What Killed Gambetta.

Died from the Bullet of a Woman.

Paris Special to N. Y. Times.

Throughout his illness his friends have sought to conceal the gravity of the situation, and above all the agency of a woman in the tragedy. Nevertheless, no doubt is permissible that the shot which directly or indirectly caused his death was fired by a lady who is well known in Paris, and whose pseudonym, Leonie Leon, conceals the patronymic of one of the most honorable Israelitic families of Bordenax. She left her husband, the Councillor-General of the Gironde Department, to follow the fortunes of the man by whose eloquence in the Baudin subscription and trial she was completely fascinated, and united with him in 1868, she deserted her family. Their connection has lasted ever since. He was impatient of the chain he could not break, especially as a child was born the succeeding year, whose paternity he refused to acknowledge. These refusals caused scenes of recrimination and often of positive violence between the lovers. The man wringed of the connection, and the woman clung devotedly to him for whom she had sacrificed her honor. Gambetta disliked the child, who was sickly, but intelligent, and lived as his nephew. He resembled Gambetta in character and features. Two years ago Leonie's husband died, and she summoned Gambetta to fulfill his promise of marriage, but received another refusal. He made an agreement, however, to provide for young Leon, on the condition that he should be educated in Germany. The mother hesitated, but finally consented, and accompanied the child and his father to Dresden. The connection was continued after their return, Leonie going every Saturday afternoon to his villa, where she was accepted as mistress by the servants and returning Monday morning in his carriage. Within a week three discharged domestics revealed the mysteries of the ill-starred establishment. Finally the dissensions culminated in the scene of the unhappy pistol shot. Gambetta lost his temper, giving vent to abuse and coarse language, such as he was wont to employ in moments of passion. She was exasperated, seized a revolver, and fired. He raised his hand to turn aside the weapon and received his death wound. Everything else is conjecture; none but they know the truth, and Gambetta died, yet made no sign. I can vouch for the authenticity of this version of the unhappy story, and I assume the entire responsibility for it, no matter how different it may be from the others which may obtain publicity.

The Federal House has passed an important bill, one of whose selection reads as follows:

"That the Circuit Courts of the United States shall not take original cognizance of any suit of a civil nature, either at common law or in equity, between a corporation created or organized by or under the laws of any State, and a citizen of any State in which such corporation at the time the cause of action accrued may have been carrying on any business authorized by the law creating it, except in cases arising under the patent or copyright laws and in like cases in which said courts are authorized by this act to take original cognizance of suits between citizens of the same State; nor shall any such suit between such a corporation and a citizen, or citizens, of a State in which it may be doing business, be removed to any Circuit Court of the United States, except in like cases in which such removal is authorized by the foregoing provision in suits between citizens of the same State."

The effect of the section is to check the Federal courts in drawing to that forum suits between foreign corporations and citizens of the several States. This law became necessary particularly because of an important decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, according to a corporation the same standing in the Federal courts as citizens of the States granting the charter of the incorporation.

SENATOR FROM WEST VIRGINIA.—Hon. John E. Kenna, the newly elected Senator from West Virginia, is one of the youngest men ever elected to that office having been born on the 10th of April 1848, and being therefore, not yet 35 years old. He is the son of an Irish father and a Virginia mother. His father died when his son was only eight years old, and after his death the widow moved with the little boy and two younger sisters to Missouri, where John, at 11 years of age, began farming. When the war broke out they returned to Virginia, and John, young as he was, entered the army and served throughout the war, suffering with the army at Shreveport. He was badly wounded. After the war he read law and was a successful practitioner for several years, until elected to the House of Representatives, in which body he has served with distinction for three terms. He is a man of decided character and ability and will make his mark as a Senator if he lives.—Char. Journal.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 3.—J. D. Taylor Republican, has been elected to fill the vacancy in the 47th and 48th Congress, caused by the death of J. F. Updegraff, of the 17th Ohio district, over Ross J. Alexander, Democrat, by a majority of 1,800 to 2,000. Large Republican gains are reported in all the counties.

Woman's Power.

The mother's solicitude, the wife's patience and anxiety, the sister's love, have proved in nine cases out of ten, the strong cord that pulled at the heart of the wanderer, till son, or husband, or brother could no longer bear the strain, and loosened it by coming nearer and nearer home. Some woman's hand holds the key, unconsciously and carelessly perhaps, but holds it to almost every man's heart, and the closed doors will be unbarred to her, and yield to her touch when no other power will stir them on their rusty hinges. Let any woman who finds herself thus inside beware how she works! In clearing out the darkened chambers so that God's light can enter, let her work with such skillful touches of prayer and tenderness as shall do something better than stir, like an unskilful servant, all of the dust only to see it settle thicker in another place. It is no light work, this leading of human souls, and any woman who undertakes it needs to bring to it all there is of her. She will need all her knowledge of God, and perhaps never discover how little she possesses till she tries to open it for another soul to measure her treasure. She will need her knowledge of people, her discrimination of character, her intuitive discernments of mental conditions, and her sympathetic perception of feeling. All the brightest and best that she can command is not too good nor too fair to be used in the saving of what is best and fairest in others.

