Old fashioned remedies are rapidly giving ground before the advance of this conquering medicine, and old fashioned ideas are regarded as depletion, as a means of cure, have been quite exploded by the success of the great renovator which tones the system, tranquillizes the nerves, neutralizes malaria, dehydrates and enriches the blood, raises the liver when dormant, and promotes a regular habit of body.

Funeral.

There was a young man named Price
And the Radicals thought him nice,
But Haden Tyler
Busted his billy,
And laid him out cold as ice.

There was an old man named Dockery,
Who was going to smash all the crockery
But Bennett appeared,
And the horns got scared,
Which made him a subject of mockery.

There was a young man named Mott,
Who thought he'd fixed things to a dot,
But Octavius Coke
Took a hand in the poke,
And everlastingly raked in the pot.

There was a young man named Moore,
Who thought he'd get somebody's gore,
But there came along Fred,
Who laid him out dead,
And Johnny is exceedingly sore.

There was an old statesman named Leach
Who made a full three hours speech
About Mott and his crew,
And the whole revenue,
But since Tuesday he's not given a screech.

How sweet the word
How soothing is its sound
Like strains of far off music heard
On some enchanted ground.

We will meet again; thus friendship
speaks,
When those most dear depart,
And in the pleasing prospect seeks
A balm for the bleeding heart.

We will meet again; the lover cries,
And, oh! what thought but this
Can ever soothe the agonies,
Of the last parting kiss.

We will meet again; are accents heard,
Beside the dying bed,
When all the soul by grief is stirred
And bitter tears are shed.

We will meet again; are words that cheer
While bending o'er the tomb:
For oh! that hope so bright and dear,
Can pierce its deepest gloom.

We will meet again; then cease to weep,
Whatever may us divide:
Nor time nor death can always keep
The loved ones from our side.

For in the mansions of the blest,
Secure from care and pain,
In heaven's serene and endless rest,
We will securely meet again.

Charlotte Journal.

Bennett's Majority 347.
RALEIGH, NOV. 17.—The official returns from Hyde county give Bennett a majority of one hundred and twenty-eight.

THE ROBBINS-YORK CONTEST.
There was much inquiry on the streets yesterday for confirmation of the telegram from Newton in yesterday's Journal which gave some hope of Robbins' election to Congress from the Seventh district. Nothing, however, was heard to confirm it and a telegram from Statesville says that nothing had been heard from Ashe which would warrant the assertion that Robbins was elected by seven.

HOKE SECRET'S WHEREABOUTS.
The Monroe Enquirer and Express says that Sheriff Price went down to Lanesboro on Tuesday to compare the vote of Anson and Union for State Senator, and while there learned that a man who, from the description given of him, he is satisfied is none other than Hoke Secrest, the escaped insane wife-murderer, was in that section, and had been seen and talked with by a number of persons both white and colored.

RETURN OF THE BICYCLISTS.
The bicycle club returned yesterday afternoon. They had a royal time, they say, and were treated magnificently by the hospitable Columbians. Mr. Thornwell Gilmer, the champion who won both races, was greeted with cordial congratulations yesterday afternoon by his friends in the city.

DEFEAT OF ROBBINS.—We are sincerely sorry to record the defeat of Hon. Wm. M. Robbins for Congress in the seventh district. Boss Mott expended all his energies and a liberal supply of "soap" to effect this result, and the people of North Carolina are thus deprived of the services of an able, experienced, and faithful Representative by the baleful influence of the Internal Revenue machine—that insidious and dangerous element, which, having been introduced into our political system, threatens to poison it. Each case of this kind furnishes an additional argument for the abolition of the Internal Revenue system. Let it be wiped out.—Char. Journal.

THE DEMOCRACY OF FORSYTH protested vigorously against the nomination of Maj. Robbins for Congress in this district, and used all honorable means to defeat him in the district convention, but unsuccessfully. After his nomination they came up to the full measure of their duty, and gave their best efforts to secure his election, and the majority he received in Forsyth of 209 over all, and of 916 over York abundantly testifies that there is no truer democrat in the State than that of Forsyth, and whether fighting for the man of their preference or not, if he is the nominee of their party, he can rest assured that he has their zealous support and will poll their full strength.—Winston Sentinel.

