What he did at Nigit.

'Tell me how a young man spends his evenings, and I will tell you how he will spend his life.' It is a wise saying, for the leisure hours of a young man are his daugerous hours, and make or mar his character for life.

Toward the close of the last century a boy was apprenticed to a tobacconist in New York City. He did nots know how to read, or write, or cipher. Neither his occupants nor his associates favored his purpose; but he determined to learn what some one had wittily called the three R's

- reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic. After working twelve hours, he spent his evenings, no', as his fellowapprentices did in amusements, but in studying the spelling book, and arithmetic, and in copying letters and syllables and words.

In a year or two he became proficient in these elements of an education. Then he began the study of French. When he could read in that language, he took up German. His father was a Frenchman and his mother a German, a fact which, doubtless, languages.

In three or four years he found himself able to read English, Freuch and German, but without books and no money to buy them. He had, however, two brothers who also were tobacconists. He worked for them at night, after working all day for his own "boss."

From the small wages they paid him 'he saved up enough money to purchase a few books. Then he gave up night-work and read his new books. When he had mastered them he resumed his work at his brother's shop, and Loight more books.

When he became Jacob Lorillard, the millionaire, these books occupied the place of honor in his library. For Tommy. they were the memorials of his early ambition and industry.

Administrators, executors, commissioners, sherifis, constables, agents, &c., are advised to call on us for printed sale notices. It is certainly great injustice to owners to put up their property at public auction without first giving ample notice of the sale. The requirements of the law on the subject every body knows are insufficient. Property is often sacrificed from this cause when a dollar or two spent in advertising might have saved it and made it bring its value. We furnish sale notices promptly and cheap.
