

Carolina Watchman.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1884.

We enter this week on the commencement of a new year. Is it not possible for you, reader, and for us all, to improve on the past? Can we not do more for our own and the happiness of others? Can we not make a better record for the present and succeeding generations. The influence of men and women survives them by many years. A good life example in a neighborhood reaches far down the stream of time, if indeed it is ever lost. An evil example is of a similar nature, and lingers as a curse upon children's children and the community to the third and fourth generation. How fearful are these truths! How strong the incentive to an upright, pious, and useful life. How terrible the reflection at the end of our days of having cursed our children and the country by a misapient life! With these weighty responsibilities resting upon us, let all enter upon the new year not with vain confidence, but with fear, carefully employing all available means to do the best we can.

A terrible crime was perpetrated in Chatham county, a few days ago. An old lady, her daughter and grand-daughter living together were all murdered in one night. The old lady was nearly 90 years old; her daughter about 64 and her grand daughter 8. The father of the little girl was suspected of the crime, and was arrested and a searching examination had, which proved his entire innocence. But the little girl seems to be still alive, though there are no less than seventeen fractures of her skull. If she shall ever recover consciousness and speech, it is hoped she will reveal the author of this most fearful crime. Physicians and friends are doing for her all they can with this hope, while the search for clues still goes on.

There was a fearful accident on the Lenoir and Chester Narrow Gauge R. R., yesterday week ago, resulting as we learn from the Charlotte Observer, in the death of William Simmons, a brakeman, and Joe Henderson, fireman, both colored. It was at Long Creek, Gaston county. A truck broke while crossing a trestle, displacing some of the timbers when 30 feet of the trestle and part of the train fell with a tremendous crash. Simmons saw the danger and jumped off, but a car fell on him and crushed him in an instant. The fireman was caught under the heavy fire box of the engine and although he cried for help, it was impossible to release him. He cried for water to be thrown upon the red hot iron upon him, which was done, but he almost instantly expired.

There was a crank in New York on Evacuation day, who felt it his duty to assassinate President Arthur. The proprietor of the hotel at which the President was stopping, discovered the mysterious movements of the fellow and very quietly caused his arrest. At the guard house he was found armed with a revolver and knife, and confessed he was after Arthur.

Mr. S. O. Wilson & Co. are nursery men at Raleigh, and have now growing 2,500,000 young fruit trees deliverable this spring. It is not generally known that there is such an establishment at Raleigh. The company have other fruit farms in several other counties, as we learn from the News-Observer.

Mahone is being snubbed at Washington, the papers say, which is the unkindest of all. To be detected by those for whom he sunk honor, is to go out shivering into the cold of a cheerless world.

The New York Bar Association have adopted a resolution favoring the wearing of robes by the Judges of the Court of Appeals while on the bench. The movement has met favor and is likely to be adopted.

Vick's Floral Guide for 1884 is brighter and better than ever, a result we did not anticipate under the circumstances, the founder of the business, James Vick, having gone, as we hope, to the paradise above.

Mr. Newberry, a member of the Virginia State Senate, has introduced a resolution calling upon Senator Mahone to resign.

The new assessment of real and personal property in this State shows an increase of $32,738,089. Total given is $200,374,745.

Gen. Grant had a damaging fall about Christmas from the effects of which he is said to be recovering.

Mr. J. Smithman, a wealthy citizen of Troy, N. C., died very suddenly at his home in that town two weeks ago.

FAILURES.

According to Bradstreet's report we have them as follows:

In 1880,	4,350
" 1881,	5,929
" 1882,	7,574
" 1883,	10,127

Failures have more than doubled in four years; and the constantly increasing number, taken in conjunction with the stoppage of mills, factories, forges, &c., in the East and West, cast a gloom over the horizon prospect of the new year.

A Political Sermon.

From the Charlotte Observer.
"Though thou shouldst lay a foot in a mortar among wheat with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him." I am reminded, Mr. Editor, of the foregoing passage of Scripture by what I see in the Congressional Record of the 20th instant. The proposition was under discussion to raise a committee of the House "To investigate the alcoholic liquor traffic"—a subject over which Congress has no more jurisdiction than it has over the traffic of citizens of the United States in pumpkins and potatoes. The wiser and cooler heads of the Democratic party, such men as Mills, of Texas, and Casey Young, of Tennessee, warned their associates of its unconstitutional and fanatical character, of its disturbing and dangerous tendency, in words of calm wisdom that strengthened the party and did honor to the States that sent them there; but it is mortifying to see that a member from North Carolina, Hon. R. B. Vance, advocated this unconstitutional and undemocratic measure, in a furious and fanatical speech, that, as the Record says, elicited "loud cheers on the Republican side." They cheered to hear a Democratic member advocate a measure that is purely Republican, that is odious to all intelligent lovers of liberty, a measure for which the Republican party is justly held responsible throughout the Union, and which has already lost them several States. They are gratified beyond measure to find such an opportunity as Mr. Vance offers them to divide with the Democratic party the responsibility and just odium attached to the measure.

