Make Friends.

Life is very critical. Any word may be our last. Any farewell, even among glee and merriment, may be forever. If this truth were but burned into our consciousness, and it ruled as a deep conviction and power in our lives, would it not give a new meaning to all our human relationships?

Would it not make us far more tender than we sometimes are? Would it not oftentimes put a rein upon our rash and impetuous speech? Would we carry in our hearts the miserable suspicions and jealousies that now so often embitter the fountain of our loves?

Would we be so chary of our kind words, our commendations, our sympathy, our comfort, when weary hearts all about us are breaking for just such expressions of interest or appreciation as we have in our power to give?
