

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1880.

NEW TERMS.

From and after the 1st day of January, 1880, the subscription price of the Watchman will be as follows: One year, paid in advance, $1.50...

Berberham has a new lot of fancy and substantial stationery—call and see it.

WANTED!—A dwelling house with two comfortable rooms, for which a reasonable rent will be paid. Apply at this office.

The Autumn months are here, and the autumn weather with them. Last few days have been cool.

Our farmers are busy with the cotton picking and tobacco curing—fine crops of both in this county.

The Rev. J. Rumble will fill an appointment to preach at Norwood, in Stanley county, this week, including Sunday.

Mr. Frank Brown was summoned to meet government agents at Norfolk last week, for the purpose of making arrangements to commence the work of Yadkin Navigation.

Public Speaking in Rowan.—It will be seen by a notice in another part of this paper, that Maj. Armfield and Mr. Klutz will address the people of Rowan at Gibson's School House, China Grove and Gold Hill.

The enterprising firm of Bernhardt Brothers are offering to the farmers a valuable fertilizer, which stands highly recommended by the wheat raisers of the Valley of Virginia. The farmers will do well to give this Guano a trial. See advertisement on first page of this paper.

A number of the Rifles attended the Mite at Mr. Gray's last Friday night in full uniform. The lawn at "Delta Grove" was brightly illuminated, making the military quite conspicuous while promenading.

Mr. M. A. Vanderford has returned from Texas and the far west. He was well pleased with the country. He has had several years experience, but says he does not know for certain that he will return.

Several persons were arrested on suspicion last week, but were not identified as being the burglars in question, and were released.

A special force was put on guard by Major Mansury—they did not capture any one, but reported that the citizens were heard hailing down windows until a very late hour, last Thursday night.

The graded school opened fairly last Monday week, with some 75 or 80 scholars. In a short time the school will number 125. A new lot has been purchased and a committee appointed to see to the erection of a new School House. Why is the delay? The school is suffering for the want of a suitable building.

Big TOMATO.—Col. R. H. Cowan left at this office a few days since the finest tomato of the season. It weighed one pound and two ounces. It is indeed a beautiful specimen, and is known as the "Canadian Prolifer" variety.

Our friends in Davie have not favored us with a report of their convention. Rowan is sufficiently interested as to our desire to know what is going on in our district, or rather our daughter county. We have learned that Mr. J. A. Williamson was nominated for the Senate. He is a good man, and Rowan will give him his hearty support. We hope our Davie friends will keep us posted in regard to matters of importance.

At the Hancock and Jarvis club last Tuesday night, it was decided that a Mass Meeting be held in this place in the latter part of October. Mr. L. S. Overman made an enthusiastic speech, favoring a grand gathering of the democracy and urging our people to a more warm determined effort to advance democracy in this immediate vicinity.

MEDICAL AT MRS. F. E. SHOVER'S.—Last Monday evening quite a number of our young people enjoyed a musical treat at the residence of Mrs. Shober. Some of our young lady visitors took part and rendered some of the finest compositions in the most accomplished manner. Sorry we have not the space to deal with each separately.

DR. FRITCHARD'S ADDRESS ON EDUCATION.—On Monday evening last quite a respectable audience assembled to hear an address by the Rev. T. H. Fritchard, D. D., President of the Wake Forest College, on Education. The distinguished Lecturer delivered a powerful and eloquent address upon Education as the basis of material prosperity. By a mass of statistics from this country and from Europe, he showed beyond a doubt that the greater amount of wealth was invariably found where the highest grade of education existed, and that brain culture was essential to the highest success in agriculture and manufactures. It would be extremely profitable to our people if this address could be heard in every village and township in North Carolina. The speaker enlivened his address with spicy and side-splitting anecdotes, and bursts of oratory, that elicited the attention of his audience to the close of his instructive address.

PERSONAL.—Miss Whent of Va., is visiting Mrs. F. E. Shober.

Miss Motley, of Danville, Va., has been the guest of Mrs. W. H. Crawford for the past ten days.

Miss Lineback, daughter of Prof. Lineback of Salem, N. C., is at Mrs. T. B. Benff's.

Hon. A. S. Merriman has been visiting Mr. L. S. Overman.

Attorney-General Thos. S. Kenan was in the city on last Monday.