A bulletin recently issued by the Commissioner of the Census gives the relative value as fuel of fifty-five varieties of wood. The results which are presented were arrived at, it is said, by the most carefully conducted experiments, the calculations being made on dried specimens dressed to a uniform size. Mountain mahogany heads the list; and it is noteworthy that this is the only tree growing in the United States the specific gravity of which is greater than that of water.

The cotton crop of this year is estimated by some of the papers as high as 7,000,000 bales.

won in 2081 with J. C. Weaver close behind. The boys are enthusiastic over Columbia and the fair.

New York, Nov. 16.—Application was yesterday made to the Attorney General for the commencement of an action by the people of the State of New York against the Mutual Union Telegraph Company to vacate its charter and dissolve the corporation upon the grounds: first, the company has unlawfully issued $10,000,000 of capital stock, when by law it was only authorized to issue $1,200,000; second, that about $5,000,000 of bonds of the company have been issued in payment for construction and equipment of lines of telegraph worth about $3,500,000 and substantially the whole of the $10,000,000 of stock has been fraudulently issued in connection therewith, without any payment or adequate consideration to the company. The application is made by Wm. Hendry Cameron, stockholder in the company, and with it is filed a farther application, made by Jay Gould, stating that he is informed of these proceedings, and he desires to be joined as relator in such action as may be brought, the Attorney General has issued a citation, directing the company to show cause on Tuesday next why the application should not be granted and proceedings commenced.—Char. Journal.

Opinions of the New York Press.
The N. Y. Herald says that if the President will be a good boy he shall have a nice rocking horse.

The N. Y. Tribune says the people voted the Democratic ticket in New York to show their devotion to the Republican party.

The New York Times says the President's main fault is in being acquainted with anybody besides George Jones.

The N. Y. Sun and World exult like good square Democrats.

A white Congressman.
A black Congressman.
A brindle-tail Congressman, makes up the Republican representation from North Carolina in the 48th Congress.—Winston Sentinel.

Dr. York was a Democrat, and is elected by Democratic votes, and he cannot afford when he gets to Congress to go back on his life long Democratic record, and the Democrats who supported him.—Sentinel.

THE RICHMOND STATE thus speaks of the manner in which Billy Mahone's men illustrated their idea of a free ballot and a fair count in Virginia: Mahone attempted to catch the North with the cry of "a free ballot and a fair count." The Mahoneites made a mockery of the sentiment Tuesday. Colored men were herded together like cattle, and with worthless slips of paper, representing nothing save perjury and fraud, were allowed to stuff ballot boxes in the black districts, while in precincts where the white majority was overwhelming, paid agents of Mahone, by arresting judges, succeeded in barring hundreds of white men from the exercise of their suffrage rights. This is a free ballot and a fair count.

There is genuine chalk in North Carolina. Very nice specimens have been found in Moore and Chatham counties. In Moore as good a specimen of ("slate") chalk has been found as England can produce. There is plenty of chalk, the result of sediment, for the sea evidently covered vast sections of North Carolina at one time. If not, how do you account for the vast marl-pits? If not, how do you account for the Fishing Creek (Halifax county) backbone of a whale, now exposed for ninety feet and supposed by Professor Kerr to be 110 feet long? It is at least 120 miles from the ocean. In the same county there was an under jawbone of a whale, now in the State Geological Cabinet. This was taken from a ravine less than a mile from Halifax town, and some seventy feet below the ordinary surrounding surface. In Pender there is good chalk that may be seen at the Produce Exchange.—Star.

Owing to a split among the Democrats in Maryland, it is said that five Republican Judges were elected in that State on the 7th.

North Carolina as a Fruit State.

North Carolina ought to be the greatest fruit State in the Union. There is no State that possesses the same remarkable combination of advantages. When nature provides, it is a good rule to follow nature. The early settlers of North Carolina found the best grapes in the world growing luxuriantly in the Albemarle region. The best known American grapes are indigenous to North Carolina. The Catawba, the Isabella, the Scuppernon and other famous grapes all belong to North Carolina as their natal soil. The pear can be grown to perfection equal to those of France. We have known one fruit grower in Caswell county—not seven miles from the Northern border, to have two hundred varieties of pear. More than twenty years ago we knew a distinguished physician of Granville county to have twenty-five varieties of the same fruit, and some of them were positively more delicious than any we have ever eaten.

