Patrons are requested to read the above terms of this paper and decide whether or not they will accept them. If they are not satisfied with them they should notify us without delay, as we shall expect all to comply with them strictly.

There is ten or twelve inches of snow on the ground, and the thermometer, this morning, stood four degrees below zero.

Fisticuffs are quite common on the streets—it seems that differences cannot be settled in any other way.

The usual car deafening holiday serenades were abridged this season—much to the delight of quiet people.

Farmers and others should scatter food for the birds, or they will perish in this weather. Partridges should have special attention.

Salisbury has been favored with the presence of several cadets, during the holidays—they are always about "par" with the small girls.

Mr. Ed Russell, who some weeks ago, accidentally fractured the larger bone in his right leg, below the knee, is now able to go on crutches.

There has been but little sleighing, not because the young people do not enjoy this pleasure, but because the livery men refuse to run their stock. They can hardly be blamed.

Rev. L. W. Crawford, who was sent to this place by the last Methodist Conference, arrived last week, and occupied his pulpit last Sunday. He was welcomed by many friends.

There was a considerable affray—or, well call it a "picnic," on the streets on Christmas day. There was a large superfluity of intoxicating moisture which, with the aid of the congested air on the streets, caused several to lose equilibrium. No bloody damage.

Tom Belmont, colored, who was shot on last election day, died last Thursday. A coroner's jury rendered the verdict "death from pistol shot wound, said post-mortem discharged by M. A. Bennett." Mr. Bennett gave him up, and is now in custody.

The marriage of Mr. F. P. Harrel, to Miss Emma R. Owen, was celebrated in the First Presbyterian Church last Thursday evening. Rev. J. Rumpfle officiating. At the request of the bride, Miss Lillian Warner presided at the organ. She is considered the finest organist in the city, and she had assisted Prof. W. H. Neave on several occasions, he gladly responded to her call and played the flute in two Overtures—to Norma, Bolina; and to Marsanello, Auber, on this occasion.

There were two Christmas Trees in the city last Friday evening. One in the Lutheran, and one in the Presbyterian church. Both were successes. Prof. W. H. Neave very kindly directed and managed the music at the Presbyterian church. Lucia de Lammernoor, Rossini and Danisetti, Dummett, Trombone and Cornet, besides several Hyms arranged for brass quartet, with fine organ accompaniments. The private presents at both trees were very handsome.

The colored people enter into the festivities of the season with a determination that nothing—not even money—can persuade them to forego. It is almost impossible to get one to do an hour's chopping. Some of them prepare for weeks ahead, and at the proper time inform their employers that they need not expect them at such and such a time; "for boss you know I got to have christmases, and I s'pec I'll be drunk dat day." As a rule they are.

Messrs. D. A. Baker and James B. Woods, two of our steady business young men, will open a Hardware Store in Statesville, on the 1st of January, 1881. We regret very much to lose these young men, but feel assured, that they will succeed in their new undertaking. They will be missed here in several circles; social, musical and business. We commend them to the citizens of Statesville.

AMONG THE YOUNG FOLKS.—On Monday evening a party was given to Charles Swiggood, by his parents.

On Tuesday evening Capt. Wm. Brown gave a party to Miss Gowan.

There was a social gathering at the residence of Mr. S. H. Wiley, Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Samuel McCubbins gave a large party to their friends. This was the most elaborate and elegant affair of the season, and was enjoyed very much by the sixteen couples of invited guests, who pronounced it charming and elegant throughout, from the kindly greeting of the generous host and amiable hostess, to the close of the superb feast, so lavishly spread.

PRaisEWORTHY.—Some benevolent citizens have arranged to have five flat car loads of fire wood brought down the Western Road for the relief of the poor and destitute.

SAD.—During the year just now closing, Mr. Robinson, of the Winston Ledger, has lost by death two children, and recently, his wife. He is now alone—his loved ones all gone. We tender him our heartfelt sympathy in his grief.

ATTENTION SURVIVORS of Rowan county Troops in the late Confederate Army are requested to call on Mr. C. R. Barker, at the Drug Store in Salisbury, and see whether their names are upon the "Roll of Honor." As this "Roll" will soon be published, and is now defective, it is desired that each survivor should see that his own name, and the names of deceased friends are enrolled.

