The subscription rates of the Carolina Watchman are as follows: $1.50 per year in advance...

We had a heavy shower of rain Tuesday and another on Wednesday.

He is a common enemy to the human family who places obstructions on a railroad track.

UP AGAIN.—We are glad to see Mr. Wm. Overman, Sr., again on the street, just recovering from a fall which hurt him very badly a few days ago.

FINE TURNOUT.—We are indebted to Mr. J. P. Martin for a half dozen very fine turkeys, raised this fall.

Mr. R. J. Holmes' four new stores have risen above their foundations and will soon present a front of beautiful brick work of about 150 feet.

If there is any crime that a man can commit which deprives him of all human sympathy, it is that of placing obstructions on a railroad track by which a train and its occupants may be destroyed.

A Sunday school picnic will be held at St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran church, this county, on next Saturday.

The Inferior Court has been in session this week, but we believe there was very little business before it.

Wm. Jones, colored, bought a pair of pants in Salisbury, and was arrested in Concord for stealing them in Thomasville, and was actually convicted for the theft.

We have a valued letter from our young friend, Capt. Wiley, written at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, giving a humorous report of his observations at that place, which we will publish on the first page of our next issue.

The average attendance at the Graded School for the first month, has been 220. The enrollment now is 274.

We had a call from our young friend the editor of the Statesville Landmark, Monday, thus far on his way to the Boston Exposition.

Dr. Mack, Gen. Agent for Davidson College, has been visiting this place in the interests of Davidson, during this week, and up to this time has met with gratifying success.

He also occupied the Presbyterian pulpit on Sabbath, and has preached for us every night this week.

There was an adjourned meeting of the Concord Presbytery held in the Presbyterian church at this place Thursday evening last, for the purpose of considering a renewed call for the pastoral services of Rev. Mr. McKinnon.

Both calls were granted, but with much reluctance on the part of members of Concord Presbytery, which sustains a heavy loss in the removal of two highly valued members.

WICKED.—Taking off lot gates, moving and exchanging signs, building box fences across the streets and breaking street lamps is a species of night mischief that foolish young people in almost every town have been guilty of.

The Dog Nuisance.—On Wednesday the 19th inst. Mr. H. E. McComb who has a farm near Hickory on the Catawba river had five sheep killed and six others injured by dogs.

On the following night Mr. Darius Echard, who lives two miles from Hickory, had seven sheep killed by dogs.

On the same night J. W. Mowser, Esq. of the same neighborhood had two sheep killed by dogs.

On Wednesday the 19th inst. Mr. H. E. McComb who has a farm near Hickory on the Catawba river had five sheep killed and six others injured by dogs.

On the following night Mr. Darius Echard, who lives two miles from Hickory, had seven sheep killed by dogs.

On the same night J. W. Mowser, Esq. of the same neighborhood had two sheep killed by dogs.

Mr. O. W. Atwell, of this place, who has been devoting his attention to raising improved stock and chickens, has met with a very serious drawback in his fowl department from the cholera, which he tells us is taking off many from flock of fine Plymouth Rocks.

Married: In this city, by Rev. V. R. Stickle, in the First Presbyterian church, Oct. 3d, Mr. J. H. McDowell, of Asheville, to Miss E. G. Graham, of Asheville, and Miss E. G. Graham, of Asheville, to Mr. J. H. McDowell, of Asheville.

ON-DIT.—that another of the charming young ladies of this town is soon to be borne away as a bride to adorn the home of a gallant knight of Charlotte. The capture has been made. The full consummation is at hand.

SELLS BROTHERS' SHOW.—Their enormous united shows are coming to Salisbury. The universal public, will be glad to learn that the above great consolidation, traveling in a train of fifty cars, is upon its way hither, and will erect its immense tent in this city on Thursday Oct. 11th.

At the meeting of the Board of County Commissioners on last Monday all the members were present. License was granted to S. C. Miller to retail liquors on main street near the market house.

Geo. A. Barger and W. F. Albright were released from working on the public road for two years, and S. L. Lowrance for one year.

Small amounts from the Poor Fund of the county were given as follows: To John Kincaid $6, Polly Waller $7.50, Mrs. Joicy Richwine $15, Betty Lillington $10, Elizabeth Gardner for sister $9, Wm. and Mary Hall $7.50, Mary Morgan $1.50, Haywood Harper $5.82 for 3 coffins.

