

The following passage from Mr. Webster's celebrated reply to Mr. Hayne is now being quoted against the protectionists, and as the good-like Daniel was regarded in his day and for his chances as a "midnight fair" constitutional expounder, we think his opinions are entitled to almost as much respect as those of the average howler for the protection of our infant industries. Mr. Webster said: "I said them (1820) and said now, that as an original question, the authority of Congress to exercise the revenue power with direct reference to the protection of manufactures is a questionable authority, far more questionable, in my judgment, than the power of internal improvement."

Few experiences are more harsh than those growing out of misunderstanding. To be misjudged when one means well, to be caught in an eddy of public condemnation and whirled onward by an excited public, while attempting in all honesty to do the world a service, is enough to ruffle the spirit. It is comforting, therefore, to see a noble Christian man whose name has made the watchword for a crusade or here, moving on modestly, serenely as though no amount of abuse had chafed him.—Golden Rule.

A force of hands is to be at once placed on the line between that point and Pigeon River, brushing up the roadbed and getting ready for the iron.

The Elements of Success.
In nine cases out of ten a man's life will not be a success if he does not bear burdens in childhood. If the fondness or vanity of father or mother has kept him from hard work; if another always helped him out at the end of his row; if what was light always fell to him, and what was heavy to some one else; if he has been permitted to shirk until shirking has become a habit, his life will be a failure. On the other hand if a boy has been brought up to do his part, never allowed to shirk legitimate responsibility, or dodge work whether or not it made his head ache or soiled his hands, until bearing burdens has become his pride, the heavy end of the world his choice, the elements of success are his, and at some time, in some way, the world will recognize his capacity.—Zion's Watchman.

Entertaining a Burglar.
Miss Linda Gilbert is widely known as one who has given years to prison reform and has done much to render the condition of prisoners more tolerable. On Saturday night, December 9, Miss Gilbert was aroused by a noise in her room on the second floor of her house in West Forty-third street, New York. What followed she told in her own language to a Herald reporter:

"When I awoke," she said, "and realized what was happening, I thought almost with pleasure, 'Now I shall have a chance of watching one of my black sheep at his work.' He carefully lifted the window sash and stepped into my room, crouching down a little and looking stealthily toward the bed as he did so. A light was burning dimly in the next room, and as the folding doors were open, I had every opportunity for watching him. He did not seem to me to be an experienced burglar, for he made too much noise. He wore rubbers on his feet, but he had no tools or weapons with him so far as I could judge. The dressing case—that one right behind you—is close to the window, you see, and he got down on his knees in front of it, fumbled about the drawers a moment, and then he caught sight of my watch lying on top. I wear no jewelry, and the time piece is about all he could have found of value in the dressing case. I slid noiselessly out of bed, and just as his hand fell upon the watch, my own hand fell upon his shoulder. He drew back in surprise and dropped the watch. 'Hallo!' I said, 'don't you know that you are robbing one of your friends?' 'No,' he stammered, 'I don't know who you are.' 'Well, I'm Linda Gilbert.' 'Are you?' he asked, looking me then straight in the face. 'I have heard of you, but you never saw me in prison. I have never been in prison.' The reporter asked, 'Weren't you afraid of him, Miss Gilbert?' 'No; why should I be?' 'Not a little bit?' 'No; I am not afraid of the worst man in the world. He said to me, 'I must go; I haven't taken anything.' 'No, you must not go,' I replied; 'you must sit down a little while; I want to talk with you.' He sat down as a child might have done, and I declare he looked as pleased as a child when I offered to talk with him. I turned up the light and took a good look at him. He was a tall, thin man, with sandy hair; his clothes were scanty

THE MORAL OF IT.
'And now,' said Miss Gilbert, 'I don't know whether I am wise in telling the story or not. Some will condemn me, and say I am encouraging crime; but others will see that I have discovered the principle that ought to actuate the world in its treatment of the criminal classes. Most people are in favor of shooting burglars, but I'm not. I have heard of egyptians, even, who have shot burglars when their houses were entered, as if, when the Lord made Christians, he put guns in their hands to kill sinners with. Rich men who have been robbed will have no mercy on the robbers, not a moment's consideration for the causes which have led them into crime and and his hands looked like those of a working man. He seemed sickly, and said he was threatened with hemorrhage of the lungs. When he coughed I pushed the cuspidor toward him, and the next morning the chambermaid told me there was blood in it.

