The investigation of the Sixth North Carolina collection district is not desired by many at the Treasury Department, because it will result, it is alleged, in developments in regard to the Chicago Convention and the means resorted to to send anti-Grant delegates there from North Carolina, that will not tend, to saying the least of it, to party harmony.

In the meantime Governor Vance and Congressman Armfield are constantly receiving information in regard to the matter which will not, when it comes out in the investigation, help Republicanism in their

A SAD PICTURE.—The Indianapelis (Ind.) Sentinel says a sad : picture was presented one morning last week on one of the roads leading into that city. A wagon on its way to the insane asylum contained a woman of unsound mind, In her arms pressed to her bosom, was the lifeless body of an infant. Three other little ones, whose destiny was the poorhouse, were crouched in the wagon, shivering and cold. By the woman's side sat her husband with his head bowed in sorrow. A pair of handcuffs were locked around his wrists. The family of six was to be separated, perhaps forever. Their destinations were the asylum, the poorhouse, the jail and the grave. The mother, it is understood, would not consent to her removal unless she could take her dead child along. The father's crime was not found out.