Overseer Brown reported 20 paupers for September. C. C. Kridler was allowed $27.45 for expenses incurred in conveying Harry Smith, colored, to the insane asylum at Goldsboro, and John Eagle $— for conveying Moses Eagle to the asylum for the insane at Morganton.

L. H. Rothrock's account for services rendered during September, amounting to $26.42 was approved and ordered to be paid.

Ordered that the school house site for colored district No. 4, Salisbury township, be located on Jno. S. Henderson's land, and the committee are authorized to pay $15 for the same.

Ordered that a public road be opened in Scotch Irish township as soon as a bridge is built at or near Mrs. Baker's mill.

Ordered that J. M. Horah remove the county books and papers out of the room in rear of Court House into the old County Court Clerk's office.

The following are the jurors for the Fall Term of Rowan Superior Court: FIRST WEEK. A. C. Harris, Jno. A. Peeler, G. W. Ganskey, Max. Holzhauser, M. S. Fraley, D. C. Blackwelder, Alex. Peeler, W. C. MINING.

T. K. BRUNER, MANAGER. The Rowan Mine and Milling Company are putting up extensive machinery for milling their ores.

Col. Cochran, W. Tregallis and others interested in the Gold Hill mines have been here several days. Through explorations are to be made, which, it is said, will decide the future of these mines.

DUTCH CREEK.—Work is going on at Dutch Creek mine day and night. Down about 60 feet in the copper shaft, and has started on the underlay—vein being 15° from vertical, is about 4 feet wide shows brown and red oxides, green carbonate, yellow sulphur and azarite copper ores. Knowle's vertical shaft pump is used and keeps the water down nicely. Shipment of ores will commence soon.

Mr. W. W. Miller exhibited to us Saturday, a curious conglomerate of quartz crystals in the shape of a turtle, weighing some seven or eight pounds. It had a very well formed head, body and tail, though the head and tail have both dropped off by handling. The crystals on top seem to have been thrown together in the most accidental manner, but underneath are somewhat in layers.

The Hon. B. Wilson made a flying visit to our city a few days ago. He and Col. Davidson of Pittsburg have purchased a few valuable mineral properties in this section and will soon begin the work of development. Among others they have purchased the Hearne and Heacock mines near Albemarle in Stanly county. The mines are known to be very rich. A large amount of gold was taken from them before the war from only a few shafts. The main body of the property remains untouched. The proprietors have caused thorough examinations to be made by the distinguished Chemist, Dr. W. P. Lawyer, of the U. S. Mint Bureau of Washington, who reports the ore to be "free milling quartz, easy to reduce and inexpensive to treat;" and the average yield to be over $16 per ton. This will be regarded very rich ore when it is remembered that the "Homestake" group of gold mines in Dakota, among the most valuable in the U. S., produces ore of the value of from four to six dollars per ton only.

We congratulate Messrs. Wilson and Davidson upon this purchase. They have also purchased a large copper property that is said and supposed to be very rich. The Conrad Hill copper mine is regarded as one of the most productive and valuable in the country east of the Mississippi river and yet it is said that their property is larger and their copper ore fully as rich.

Institute Fair Building.

Boston, Sept. 29, 1883. A few articles are coming in to fill up the nooks and corners of our exhibit, and others are expected, such as apples, grapes, maple sugar and syrups, the marketable vegetables, including cabbage, beets and pumpkins. Also a lot of wool and woolen goods.

The work now engaging our time is labeling distinctly each article, and rearranging for the better general effect. This kind of work must be kept up regularly as the occasion demands, and when you add to this the other more tiresome work of escorting visitors through the exhibit and making the necessary explanations, and answering their questions it will become apparent that the whole of our time taken up.

There are two new exhibits just finished—the Northern Pacific and the Missouri Pacific Railways. The first named has material gathered from Dakota, Minnesota, Washington, Montana, Oregon and Idaho. The serials, vegetables and minerals form the leading features of the exhibit. The Missouri Pacific has a display of the same general character as the above, though the material shown is from Missouri, Arkansas and Texas and includes in addition to the articles mentioned, preserved fruits, woods and some manufactured articles.