Rev. F. J. Murdoch has returned from a trip north—near foug branch. He seems improved in health.

Public Speaking!

Hon. R. F. Armfield, Democratic candidate for Congress, Theo. F. Klutz, Democratic Elector for this district, will address their fellow citizens at the following times and places:

Mocksville, Davie county, Tuesday, September 21st.

Gibson's School House, Rowan county, Wednesday, September 22d.

Gold Hill, Rowan county, Thursday, September 23rd.

China Grove, Rowan county, Friday, September 24th.

Moorsville, Iredell county, Saturday, September 25th.

Yadkinville, Yadkin county, Tuesday, September 28th.

Judge Furches and Dr. Ramsay are invited to be present.

Mr. Charles Price, agent and champion of Mr. Bingham, is doing all he can to disturb the harmony of the Democrats of Rowan. Democrats were invited to take a hand in a Hancock & Jarvis flag-raising at Franklin last week, and Mr. Price was there, and threw in the Sheriff's bread, by insultingly denouncing Mr. Waggoner and his friends as "bolters." The managers at the Mt. Vernon Hancock and Jarvis gathering on Monday, sought to keep out this element of discord, but we learn Mr. Price lugged it in towards the close of the day. Mr. Waggoner and his friends have had no hand in causing or promoting discord in the party.

LITERARY ENTERTAINMENT.—MRS. FANNY K. JENKINS, of Kentucky, has kindly consented to read on next Monday night, at the Armory of the Salisbury High School, an address on the subject of "The Elements of a Good Education." She is an accomplished elocutian, a graduate of Vassar College, and has made education a special study, under the best masters in America.

The Rifles are desirous that the citizens should see their army—of which they are justly proud—and to this end have determined that the entertainment be given there. Chairs will be placed in the Hall and the comfort of the audience will be properly cared for. The steps leading to the armory have recently been placed in good repair. We bespeak for the lady and the Rifles, a good turnout on the part of our citizens. The admission will be twenty-five cents—the object being to raise money to defray expenses for flags, &c., all to make a good show at King's Mountain in October. The boys are in earnest—the object being uniform in the state, and will stand first among the North Carolina State Guards.

SEPARATING AT MT. VERNON.—Last Monday was the day set for Attorney-General Thomas J. Kenan to address the people of Western Rowan. Some four hundred persons were present. The ladies were out in full force and set a most elegant repeat at noon. Col. Kenan made, during the morning, a fine democratic speech, and was listened to with marked attention; the audience seemed to be absorbing everything that was said.

He was followed in the afternoon by Col. F. E. Shober, John S. Henderson, L. S. Overman, James M. Gray, J. A. Williamson, E. H. McLaughlin and the speaking was wound up by the Hon. Chas. Price. All were good speeches. J. M. Gray is said to have overdone any former night, and to have taken even his best friends by surprise. Mr. Price made his usual speech against the so-called disorganizers. The idea of a man calling two-thirds of the democrats in Rowan disorganizers and enemies to Democracy! One-third trying to override two-thirds by calling them disorganizers! Sensible idea!

DEATH OF JAMES E. KERR.

Our community mourns the death of another of her old citizens. James E. Kerr departed this life Monday morning, at 9 a. m., in the 72nd year of his life, after a slow decline of some weeks duration. He was extensively known as one of the resident lawyers of this place, which profession he continued to practice to the end of his life. He was a native of the County, and his whole active life was spent here. He married in 1833, Catharine, a daughter of the late James Huie, who still survives him. They were blessed with a numerous family of bright and intelligent children; but all, with the exception of a son and a daughter, passed away, one after another in the prime of early life.

Major Kerr was highly respected for his ability as a lawyer, for his personal dignity, easy, courtly manners; his genial nature, and his integrity of character. He has left a void in the community of which he was an honored member, and especially will he be missed by the troubled poor whom he often aided by legal advice and counsel. He will be greatly missed at the Rowan Bar, where he was held in high esteem for his learning and ability and for his fair and generous bearing towards its members. His death is a public loss. (Raleigh News & Observer, Goldsboro Messenger and Wilmington Star requested to notice.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MEETING, SEPT. 6.