THE BURGALAR'S STORY.
'I asked the man a great variety of questions, and he answered them all without seeming evasion. He said his name was Robert White, that he had a wife and three children. His wife suffered with ague and his children were sickly. He had been on a strike, he said, and after that could get no work. His family were starving, and one day he had an opportunity to steal a watch. He did so, and had stolen two others since. He began to think it was his only way he had of living. It had been his intention, he said, to steal enough to take his family somewhere in the country. He could not support them in New York. My father occupied the room underneath this, and a brother of Mr. Theodore Thomas was in the house. I was afraid of awakening them, because my father is extremely nervous, and Mr. Thomas hates burglars and would either have shot this one or have had him arrested. My secretary, a lady, slept upstairs, and I called her. We went to the kitchen and filled a market basket with things to eat—two ducks that I had ordered for Sunday's dinner; some vegetables, bread, and so on. The basket I gave to the man, together with a five-dollar bill and some advice, and he went out by the front door with as glad a face as one could wish to see. When my father heard of it next day he was so excited that he left once for our country house. I tried to hunt up the man's family in Mulberry street but I couldn't find them. I presume we mistook the number he gave us.

Speculation in "Futures."
We live in an age in which the almighty dollar is deified, and love of money causes millions to worship at its burning altar. Speculation in "futures," whether of grain or of cotton, is nothing less than gambling reduced to a fine art. We are tempted to say it is an evil as gigantic and destructive of all virtuous principles as intemperance. It has engulfed the greatest minds in its black waves. It has entered the Church of God and "drowned in destruction and perdition" Sunday school superintendents, deacons, elders, and stewards. Yes, it has entered the pulpit and drawn into its seething vortex of ruin distinguished ministers—pastors who were mighty in storming the strongholds of the devil. Speculation in futures is driving men every day into suicide, into incurable insanity, and is reducing women and children to beggary and want. To a man who stands in the gallery and looks upon one of those bedlams where "futures" are bought and sold, the scene is more like a menagerie of wild beasts turned loose than like a company of intelligent human beings. Unless something is done to arouse public sentiment from its sleep of spiritual death, there is no telling how this demoralizing shall culminate. It is the pressing duty of pulpit and press and platform to hurl thunderbolts at this gigantic evil until a reaction shall set in. If these conspicuous and alarming examples of stealing which have brought disgrace and shame upon the fair reputations of Alabama and Tennessee, and which were the result of speculation in "futures," shall open the eyes of our Government to the evil of this refined form of gambling they will not have occurred in vain.

DEFERRED ITEMS.

The recent mysterious tragedy in Waretown, Mass., was the only murder ever committed within the limits of the town. The place was settled in 1630. A career of 250 years without a bloodstain is certainly a remarkable record.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 24.—James Graham, an old farmer, shot and killed R. T. Smith, a schoolmaster, near Alderson yesterday. Some time ago Graham suspected his young wife of intimacy with Smith, and shortly after that the school house was burned down. Finding that Smith failed to leave when out of school but still had interviews with his wife, Graham took his gun and compelled him to take the train and leave, and afterwards hearing that Smith would return, Graham posted notices up in the neighborhood warning him if he valued his life not to come back to his house any more, and when talking of the way his wife treated him to his friends, would cry like a child.

This kept Smith away until yesterday morning, when he returned and attempted to enter Graham's house, when the latter came out with a shot-gun, and as he stepped up to the porch, shot him down. The gun was loaded with rifle balls and small shot, some eight or ten of which took effect in Smith's neck and breast.
About thirty years ago Graham was prosecuted in the Circuit Court of Monroe County for killing his sister with dogs but was acquitted.—1f