But these exhibits cannot compare with the comprehensive display of resources made by the State of North Carolina. We have more floor space than both of them together, and our display is classified and arranged in more complete and perfect order. For instance, on yesterday two botanists, one from New England and one from St. Louis examined critically our exhibit of woods. They found in the whole collection only two labels which were inaccurate, when it is remembered that no botanical expert was engaged in the collection of these woods, some idea of the accuracy and reliability of the exhibit may be formed.

We are told every day by strangers that we have made the most wonderful show ever seen from any State, and that our people must be very proud of it. Those of our people who have seen it—and some two hundred North Carolinians have been here—express themselves as highly gratified. Commendation from home is pleasant, and the writer may be pardoned for inserting here a short extract from a private letter received from a gentleman in Montgomery county. He says: "We are glad to know that through your efforts, after all, Montgomery county has a showing at the exposition, and is attracting attention as one of the gold bearing counties of the State. We write to say again that our people, the appreciative portion, think kindly of you." &c.

Next week we are expecting the North Carolina press, en masse. Arrangements are being made for their entertainment—excursions and receptions will be given them. They will be the guests of the city.

The editors of the Commercial Bulletin have arranged to give the delegation a reception at the Parker House. I will not anticipate them, but leave them to tell their own story, when their sightseeing is over.

This reminds me that I have not spoken of several places of interest recently visited. Don't feel alarmed, have not been on Banker's Hill, but enjoyed a pleasant ride on a narrow gauge railroad which is built along the north shore of the bay, running between glacial hills and occasionally crossing little inlets, affording magnificent views of the white beach dotted here and there with groups of pleasure seekers. See them dodge foamed breakers which anon swell far out on the glittering sands. Point of Pines Hotel is the first stopping place of importance. Passing under massive arches the visitor is ushered along winding paths of white pebbles, over which are swung graceful arches of jets for illumination, and then the hotel, with its long piazzas filled with easy chairs and lounging people. Here they sit and gaze on the blue waves as they roll in and lash the beach, while their ears are feasted with sweet strains of music mingled with the roar of the waters. But this is getting into the quicksand and it may serve my purpose better to get aboard one of the many beautiful steamers and continue the trip to Nantasket Beach. The air is fresh—so is the breeze, and sailing craft of all kind give the bay the appearance of life. Large steamers making outward and coming in, add variety to the scene. On either side are island forts with only large guns and chimneys tops protruding above the level of the fortifications; clusters of attractive summer residences, the picturesque houses of Hull, scattered on the crest of a gently sloping hill, with their steep roofs and gay painting all go to make up a scene interesting and novel to the visitor who hales from a quiet southern inland town. Nantasket has a fine stretch of smooth beach some five miles in length, and a number of magnificent hotels. These offer inducements for internal decoration such as "Clam-bake-to-day," "Fish and clam chowders," etc. The season for these resorts are about over, and the people are flocking back to the city.

Cambridge, Harvard College, Longfellow's home, and the early home of Oliver Wendell Holmes, may be attended to in another letter.

To go back to the fair for a moment, it may be of interest to our people to know that the question most frequently asked by people who contemplate moving south is "how are northern people thought of and treated by the people of the South?" It is surprising how frequently this question comes up. Why these misgivings and doubts? Is it wholly due to the influence of designing politicians, or does there lurk a faint sensibility of the injustice done our part of this glorious country in the days that have gone. These, of all people, should feel it, for they set an example of insubordination and rebellion to the Union years before the South felt such a necessity. Since I have drifted into this subject, it may not be amiss to tell how the writer was introduced to a daughter of Stephen Foster, one of the rantankerous abolitionists of the days when that fanatical class made excuse to heap denunciations on the tyrant masters of the South. It was at breakfast this morning, and she was speaking of the education of teachers to be sent to the poor whites of North Carolina. I was introduced as being from that State, and probably as a warning to prevent too far an expression on her part. Our school system was explained; when the strong minded lady (excuse the language) "thought that they should be educated to work." She affirmed that the colored people were all right on that score, but that the poor whites were too proud to work. From this point the conversation began to warm up and soon became lively, but your correspondent ate his bread in subdued silence after the declaration on her part that "she would esteem it an honor to entertain Mr. Douglass or Mr. Bruce, though the latter was somewhat deficient in moral integrity." The distance between us was too great. That Anglo-saxon blood should stoop to—but pardon me, I am here to show to the world the great resources and advantages of the best State in the Union and not to talk politics. T. K. B.

