Col. J. M. McCorkle, of Salisbury, is reported in the New York Tribune, (re- Times, in a review of the prohibition published in the Raleigh News and Observer of April 6th,) as having made some most extraordinary-astounding-statements in regard to political matters in North Carolina. The Raleigh Observer er or not the Tribune's report is correct Our own opinion is that Mr. McCorkle did not make the statements reported. or if he did, he was thinking about something else while talking at random to entertain his interviewer. We will advert to this subject in our next.

Senator Bayard, has written a letter te member of the Delaware Legislature in which he expresses opposition to a prohibitory liquor law, and to local option laws. He believes a heense system well guarged by checks rigidly enforced will do more to correct the abusive use of liquor than the extreme remedies referred to. The public have a high regard for Mr. Bayard as a conscientious and intelligent man, and many will differ with him on this subject frem convictions equally as strong as those which being asked.

Necessity Knows No Law.

Repudiation is the special horror of the Republican party. That party is controlled by capitalists, and always sympathizes with the creditor class. It looks with indignamoved him to give his opinion without tion and disgust on any movement, State or National, which tends directly or indirectly to depress the selling price of bonds. In the face of a record of this sort it is surprising to see the Republican party in the United Beaver, A. A. States Senate backing up Senator Mahone, and putting Mr. Riddleberger, one of the principal advocates of Readjustment in Virginia, on their ticket for Sergeant at Arms. Senator Johnson, of Virginia, on the 25th put the issue squarely when he demonstrated that the placing of Mr. Riddleberger high in official position would be in effect smith, Jef. the endorsement of the readjuster pregramme. Senator Logan made a feeble attempt to parry the force of Senator Johnson's thrust by asking whether the election of an ex-confederate officer by the Republicans would be an endorsement of rebellion. but Senator Johnson replied that secession was a dead issue long since settled, whereas the payment of debts was a living issue It is without doubt a bitter pill for the Republicans to swallow Mahone, who is an ex-confederate brigadier, a former democrat, a readjuster, and has not professed repentance for any of his heresies.