Horrible Deed of an Insane Mother.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 23.—At noon to-day the wife of John Zimbrick, a laborer living in 18th street, killed her three children, the oldest of whom was 7 years of age the youngest 18 months, in a most brutal manner, literally cutting them to pieces and disemboweling them. The attention of the neighbors was attracted to the scene by the woman's attempt to hang herself in an outhouse. They cut her down and brought her to the house where the horrible spectacle was discovered. Mrs. Zimbrick was at once arrested, she took her arrest very calmly stating that she had read in the good book that it was right to sacrifice children. She is doubtless suffering from religious insanity.

HOW TO BE YOUNG AT EIGHTY.—Rev. Robert Collyer, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, New York, delivered an interesting sermon Sunday on "How to be Young at Eighty." Among other things he said: "One of the first essentials for an old age like this is a strong and healthy constitution, and this in a great measure depends upon a man's early home and training. For sixty years I have never been ill a day, and I attribute all my health to the good foundation laid in my childhood's home; oatmeal and milk, bread and potatoes, a bit of meat when we could catch it, and a plenty of pure air and exercise did the business. I do not know what a constitution or a digestion is. I came from a country where beer is as common a drink as water, but I never used strong drink of any description, for I found it was well enough without it, and that it might end by becoming my tyrant. So I let it alone."

A WRONG FOOT SNEEZE.—In a certain printing office in this city there is a compositor who is deaf and dumb. In the same printing office there are two other compositors who are endowed with the power of evolving tremendous sneezes when the spirit tickles the nose. One of them is a little short, chubby fellow, with a round red face. The grandeur of his sneeze is so utterly disproportionate to the diminutive size of his body that his fellow printers refer to it as "a wrong foot sneeze." Neither of the two compositors who sneeze work in the same alley with the compositor who is deaf and dumb, and the cases between them are so arranged that he cannot see either of them. Nevertheless, whenever either of them sneezes he always jumps as though a cannon ball were fired under his ear. The question for the scientist is, how does he know just when to jump.—Boston Post.

GENTLE PAUPERISM.—The Republican leaders now argue that our domestic manufacturers cannot live, and that even certain growers of sugar, lemons, oranges and peapants in the South cannot live unless poor rates are doled out to them out of the earnings and savings of every man woman and child in the land. As Mr. Belmont so clearly put the case in his speeches during the canvass, what would be the difference in principle between legislation to compel this and legislation authorizing the Federal Government to pay these poor rates in cash out of the Treasury to those sturdy beggars!

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 3.—J. D. Taylor Republican, has been elected to fill the vacancy in the 47th and 48th Congress, caused by the death of J. F. Updegraff, of the 17th Ohio district, over Ross J. Alexander, Democrat, by a majority of 1,800 to 2,000. Large Republican gains are reported in all the counties.

The Game of Draw.

Investigation has developed that the fascinating game of draw was invented somewhere about 1846 by a Mr. Kirkman, of Tennessee, a turfman of some note. The game of straight or plain poker, of course, dates further back. Draw may now be said to be the national game, and is, perhaps, doing more harm in a quiet and unnoticed way than dealing in any other species of gambling. Almost everybody knows a little something about the game, which appears simple enough and yet it has been gravely considered and adjudged that the very height of human wisdom is to know when to lay a hand down. Some years since a draw poker sharp, who ostensibly traveled for a Baltimore liquor and cigar house, and who claimed the startling and showy sobriquet of "Speckled Yellowhammer from North Carolina," exhibited to us and a couple of New York commercial tourists how four jacks could be drawn from a pack and held up a sleeve, for use during a secession of games. We contributed liberally for the information, and since then we have not been drawing much. To uninitiated, it may be said that they will not lose anything if they neglect to draw in this way. There are some rules about it entirely safe. Never play for money if you cannot conveniently afford to lose it. Don't play without you understand the game. The men are all dead who understand the game.—Marion Telegraph.

If you will look in the dictionary, or a cyclopedia you will find that a sardine is a small fish that comes from the coast of Virginia and the Mediterranean, but the dictionaries and cyclopedias are all wrong. Sardines come from Maine, and the proof of it is that a petition has been sent to Congress from that State protesting against any reduction of duty on them. Nineteen-tenths of the so-called sardines which are sold in our markets, yes, ninety-nine hundredths of them, are little fish caught on the coast of Maine and put up in cotton seed oil, and therefore this infant industry ought to be "protected."

Gov. Cleveland, of New York, is strengthening the good opinion already created by making excellent nominations. Mr. Shanahan, his nominee for Superintendent of Public Works, has been unanimously confirmed, and Mr. Dutcher, his Republican predecessor, says if the Governor had searched the State over he could not have found a man better suited for superintendent than Mr. Shanahan. The Governor's nominees for railroad commissioners have also been unanimously recommended for confirmation by the Senate committee, their high character and capacity being conceded by all.

