"BURIED ALIVE."-At least once a year some one attempts to horrify the public with the storry of a person buried alive. The N. Y. Observer has for years traced out the facts in such cases and has invariably found the stories with foundation.

Judge Merrimon says according to the letter of the law prohibition in this State is already a fixed fact, and that the only question to be decided in August is not whether or not the law shall stand, but whether punishment shall be inflicted for its violation after next October.

We invite attention to the circular, on first page of this paper, on the subject of building a monument to RICHARD CAS-WELL, the first Governor of North Carolina, and one of the most influential men in the early affairs of the State. The movement, though late, is eminently worthy, and one in which every lover of the State should take an active interest.

"Go home, you cussed fool," exclaimed an judignant parrot to a setter dog which had fastened his eyes upon her as she sat in a secure place; and the dog instantly dropped his tail and ears and struck a bee line across the fields for home.

Now, the question is, did Poll mean what she said and did the dog understand the words she spoke?

The Raleigh News relaates the horrible particulars of the death of Frank Dorsy, a negro boy in the employ of the Bibb Manufacturing Company. He was instantly scalded to death by the explosion of a steam pipe at 90 lbs. pressure. His body was blown into the pit of the fly wheel, and when it was attempted to lift him out, the skin of his arm slipped off like a glove.

New Iron.-We learn that the proprietors of the Western N. C. R. R. are putting down new rails where needed, and otherwise repairing the road in more than an ordinarily thorough manner.