At this meeting a committee consisting of G. A. Bingham, D. A. Davis and John S. Henderson, was appointed to investigate the facts pertaining to the census in this county, and to consider the propriety of having another enumeration. They have full authority to take such action in the premises as they shall think proper. A petition from a number of the citizens in Morgans township, begging to be transferred to the township of Gold Hill, was read and their petition granted; and Sam'l Rothrock was appointed to have the lines run in accordance with said petition, and to have a correct boundary of both townships before the Board at its next meeting.

The Board ordered R. J. Halton, Bridge Inspector, to build a bridge across Second Creek, near the Western N. C. Railroad. A bridge is also to be built across Second Creek, in what is known as Gheen's bottom.

Flagtown Letter.

Editor Watchman: There was quite a large assemblage of regular Jeffersonian, staunch tried and true Democrats that gathered at the voting precinct of El Dorado township today for the very laudable purpose of electing a township Executive Committee, naming five the conservatives to represent the township in the County Convention to be held at Troy next Monday, and electing five persons to the Mt. Gilead Senatorial Convention. The township Executive Committee elected is composed of Col. John F. Cotton, Dr. J. T. Lemley, George L. Russell, James D. Harris and John S. Overman. The delegates elected to Troy are M. McAlister, Charles W. Edgecombe, N. M. Thayer, Dr. J. T. Lemley and Col. John F. Cotton, while George Walker, James D. Harris, J. F. Cotton, C. W. Edgecombe and Dr. J. T. Lemley will attend to the Mt. Gilead Convention. It was pleasing to notice the harmony and perfect unanimity which prevailed throughout the entire proceedings and the entire absence of any desire upon the part of any present to "rule or ruin." Never was the Democratic party in Montgomery county so thoroughly alive to the great issues of the day and so enthusiastic over the nomination of the Democratic party both as regards the National and State tickets, and never were they working harder and more systematically for the good cause of thoroughly organizing the conservative vote than on the 13th inst. The Democrats of this section will meet at Millidgeville and organize a Hancock, Jarvis and Dowd Club. It is expected that a number of good speakers will be present and a grand and glorious time is expected.

A little political hash is almost always relished and perhaps you Rowan folks would like to know who the candidates for different offices are. Well, Mr. C. C. Wade, our popular Clerk of the Supreme Court, Mr. J. M. Brown, a first class, gifted young lawyer, and Hon. J. S. Grand would like to represent the people in the Senate, while Osear J. Speers, a big Grant man at the Chicago Convention, but now a mild Garfield proselyte and one of your loyal (I presume) fellows will most likely receive the Republican nomination. Alex. Henderson, who, it is said, is said to have given an acceptable bond after having been elected Sheriff at the last election, together with George Graham, are Radical candidates for the House of Commons, while in the Democratic camp we find Col. John F. Cotton, Dr. McKenzie, Elias Hurley and Stanback Martin. Mr. B. T. Rash, the present Sheriff will likely be re-nominated by the Democrats but the republican candidate is not est. John T. McKinnon and Randall Harris are the Democratic nominees for the Register's office, while W. F. Harris, P. H. Morris and Lindsay M. Russell think they could make our marriage licenses, record deeds about as good as the next one—or any other man.

There, now, Mr. Editor, I know I had left out something Mr. Allen Jordan, alias the Duke of Montgomery, a bright and shining light about the historic locality of Troy and a follower of Blackstone, in other words the gentleman who suffered defeat at the hands of the late Congressman Walter M. Steele, is a candidate for the House of Commons.

Northampton England.