It seems that some men are slow to learn. To them the long established principles of the party to which they belong, the voice of their aroused and indignant State speaking by 120,000 majority of votes, all mean nothing. If the consequences of their folly fell on them alone, it would not be so deplorable, but the whole party has in some measure to answer for it before the country.

What Good Farmers Can Do.

One of the New England visitors riding out to one of our bright tobacco farms elicited the following information. Going first to the full corn crib he was astonished to see such large and well filled ears of corn, after pocketing a sample, with the proprietor's hearty permission, he went next to the tobacco house. How much do you grow to the acre? About 600 lbs. What does it bring? From 25 to 75 cts. What is the cost of making it? About 10 cents per pound. How much is the most you have ever made to the acre? "Five hundred dollars worth. I generally average about one hundred and eighty dollars." The visitor went back to look at this acre which only cost the proprietor a few years ago $5.00 and carried away with him a handful of the soil to show to his friends when he reached home. The proprietor having recently sold some tobacco made good his assertions about the prices by exhibiting his bill of sale. Upon this farm was grown also an abundance of wheat, oats, apples, peaches, grapes, etc., etc.

A Beautiful Fountain.

The Raleigh News-Observer says, "at Round Knob, on the Western North Carolina Railroad, a hotel has been built which takes the place of the well known hotel at Henry, so long kept by Captain Sprague. The new house is in a few feet of the track, its lower porch forming in fact the railway platform. On one side of the hotel towers a mountain, on the other side is a deep hollow. Across this a massive stone dam has been thrown and by this means the waters of a pure and cold mountain stream have been collected into a lake of great depth and clearness, which covers some ten acres. In the centre of this rises the pipe of a fountain, whose source of supply is at a point 470 feet above. Mr. Stevenson of this city, did the plumbing work of the fountain. A day or so ago the water was turned on, and a test made. From the aperture of the pipe, an inch in diameter, the water sprang to a height of over 200 feet, spreading out like a vast fan. The water, descending, fell in showers of spray far around the lake. The sight is a very beautiful one. Mr. Stevenson tells us. Near the hotel, in fact all around it, the track forms a vast circle, and changing and beautiful views are had of hotel, of lake and fountain. It is an addition to the many beauties of the Western North Carolina Railroad."

Raleigh News-Observer: Mr. George B. Ennis, one of the best known young men here, died very unexpectedly last evening about 7 o'clock, on Market Place. His residence was on Halifax street. His age was about 32 years. The suddenness of his death caused quite a sensation. Mr. Ennis was at one time city editor of the News here, and was afterwards a reporter on the Petersburg Index and Appeal. He had many relatives in this State and Virginia.

LONDON, December 29.—A dispatch from Rome to the Exchange telegraph company states that the Pope will hold a consistory in April, when several cardinals will be created and vacant sees in America will be filled. It is rumored that another American cardinal will be appointed at the close of the forthcoming council in the United States. It is probable that Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore, will be selected for the honor.

The Power of Newspapers.

Was there ever a railroad, telegraph line, canal, or in fact any large corporation, that was not successively carried out without the aid of the newspapers? Was there ever a large city built up and its merchants, bankers and financial institutions advertised to the outside world without the aid of newspapers? A New York newspaper is often found in some remote corner of the globe where you would wonder if an American had ever trod.

A man, for instance, in a foreign country, happens to pick up a newspaper that has the heading of New York upon it, perhaps he may read that paper and become a little interested in New York. He lays it down, and some time in the future, while in a different part of the world, he finds another paper with the New York heading. This of course renews his interest in a city which he has never seen. The desire to see the place strengthens day by day, until he finally makes up his mind to come to New York. He arrives here perhaps with the same morbid desire that has brought thousands before him. He is pleased with New York as everybody on the streets seems to be in a hurry to reach some point of destination, and the whole city is alive, as it were, in her own interest, thinking, talking and acting for New York. The business men, spurred on, with an energy peculiar to New York, are persons who have come from different parts of the world to help build up this great city. This man goes into business and is shortly recognized as a citizen, while others follow faster and faster, until a large city is built up and the company in which he is engaged is successful. The newspaper is the grand organ that furnishes the music for the marchant to dance by. It is the match that lights the fire of fame and fortune and regulates the morals of the enlightened world. As a man is known by the company he keeps, so a city is known by the newspapers she supports.