Ben. Butler. We are not an admirer of Ben Butler but we don't see why he should be singled out from among the men on either side of the line to be made the special object of abuse. But we believe in consistency. The following from the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph a paper of unquestioned Democracy, covers the case. It says: "The fact that the widow and daughter of Stonewall Jackson have recently been the recipients of social courtesies from Gen. Butler, now Governor of the State of Massachusetts, has provoked public and private comment and discussion at the South. Some people have been greatly horrified. Others see in this a deeply planned scheme to nominate Gen. Butler for the Presidency by the Democratic party. We trust that these hysterical people will possess their souls in patience. Mrs. Jackson and daughter were invited to the Boston exposition and were professed courtesies by the Governor of the State and accepted them. There is no meaning in this beyond that Gov. Butler knows how to dispense his hospitalities like a gentleman, and Mrs. Jackson and her daughter were too well bred to refuse them.

No political significance whatever may attach to this episode. We may not be classed among the admirers of Gen. Butler, and we are not searching for apologies or excuses for anything he may have said or done, but when the people of the South propose to extend social amnesty to their late Northern enemies, we insist that it shall be general and without exception.

We have complained at the narrow partisanship and rank injustice which without political amnesty from Jefferson Davis. Let us not imitate these in a small way.

No matter what Gen. Butler may have said or done in the past, we have never seen a protest against it coming from any member of the Republican party. His conduct at New Orleans, including his celebrated order against the women, was indorsed and sustained by his government, his military associates and his party.

They all became accessories after the fact, and are equally amenable to any punishment that can be inflicted. We remember that Grant traveled through the South, drank the wine and broke the bread of Southern gentlemen and enjoyed the unstinted hospitality of Southern homes. In 1880 he campaigned from one end of the State of New York to the other, heaping the vilest abuse upon his entertainers and declared they were unfit to participate in the benefits of the government.

We recall that Sherman devastated the South, insulted women, despoiled children and put the torch to the cities, and then lied about it and subsequently swore to the lies.

We may be remembered that Sheridan insulted and outraged to the utmost extent the people of two States under his command. No man in this country has done the South such injury, has slandered her people so persistently and vituperatively as Henry Ward Beecher, a gross worshipping and debauchee who has attempted to overturn all social barriers and at the same time to mock the Christian religion. We have no sympathy with people who sneer at Butler and flock to hear Beecher lecture at five hundred dollars a night. When Grant and Sheridan are made social toasts at the South, and Sherman is followed by toadies and bootlickers amid the ruins of vandalism, we cannot see but there should be an out-cry or place for Ben Butler.

Butler is a far abler man than Grant, Sherman or Sheridan, and a better one in every respect. He is a better man than Henry Ward Beecher. Simple justice demand that he be not excluded from that social amnesty which the people of the South are willing to extend to the people of the North.

There is another terrible out-break in Russia against the Jews—in one province alone 200 families having been rendered homeless.

The Talbotton Ga. Era, says the law practice in the South is beginning to dwindle into nothingness—based on the thought, no doubt, on the facts known to exist in its immediate section.

V. D. Groner, Gen. Agent, Norfolk, will sell single tickets from Norfolk to Boston, for $9. Both ways, going and returning, for $16. This is by water and includes all necessary comforts.

If Gen. Scales is the people's choice for Governor, says the Landmark, nominate. We reiterate it. Let there be no mistake next year in selecting the man whom the people want.

Western Democrat: The mica mining business of this and Yancey counties is on a "boom," and the countenances of proprietors and laborers index the general prosperity of this our ruling industry.

The National Cotton Planters' Association, will hold its annual convention in Vicksburg, the 21st of November, instead of the 14th, as heretofore announced.

State Fair—Additional Premiums. The following premiums in addition to those published in the premium list are offered at the State fair to be held October 15 to 20th, viz: Premium No. 154, for the best bushel of corn—one superior well-fixture of Ties's patent, price $15. Some of the most remarkable and striking portraits about Boston are accredited to a "vagabond named Halden." But the strange part of the story is, that they were burned into boards by a red hot fire poker. A portrait of Daniel Webster made in this way by Halden is pronounced the best likeness of the great statesman in existence.

DIED.

In Unity township, of apoplexy, Sept. 20th, Mr. John M. Marlin, aged about 72 years. He was a member of the Methodist church for many years, and died in the faith.