The evils of intemperance are daily made manifest in Salisbury. Cannot something be done to abate this evil? It is growing from bad to worse—old men, young men, boys—yes even boys—are seen reeling on the streets! Cannot the Legislature do something? Can they, in the face of these alarming facts, meet and adjourn without making an effort for the morals and lives of the citizens, not only of this county, but of the State. It seems hardly possible that they can.

REVISED CENSUS.—Through the exertions of Mr. Frank Brown, John Henderson, Esq., and perhaps others, Superintendent Walker, telegraphed Dr. W. A. Wilborn, enumerator for Salisbury township, that he would receive an additional report up to 28th inst. The enumerator, therefore, went to work with praiseworthy diligence, and succeeded in getting forty-eight additional names, principally of colored people, who had been unavoidably missed in the first enumeration on account of absence at the time, having no regular sleeping place, &c. The report has been sent in, and will probably secure to Rowan the retention of two members of the lower House of the Legislature as at present.

MISS GRAY'S ENTERTAINMENT.—It will be seen by an advertisement in this paper, that one of the famous theatricals of the country will play at the Opera House next week. The Cincinnati Commercial speaks thus of the distinguished lady in this company: "Miss Gray was magnificent as Lucretia Borgia; a part of her grand voice and physique peculiarly fits her for. Her costumes in this were particularly elegant, and especially in the one of black velvet, with black lace and jet coronet; she made a picture as she parted the crimson curtains at the back of the stage and stood before the company of roistering young cavaliers, triumphant, revengeful woman, calculated to stay long in the memories of those who saw her. For a portrayal of malignity, relentless hatred, as given in her scene with the Duke when Genaro is momentarily expected, we have never seen her surpassed."

For the Watchman. Mr. Editor: In reply to your correspondent, Inexplicable: I say that if the wagons, plows, cutters and grindstones alluded to have done him or any other sober citizen a damage, in the name of all the Hostlers men of the community, I most respectfully beg pardon. If in hitting our wares or implements, we have violated any law or ordinance, we are ready to submit to the decisions of the powers that be. If, however, your worthy correspondent or others have come in contact with the articles above named because he or they were in a state of intoxication, such persons are alone to blame and not us.

I have seen dry goods agricultural implements, Buggies &c., &c., on the sidewalks of Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York; and custom if not law sanctioned and encouraged such exhibitions. If so, why should such displays be prohibited in Salisbury. Without egotism, I claim that the Hardware merchants of this town have done as much to retain and improve the business of the place as any other dealers and ask for their protection by the authority and as much enforcement by a generous public as are given by the citizens of larger places and more densely populated cities.

Very Respectfully, Dec. 27th, 1880. R. R. CRAWFORD.

A Kentucky Tragedy. LOUISVILLE, December 23.—A dispatch from Elizabethtown says: The neighborhood of Howe's Valley, fifteen miles from here, is the scene of the wildest excitement on account of a terrible tragedy enacted there Tuesday. David J. Carter, an old and respectable citizen, and Budd Harrington, also a highly respected citizen, both farmers in good circumstances, the former about 55 years of age, and the latter about 35, had a law suit, which was heard Tuesday. After the hearing they quarreled, and Harrington drew a pistol and shot Carter, the ball entering his mouth and coming out of the back of his neck. Young Carter, a son of the wounded man, ran home and returned in a few minutes with a double barreled shot gun—both barrels of which he discharged into the body of Harrington, apparently killing him instantly. He fell, seemingly lifeless, and lay perfectly still where he had fallen, but old man Carter secured Smith's sledge hammer lying near, and walking up to the remains, deliberately crushed the head of his victim, and then fell over him, apparently in a dying condition.

An American largely interested in flour mills in the United States has been inspecting Hungarian mills with a view to adopting the machinery and system of working in America. The Hungarians have sent a commission to America to study operations there in order to be able to resist American competition in the Austrian markets.

ROWAN COUNTY.

BY J. N. FOLK-LORE.