The 4th N. C. Regiment, State Troops.

There was perhaps no regiment in the Southern army that did more service than the 4th N. C. Regiment. The writer enlisted in Captain J. B. Anderson's company in the year 1861, went into camp a mile west of Statesville, remained there about two weeks, went to Gaysburg, N. C., and remained there about one month. From there we were hurried in to Manassas to assist in that memorable struggle, but the enemy were routed and driven across the Potomac before we reached there. We went into camp near that place, doing a great deal of hard service under the strict discipline of George B. Anderson, then colonel of the 4th Regiment. At this place between fifty and seventy of our men sickened and died during the warm months of August and September. Some of the best men in the company C. of said regiment, died while there. Remaining there until the next February, we struck our tents and marched for Yorktown, Va., to which point McClellan had moved his whole command. Arriving there we found Gen. Magruder's small command holding the enemy in check. We were placed in the front lines and were initiated into the dreadful realities of war. Here we became acquainted with the hissing music of solid shot, shells and minnie balls. Here I first saw the novel sight of men trying to bury themselves when they heard the hissing of these missiles of death.

Remaining at Yorktown about two weeks we began that retreat toward Richmond known as Gen. Johnson's famous retreat. We marched and counter-marched through mud and rain, and while there was some hard fighting at Williamsburg, our regiment arrived on the field only in time to see the enemy repulsed. We continued our retreat until we arrived at Seven Pines, four miles from Richmond, remaining here a few days, during which time there was much rain and the streams were considerably swollen. Gen. Johnson, knowing that McClellan had thrown one corps of his army across the Chickahominy, determined to attack him before he could get reinforcements across the river. This corps had fortified itself on an eminence, with the artillery ranging in every direction. Early in the morning we were ordered out and preparations began for the attack. The 4th Regiment with others which I cannot name, were placed in front. The order was given, "Forward!" and then the work of death began. The rattle of a battery, the booming of the cannon, the shrieks of the dying, the shouts of the victorious, rendered the scene frightfully grand. The enemy was driven from his works at every point; but he succeeded in getting across the river, and Gen. Johnson withdrew his forces from the field after burying his dead. On this battle-field the heaving, the bones of many of North Carolina's truest and best sons. Here the blood of some of Ireland's noblest sons was shed—White, Simonton, Hill, Waddell and many others we might mention. The 4th Regiment lost in killed and wounded in this battle 372, of which number 78 were killed dead on the field. CHAP. Nov. 19th, 1863.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.
DENVER, Colorado, April 22nd, 1882.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents—Four years ago while in the employ of A. P. Parley & Co., Danvers, Mass., we had a horse that became spavined during the first year of my stay with them, and remained so for four years, though we used every remedy we knew or could hear of, but no avail. Some time during the fifth year, (for I was in their employ between five and six years), we were recommended to try Kendall's Spavin Cure, and after using it two months the horse was cured the enlargement having been entirely removed, and thus believing it to be a valuable medicine I fully recommend it to all who have occasion to use it. Respectfully,
P. H. LYONS.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Dr. B. J. KENDALL Co., Gentlemen—Having had an opportunity of seeing your "Treatise on the Horse" this Summer for the first time I was induced to try your Kendall's Spavin Cure—a valuable horse that had been lame since the 1st of April, from a bone spavin. I had blistered it several times and concluded that my horse would never get over being lame. Five weeks ago to-day I commenced using Kendall's Spavin Cure and after using it three weeks the lameness entirely disappeared. It has been worth $30.00 to me.
H. H. HOUSE.
Mount Prairie, Minn., Sept. 24, 1883.
DR. B. J. KENDALL Co., Gentlemen—Last Spring I had a valuable young horse that from some cause got a very large lump about half way on his shoulder and was very lame for a long time. I had the best horse doctors examine her, some called it one thing, some another, one said the shoulder was broken but none could cure it. After I had tried the cure I went and bought one bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. I did not use one half of it before it was all smooth and clean. Lameness all gone too. As a testimonial it is invaluable.
Respectfully,
ANDREW ORR.