A New Plan for Keeping Roads.
(Preserving Inter-Appeal.)
It is a well known fact that the present system of keeping the county roads is both inadequate and expensive. That it is inadequate, every road in the commonwealth bears indubitable testimony upon its every mile, and almost every rod. And that it is expensive, count the pay of all the overseers of the roads, and two days' work for every citizen over sixteen years of age, and see what the aggregate will be. A pretty sum, surely.
The present system does not keep the roads in even tolerable order for winter travel. It is time, then, to try some other plan. Now, it seems to us that the keeping of the roads, like the carrying of the mail and many other things, should be put out to the lowest bidder under a fixed maximum rate and that the contractor should be required to keep his road up to a certain standard of excellence, or forfeit his pay. The county Board of Supervisors should have the oversight of the roads without additional pay. A small tax of say fifty cents to the head of the voting population would be in good condition, and travel easy and pleasant all the year through.
In order to avoid failure to keep the roads in order would result in direct pecuniary loss, every citizen would bear an equal share of the tax, without annoyance of being dragged out to work the roads when he has something very important to do at home, and there would be no shirking of a disagreeable duty, as is now frequently the case with impunity. There is no doubt we would get better roads, for there would be a disposition to see who should have the best stretch of road.

no thought for the only course that can ever bring them back to honest lives. The only reason why the very rich escape is that they are so well protected. Jay Gould, when he rides down town, has an armed man beside him; Mr. Vanderbilt the same, and the Stewart marble mansion is always under the eyes of detectives. I have heard more threats made by criminals against the very rich than against all the rest of the world, and there will be a terrible reckoning some day unless the very rich avert it in time and by proper methods. I wrote as much to Mr. Vanderbilt today. I have spent all my small fortune in the work of my prison reform society, and I told him that we were at a standstill for want of money. 'Help send some thousands of these to places where they can be self-supporting,' I wrote, 'and the houses and property and persons of rich men will be safe.'

ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS have been of such great service to me and mine that I feel it a duty to state the facts, as briefly as possible, to induce others to use them. My wife for many years was confined to her bed, suffering from spinal disease. After spending a thousand dollars in vain effort to get cured, she applied three ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS to the spinal column, one above the other. In a few days all pain left her. She applied fresh plasters every two weeks and in the course of two months she completely recovered her health. At first she could hardly walk across the room; each day she walked a little further, and now she is able to walk five miles without fatigue. She still occasionally applies the plasters to her back, but she has been perfectly well for upward of a year.

In my own case they afforded me almost instant and permanent relief. My friends consider them an invaluable and speedy remedy for all kinds of aches and pains. They are a blessing in disguise; and no wife or mother should be without them if she values her peace and comfort and freedom from nervous exhaustion and other ailments. As a strengthening plaster, also for backaches and weakness, they have no equal. I have never yet found a plaster so efficacious and stimulating, or to give so much relief. ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.
The Original and still the Best!
INSIST ON HAVING ALLCOCK'S, THE ONLY GENUINE POROUS PLASTER.

One of the most remarkable inventions of the present age is ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are the result of years of chemical study, and only time and experience has brought them to their present perfection. Testimonials are received every day of the wonderful cures of Sprains, Weak Back, Rheumatism, Lumbago, and all kinds of other diseases. Of course the vast sales and great success of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS have caused numerous imitations to be brought before the public which, being called porous, would give the world to understand that they were a similar article to the genuine. We would most particularly caution the public against these humbugs. They contain none of the healing gums that are used in ALLCOCK'S, but are simply a combination of lead, red pepper and rubber, and are wanted in long winded advertisements as an improvement on ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. Beware of the many and untrue statements and never use any of these so-called porous frauds.

Alcock's Porous Plasters
Relieve Debility and Nervousness.
ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS worn on the region of the kidneys warms the spinal marrow which is a continuation of the brain, imparting new vitality and power to the spine they strengthen that mighty organ and fill it full of foreign electricity or nervous fluid. Thus they will restore to the busy active brain of man or woman, the energy and ability which has been lost by disease, worry or overwork. They restore vitality where there has been debility and nervousness. Physicians highly recommend them for nervous debility, whether arising from dissipation or overwork. They are now known to be the great regenerators of the nervous system and are invaluable in all cases of hysteria.

HASTINGS MINN.,
Jan. 3, 1883.
I am troubled with neuralgia in the back of my head, neck and spine, but I find by applying one of your Porous Plasters to the back of my neck and one across the small of my back I have almost instant relief. I take pleasure in recommending them to the afflicted for they have helped me so much. P. BEEBEE.
