Well Mannered Children.

"Thank you, Charley," said Mr Brown, as her little son handed her a paper he was requested to bring.

"Thank you Bridget," said the little fellow, a few hours after as he received a glass of water from the nurse

"Well, Mrs. Brown, you have the best mannered children I ever saw, said a neighbor. "I should be thank ful if mine were as polite to me as yours are to the servants, You never spend half as much time on your children's clothes as I do, and yet every one notices them, they are so well behaved."

"We always try to treat our children politely," was the quiet reply.

This was the whole secret. When ill-manners of their children, I always wish to ask, "have you always treated them with politeness?" once knew a man, considered quite a gentleman in society, who would speak to his children in a manner that a well-instructed dog would resent. He would order them with a growl to bring hisslippers or perform some other little service; and yet he complained of the rudeness and disobedience of his children.

Good Humor,

Good humor is rightly reckoned a most valuable aid to happy home life. An equally good and useful faculty is a sense of humor, or the capacity to have a little fun along with the humdrum cares and works of life. We all know how it brightens up things generally to have a lively, witty companion, who sees the ridiculous points of things, and can turn an annovance into an occasion for laughter. It does a great deal better to laugh over some domestic mishaps than to cry or scold about them. Many homes and lives are dull because they are allowed to become too deeply impressed with the cares and responsibilities of life to recognize its bright and especially its week. Nothing like it ever known before. All who mirthful side. In such a household. good, but dull, the advent of a witty, take all the risk. Those who need ready money take all the risk. While it is always oppressive to hear persons constantly A NEW KIND OF WATCH CASE striving to say witty or funny things, it is comfortable, seeing what a brightener a little fun is, to make an effort to make some at home. It is well to turn off an impatient question sometime and to regard it from a humorous point instead of being irritated

"Wife, what's the reason I never can find a clean shirt?" exclaimed a good, but rather impatient nusband after looking all through the wrong draw-I was struck with the countenance er.