It is well known that when the World's Fair met in New York some quarter of a century ago, that the two highest premiums for apples were awarded to two North Carolina pomologists. We think that some of our fruiters made a very favorable showing at the Philadelphia Centennial, but we have forgotten the particulars. We cite these instances of success to justify the remark made at the outset that North Carolina ought to be the greatest fruit State in the Union.

It will be remembered that Col. Wharton J. Green and the vineyard near Kittrell's, Vance county, bore off the premiums at the Atlanta Industrial Exposition of last year, for the finest native wines. There are some half dozen or possibly a dozen vineyards of some considerable extent in the State now, but there ought to be a thousand. Why shall there not be? Surely, in a State where the grapes grow in the utmost perfection and luxuriance there should be no limitation to the production of that exquisite fruit if the people so will it.

We are reminded of these things by the dispatch from Greensboro of the 9th inst., giving an account of the very successful Fruit Growers Fair. We hail this as the beginning of a positive revival in the fruit producing industry. We hope that this Fair will so stimulate the production of fruits of all kinds that North Carolina will become actually, and not a decade hence—the greatest State in the sisterhood for production of the finest, sweetest, largest, most perfect fruit, including the pear, the grape, the peach, the apple, the apricot, the cherry, the raspberry, and so on.—Wilmington Star.

Ex-Congressman Bill Slemmons tells of a pair of feet that must have been objects of great regard in their day. One day a party of men, including Jackson, the man of big feet, were preparing to attend a political barbecue. It was soon discovered that there was no way of conveying Jackson, as all the vehicles were full. "Let me ride that mule over there," asked Jackson.

"There isn't a man in the world that can ride that animal. He'll work to a buggy or plow but no man can stay on his back."

"I'll try him anyway" and the determined man instructed several negroes to catch the mule and hold him. The animal plunged and kicked, but finally Jackson secured a seat in the saddle. Every one expected to see him dashed against the ground, but the mule looked around, saw the man's feet, and walked peacefully away. He thought he was between a pair of shafts.—Arkansas Traveler.

The Aryan Order of America.

It having been reported that an organization called the Aryan Order of America had been established for the purpose of founding an aristocracy in this country, based upon descent from distinguished men of the Colonial and Revolutionary period, and that Alexander P. Stewart, of Mississippi, had been elected Provost-General of it, several leading papers, and among them the New York Sun, very properly criticized the movement. We were particularly struck with the latter journal's essay, setting forth the reasons why no recognized aristocracy was possible here. It treated the subject, not with the usual ridicule and abuse, but philosophically. Unfortunately, however, for the papers that have been commenting on the movement, Gen. Stewart has written a letter to the Memphis Appeal, in which he knocks the bottom out of the whole business, so far as his connection with it is concerned. His letter is as follows:

"My attention has just been called to an editorial in your issue of the 6th, condemnatory of the Aryan Order of America, of which Gen. A. P. Stewart, president of the University of Mississippi, is provost-general, and which has just been in session in Baltimore. Permit me to say through your columns that I did not know anything of this session in Baltimore, was not present, and never authorized anyone to announce me as 'provost-general.' I am not responsible for the existence of the order, nor have I seen any public announcement of its aims, except that which is contained in your editorial. Let me assure you that I am not an aristocrat, but a Democrat; that I have no wealth to transmit to my descendants; am not in sympathy with monopolies, and should go more serious danger ever threaten the republic than may grow out of any course of action or teaching of mine, it will stand forever."

A Reminder.
The death of Geo. W. Burgess, at Norristown, Pa., last Sunday, has reminded older persons of the tremendous strides which have been made in the arts of civilization within the past fifty years. Mr. Burgess was the first man in America who made friction matches. He commenced their manufacture in 1831 in the city of New York, and shortly afterward failed. He subsequently engaged in various pursuits in other cities, and at the time of his death was 78 years old. His last invention was an improved form of match for setting off rockets, which has since been adopted by the U. S. Signal Service.

Flint and steel are to us now in the same category with powdered hair, knee-breeches and other appliances of an age which seems long past, and yet the death of this man reminds us that it has not been so very long after all, since the traveler who would light his pipe had to carry flint and steel, and the house-keeper who would cook an early breakfast had to keep the coals smothered with ashes all night, or borrow "a chunk of fire" from a neighbor. It is hard to realize the progress of the age.—Charlotte Journal.