The population of Rowan county, it has been truthfully said, was made up of almost all the nations of Europe. There were English, Scotch-Irish, the French, and the Germans from the upper and lower Rhine, the Palatines and Hessians, with now and then a Switzer or Italian. These brought their own peculiar habits, prejudices, and national superstitions. And when these were all mingled together, and supplemented by the belief in spells, charms, and fetiches of the African race, there was a little. Let us catch a glimpse of the superstitions of the past, before it vanishes forever, of this undercurrent of POPULAR SUPERSTITION as it existed a few generations ago, and may still exist in certain localities in Rowan county. It is but the reiteration of a well known historical fact, when we assert that all nations and peoples have had their superstitions and practices. And it is no discredit to the inhabitants of Rowan to say that they shared with their contemporaries in the popular superstitions of the day. Prominent among these was the BELIEF IN WITCHES.

No man was ever burnt in Rowan county for witchcraft, as they were in some countries, either to the superior charity of the people, or to the fact that the "dark" or "light" of the moon. The Salem Almanac was and is an institution that no prudent believer in the signs would think of dispensing with. Corn, potatoes, turnips and beans, in fact everything must be planted when the stars are right, in the head, or the feet, or the heart, or the lungs, or in Aquarius or Pisces, in Gemini or Cancer, according as large vegetables or many vegetables are desired. Beans are to be cut, and fence foundations laid exactly in the right sign, or success is not expected. In fact attention to the signs frequently superseded proper method of cultivation, and the probably due much to retard agricultural progress.

There is a charm in the mysterious that fascinates the untutored mind, and many would rather be skillful in discerning the signs than prudent in bestowing productive labor. It would be an endless task to enumerate all the superstitions that have floated through the popular mind, and that have been the theme of serious conversation and meditation among the people, in the century and a half that has passed since this region was peopled. With many of these superstitions have been but a fancy, a curious theme of discussion, not seriously believed. But others have been the slaves of these unformed notions, and have been made miserable by the howling of a dog, or the ticking of a watch in the wall. As the light of education and the glow of science diffused, this slavery has passed away, and there are probably few to-day who are willing to confess their belief in the notions that still linger in their minds as traditions of their fathers.

MARRIED. In the first Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, C. C., Dec. 23rd, 1880, by the Rev. Jethro Ramsey, the Rev. Frank P. Harrell Pastor of Emma R. Owen, eldest daughter of Prof. A. W. Owen, of Salisbury.

"Not for the summer's hour alone, When skies resplendent shine, And youth and pleasure fill the throne, Our hearts and hands we join; But for a love without end, 'Tis this vow of love we take."

The above it will be perceived, was a double wedding. The brides were Miss Harris and the charming daughters of Mrs. Julia Graham. The young couples have had very gracious and delightful entertainments by their friends, and enter upon their new life amid cheering smiles and joy.

It was believed that if witch-rabbits suck the cows it would cause them to give bloody milk. The remedy for this was to milk the cow through a knot hole of a piece of rich pine plank, and the reader may have seen, as the writer has, such pieces of plank with a knot hole in them, hanging up on a side the kitchen, and ready for use as they are. In those days a worn horseshoe nailed over the door was regarded as a spell against witch power, and the cause of good luck. At present it has become the fashion to form many ornaments after the horseshoe pattern as a symbol of good luck. Some persons believed that if a rabbit ran across the road from the right to the left hand, it foreboded bad luck, but if from left to right, good luck. To catch the first glimpse of the new moon through the branches of the trees was a token of trouble during the next month, but if seen in the open sky the first time it was the harbinger of a prosperous month. For a funeral procession to stop before getting off the premises or plantation was a sign that another funeral would soon take place from the same house. But the great embodiment of signs was the moon, and in many families scarcely anything of importance was undertaken without first inquiring whether it would be in the "dark" or the "light" of the moon. The Salem Almanac was and is an institution that no prudent believer in the signs would think of dispensing with. Corn, potatoes, turnips and beans, in fact everything must be planted when the stars are right, in the head, or the feet, or the heart, or the lungs, or in Aquarius or Pisces, in Gemini or Cancer, according as large vegetables or many vegetables are desired.
