Of the new cables, the most important was the Atlantic cable, laid for the French company from Brest to St. Pierre and on to Cape Cod, with a branch from St. Pierre to Canada. Another vast undertaking was that of laying the Submarine cable from Durban to Aden, in Africa, in all 3,841 nautical miles. A duplicate cable was also laid from Penang to the island of Java, 1,310 miles in length, and the same company are now extending the line 1,180 miles further, to Port Darwin. A cable, 600 miles long has also been laid for the French government from Marseilles to Algiers. Another 147 miles long, has been laid across the Caspian Sea, for the Russian government. The Spanish government has laid a cable between Spain and the Balearic Islands, fifty-six miles. The Danish government has also used fifty-two miles of submarine telegraphic cable.

Another feature of ocean telegraphic progress has been the great increase in the duplexing of submarine cable circuits. The Anglo-American Company have duplexed their 1874 cable, and the apparatus for so multiplying the efficiency of the 1873 cable has arrived at the stations. The Direct Cable Company are also trying experimentally the duplex system, which, in the case of the 1874 cable of the Anglo-American Company has increased the carrying capacity eighty per cent. since it was applied last March. Meantime, we have seen the progress of repairs and the substitution of new for old cables in the waters of the West Indies, along the coast of Brazil, and in the Atlantic submarine lines.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Hon. E. B. Washburne authorizes the announcement that he is not and will under no circumstances be a candidate for the presidency.

The Concord Register says specimens of gold ore gathered at the Parker mine, near Concord, are very rich. The vein in this mine shows a depth of 22 inches, and promises good results.

Raleigh Observer: A young man in Fayetteville has published a pamphlet on the subject of the millennium, and predicts with much positiveness that the end of the world will occur at a quarter past 10 o'clock on Friday, the 26th day of next March.

Concord Sun: The county treasurer has been busy this week cashing county fence orders. The cost for building the fence around the county is one cent for every rail laid, and the total will foot up about $3,700. The treasurer is cashing the orders as fast they come in.

This remarkable occurrence is reported in a South Carolina paper: "A high-soaring eagle in Hampton county was struck by lightning in the clouds, the other day, and fell dead to the earth."

Concord Sun: Quite a flutter was made among the guano dealers in town one day last week when the Poplar Tent Grauge came in to buy its supply of fertilizers for this season. They were after getting the article at a cheap price, and the dealers bid actively. The purchase was finally made from Young & Dove, that firm having agreed to sell the guano fifty tons of fertilizer for four hundred pounds of cotton to the ton.

WHEN ROGUES FALL OUT.—If there is ten per cent. of truth in what Grant organ says about Sherman, and the accusations hurled at Grant by journals in the Sherman interest, neither of these aspirants are fit to be named in connection with the presidential office. And we expect these journals, in their present wrathful mood, are getting nearer to a basis of fact than they are accustomed to in their normal frame of mind. Their reciprocal indictments give a fair insight into the true character of their party and its leaders.

A MAN ROOSTING IN AN ORGAN.—Melville Pierce, of Wellfleet, Mass., a lunatic who has unsuccessfully attempted to kill himself by shooting, and who disappeared last September, has just been discovered in the Methodist church organ. The organist seeing a man on top of the organ, and supposing him to be a tramp, summoned assistance, when Pierce was routed out. His hair had grown so long that it rested on his shoulders, and his face was covered with a beard, which gave him a wild look. An examination revealed that Pierce had been living in the church for some time, that he had a bed on top of the organ, and that he had also occupied the attic. A tub of butter, that some weeks since was stolen from a store, was found where Pierce had concealed it, a portion of which he had used. He had also a lot of canned meats, preserves and other eatables. Since being taken from the church he will not give any information of where he has been or how he managed to remain so long in the vicinity without being discovered sooner. He is now cared for by his friends.—Springfield Republican.

Eugene Rose, infant son of Dr. E. Rose and Hatlie Dorseth, died in this city on the 10th inst., aged about eighteen months, after a brief illness attended with very distressing features. For several months his health was extremely delicate, and the constant care and watchfulness of fond parents was exerted to protract the little thread so suddenly and rudely snapped.