BRO. BRUNER: I am here in the place of antiquity, where a great battle was fought during the war of the Roses, in which the Lancastrians were defeated and Henry VI. taken prisoner. In the civil wars of Charles I. it was again taken and fortified for the Parliament. A few of the noted old buildings remain in one of which is a tablet to the memory of Dr. Doddridge, and in others are contained—St. Giles—some singular monuments. St. Peter's is a fine specimen of rich Norman Architecture. St. Sepulchre's is said to have been erected by the Knight Templars early in the twelfth century. The castle is now but a pile of earth being cleared away to give way to a new and better building, and the city has entirely disappeared. I noticed on a wall in the town hall small shields giving the names and date of service of over three hundred of their Mayors. The town is beautifully situated on the sloping banks of the river. New, surrounded by a beautiful country of which a fine view is obtained from the high portion of the city. It is new to the English, boots and shoes being their great manufacturing staple. The place seems to be growing rapidly. Many of its streets seem new and recently built up, and they are opening up many others, and buildings are going up every where along them. The town is quiet, the streets clean, lined with neat but modest looking houses, and few parts generally two-story houses, and but few any where over three stories. I was struck with the number of persons I met on the streets carrying bundles of shoes in different stages of making. It seems each pair passes through many hands in course of construction, both male and female seem to work at it, and all are engaged in the trade. I have traveled through much of England and Scotland and seen some lovely landscapes, as well as hills and shaggy woods. The grain crops in both countries as a general thing are good, in many places splendid, but in the middle counties of England, is much tattered and laid down by storm, as when I was in Scotland, and through-out Scotland the wheat crop is very heavy and a great deal of it in pasture, grazed by sheep or fattening cattle and sheep. We passed through four tunnels and from some portions of the road had fine views of beautiful spreading valleys away in the distance. Much of England consists of very extensive plantations of trees, and some of the richest land through which flow sluggish streams, and in some places there are in former days was works of canals, which in former days were the works of carrying heavy freight. Now the steam horse sports along those valleys with his mighty load, and it is beautiful to look upon the fine grain crops with here and there lone green pastures, with enough of trees to make the landscape interesting, with the farm houses dotted among them, with here and there a palace with its fine surroundings, and every now and again you will pitch into a large town or city, where all is bustle and business. From Newark by Doncaster and York on to Durham is a beautiful country, highly cultivated and mostly in crop, and much of it in pasture, grazed by sheep. Around Durham the country is very heavy, and so very fine flocks of cattle. As you approach New Castle, you get into a mining country, smoking every where, and New Castle is a match for Glasgow, Birmingham or Manchester, for its smokestacks and smoke. The counties of Berwick and the Lothians in Scotland, contains much fine land, very highly cultivated, and mostly in crop. The farms generally, what are called large, the houses thereon looking something like a small village, each with a high brick chimney, stacks for their engine furnaces for threshing machines, &c. Some distance after leaving Edinburgh for Ayrshire, you pass through amongst hills and sheep pastures, and the valley of the Clyde, thence through another range of similar hills into the valley of Ayr, which on entering you are again in the midst of smoke from Mines and Iron works, first at Glenbuchter, Muirkirk and on to Cumnock. Through the smoke you can see sheep pastures and hills. As you approach Glasgow you enter the great dairying section of Scotland. A true has been long famed for its fine dairies, and they have now more of their lands in pasture than ever before, and finer flocks of milk cattle than I have seen anywhere. While driving through the country I could not help stopping at times admiring them.

Yours truly, Wm. Murdoch.

As our reporter came along Water street last night, shivering with the chill night air, and drawing his overcoat tightly about him, he thought, "now is the time for colds and coughs," but if you mortals only knew what a certain cure Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, how few would long suffer, and then it costs only twenty-five cents.—Sanlinsky (Ohio) Register.

Hancock is a man of destiny. Why, just look at the record. In 1868 Garfield brought a bill into Congress to drop the junior Major General. That was Hancock. It passed both houses of Congress and was signed by the President. But before it could be carried into effect George H. Thomas, the senior Major General, died, and Hancock going up one grade, and so no longer the junior Major General, and so the law could not reach him. Then the republicans, still led by Garfield, passed an act reducing the Major Generals to three. This was signed by the President, but before it could be carried into effect Meade died, and the Major Generals were reduced to three by Almighty God. Finally, a law was passed authorizing the President to drop one of the Major Generals. Before it could be carried out, Hancock was dropped, Halleck died, and Hancock becoming the senior Major General, he could not be dropped. The man who arrived at these attempts to retire him cannot be retired. The man who led them—Garfield—will, as a fit consummation of his act, fall a victim to his intended victim. Hancock will be elected President. Garfield will be retired—at least from the Presidential field.—Louisville Courier Journal, Dem.

The Issue Between the Parties.