The newspapers which sometimes flatter themselves with the belief that they affect legislation will have to abandon that conceit. Every paper in the State has been urging the passage of a "dog law," but the Legislature voted down such a proposition with the usual promptness. Do the people of North Carolina really desire to protect sheep husbandry, or not?—Char. Journal.

Aye, that is the question. If they do let them write to their representatives demanding it.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE tells the following, which shows that the age of genuine chivalry has not yet passed, even in the great commercial metropolis of the money-making United States:

A lady pulled the strap of a street car at a corner where there was a huge mud puddle. She looked at it appalled. She was not very young, nor especially beautiful, but out stepped a man from the car wearing No 10 shoes, and planted one in their square in the mud, and said: "There, ma'am step on that." After all there will be a heaven for men—some men.

It was thought the laboring classes had but few friends in Washington, but the following from the Post of that city tells a tale that may cause some to change their opinion. That paper says:

"That the poor are not without friends on the Ways and Means Committee is evidenced by the fact that diamonds are taxed only one ninth as much as blankets."

"Sarkasm" may be.—Wh. Star

The bill offered by Mr. Cox, of North Carolina, two or three days ago in regard to contested elections in the House of Representatives provides that in cases of contested elections the contestants shall be paid nothing unless the House shall declare that there were reasonable grounds for the contest, and that the pay shall be such as only to cover the necessary expense and not to exceed $2,000. It seems to us that the passage of this bill would be eminently judicious.—Charlotte Journal.

The Wilmington Review says that a man named Haywood, from Washington City, has been rumaging around the defunct ballot boxes at Wadesboro seeing if anything could be gotten that would be of service in Dockery's contest for Bennett's seat. And the Charlotte Journal remarks that Mr. H. J. Haywood, of Philadelphia, who registered himself at the hotel as being from Richmond, has been in that burg for several days, and that he is in the employment of the government, his business being to make inquiries and secure evidence in regard to election frauds in this State. We have no objection to Mr. Dockery's employing as many lawyers or agents as he may choose to get up facts for his case. But we do object to the United States government employing a Philadelphia lawyer or any one else to get up Dockery's case for him. And we protest that no public money ought to be paid out in this way for Dockery's benefit.

If it be unfairly stated and the man is not connected with Dockery's case, then we protest against the United States government sending a paid agent down here to do what the United District Attorneys ought to do. We cannot impute to the district attorneys such a reflection upon their own competency as that this fellow Haywood was sent here at their instance.

If the District Attorneys are incompetent, let them give place to better men; but pray do not give the world the spectacle of having a Philadelphia understrapper nosing around to do what the United States officials charged with the execution of the law are unable to do. In no aspect does it appear proper for the administration to be sending out paid men to look into North Carolina elections. It is only another subterfuge in order to make work and rob the treasury.—News-Observer.

That must have been a very amusing debate in the Massachusetts Legislature, last Monday on the resolution to print 10,000 extra copies of old Ben Butler's inaugural address. A Boston Democrat introduced the resolution and it completely demoralized the Radical brethren. A motion was made, by a Radical, to reduce the number to 2,000, and the ball then opened. The Democrats insisted that the people had not been sufficiently informed of its contents—that it was a remarkable indictment against the Radicals and that every Radical ought to have the privilege of reading the accusation against him. The Radicals opposed the resolution, some giving as a reason that it was a job put up so that if the legislature passed the resolution Butler could veto it and claim credit for economy! and others saying that it would be endorsing Butler's slanders of the State. The resolution passed.—Char. Journal.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—To be beard-eaten by the puny hands of a man places one in a delicate position, but to be rubbed around the chin by cold iron rods pulling and wrapping up whiskers with a 50-horse motive power, must be quite altogether embarrassing in the extreme. Well Mr. Wyatt Abernathy, of Lowell, Gaston county, was the other day engaged in training a lot of shafting in the mills of Rankin and Abernathy, of that place, and while drawing a sight on some point in the room, carelessly let his long chin whiskers fall upon a turning shaft. His beard was caught and drawn around the rod like wisp on a beam, until his chin came close to the cold iron. It so happened, however, that the fineness of his beard and the grease on the shaft combined to allow a slipping process. But for this, Mr. Abernathy's neck might have been broken before the machinery was stopped.—Char. Journal.

You may make an impression on genius with advice, but it takes a kick to influence a fool.—Whitehall Times.

The Texas Shiftings is greatly struck by the appropriateness of the name of a new Missouri weekly paper. It is called the Weekly Crisis, and the editor of the Shiftings says that it is what happens every Saturday night when the assets and liabilities are trotted out.

The Washington Post seems inclined to oppose liberal appropriations to the weather bureau. It says:

"We never have had such delightful winters as were enjoyed when the weather appropriation was diverted into other channels. Now that the money is all laid out for weather, we get too strong an article."