The parties seeking popular favor divide not as the Statesville American indicates, on the question of secession, but on the question of consolidation. There is no party seeking secession; there is no party desiring secession or declaring that it is a correct principle or a tenable doctrine under our constitution. But there is a party desiring consolidation; seeking consolidation, urging it as a vital principle, and as a necessity under the circumstances that surround us. Such is not only their doctrine, but their public acts tend to the accomplishment of the result. No one doubts the meaning of the constitution and the laws of Congress passed pursuant thereto are the supreme law of the land. That is too plain for contradiction. The plain meaning of the words carries with it the interpretation. Acts of Congress are the law of the land, if unconstitutional they are mere nullities. It has so happened that the Republican party, being in control of Congress, has, since the war, passed many acts tending towards centralization, some of which have been brought to the test before the Supreme Court, and have been decided by that body, composed largely of Republicans, as void, because unconstitutional. What acts passed by a Democratic Congress have ever been declared unconstitutional? We do not recall a single decision annulling an act passed by a Democratic Congress. It is only the acts of Republican Congresses that have been pronounced, even by Republican judges, as revolutionary—that is, as making changes in the law not provided for by the existing law itself. All of these acts so declared void had for their object to bring about a consolidated government—to make us a nation instead of a federal union. The constitution is express that all rights not delegated remain with the people or the States respectively; the Republicans, in the interest of a national centralized government, would render that amendment to the constitution meaningless, and they act on the idea that the Federal government possesses all powers not specifically denied to it. They would obliterate State lines and treat the States as mere counties. They claim the right, and have exercised the power of sending troops to supervise the elections held in the States, of appointing marshals and supervisors of elections, of protecting citizens in their right of suffrage, of interfering with the domestic concerns of the residents of the States, with our public schools, our churches, taverns, railroads and steamboats. This is the utmost latitude to which consolidation can well be carried. There is only one step beyond and that is to invest the Presidency with the insignia of royalty. That, to be sure, will not be attempted, no matter how much it may be desired. The practical question is, shall we have the Union of our fathers, or a centralized national government.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Sore Distress of the Republican Managers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Never before have the Republican managers been so hard pressed for money. They do not get all they want. The administration and the congressional committee really seem to be in distress over the canvass, and the collectors of assessments are permitted to run riot over the dead body of civil service reform. The employees of the government have all been employed more than once. Public Printer Detross posts his notice in the printing office giving his hands an alternative either to go home and vote or stay and pay an assessment. One or the other they must do. But this is more lenient than the other departments. In the Treasury the clerks must both pay and go home to vote. Even the women are contributing to the campaign. It is pretended that their payments are voluntary. It is worthy of notice, however, that they have received circulars from the congressional committee calling their attention to the necessities of the party. The scrubbers and washers have also been called upon, and yesterday circulars were issued to all the employees of the Navy Department asking for money. Perhaps, however, the extremity of the party of moral ideas is best illustrated by a circular issued yesterday to the Notaries Public and Justices of the Peace of the District. There is a goodly number of these, but they are anxious to know what they have to do with campaign committees.

There are between 104,000 and 107,000 Federal officeholders in the United States. It is estimated that the average salary paid these employees annually is $1,000. Taking 104,000 as the number of officeholders at an average salary of $1,000 each, the annual pay roll of the government is $104,000,000. Two per cent. of the amount of the assessment levied upon all salaries by the Republican congressional committee, of $104,000,000, is $2,080,000.

It is not only by extorting money from clerks and day laborers that the administration is showing its anxiety as to the results of the canvass. Almost all its members are engaged in the campaign. John Sherman is on the stump. Mr. Schurz is expected back in a few days to begin speeches in Ohio and Indiana. Mr. Maynard is expected to do his part in the civil service reform movement by stamping Tennessee. Navigator Thompson will run out in a short time to take his part in the fight. Internal Revenue Commissioner Rason is in Maine, and will make some speeches in Connecticut before his return, Register of Deeds George A. Sheridan and Henry O. Conder, law clerk of the State Department, are also stamping Maine. John Jay would make another speech, but he preached himself dry in his first effort. Mr. Evarts expects to give the finishing touch to the New York campaign, and a host of other lesser lights are doing what they can to scatter the fragments of Mr. Hayes's celebrated civil service order No. 1.

Hayes's majority in Vermont in 1876 was 23,838. At the State election held on Tuesday the Republican majority was—or is claimed to be—26,000. Republican gain in four years, 3,000.

The Raleigh News and Observer have been consolidated, and now appear under the name of the "News and Observer," under the editorial management of Mr. S. A. ASHE. Mr. HALE, former Editor of the News, retires on account of failing health.

Mr. George Hoffman, a worthy German, for several years a resident here, died Saturday. He was for several years sexton of the Cemeteries, and performed his duty well.
