

Carolina Watchman.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1884.

It was announced some weeks ago that there would be perfect harmony between the Republicans and Liberals, acting together as one party. It will be remembered that in the last canvass they were somewhat at cross purposes—that they apparently held separate State conventions, one a week behind the other, though the leading spirits of each were the same in both. The recent announcement alluded to conveyed the idea that the Liberals were going to identify themselves with the Republicans fully and completely; but more recent events contradict this very decidedly. The same old game of the Liberals is to be played. They are still to pretend that they are Democrats—they will swear to it if necessary—and even claim to be better Democrats than any one else; with this difference: they can't swallow Bourbon Democracy. Thus we shall have Capt. Price, Col. William Johnson, of Charlotte, and J. M. Leach, of Davidson, running around making speeches against the "Bourbon Democracy" just as they did two years ago. It is a cute arrangement of the Republicans, to which party they all belong body and soul, to accommodate these wandering stars, who so loudly professed in the last canvass to be Democrats, but opposed to the "Bourbons," &c.

The only disturbing question between the Liberals and Republicans two years ago was, which of them was the kite and which was the tail. The Liberals wanted to be the kite, and the true blue Republicans swore they would not be the tail to any such kite. They have had this question up before the Republican magnates at Washington, President Arthur among them, and the rumored reconciliation alluded to above was understood at the time as the result of conferences held there. It appears, however, that policy has constrained the party leaders to leave the question unsettled, and to let Liberals go before the people as they did two years ago, and fool them if they can by professing to be Democrats but opposed to the "Bourbons." They will advocate every plank of the Republican platform; and even some of the measures of the Democracy; but it is well understood, that though they may not be the Republican kite they are a necessary part of it, and will come in for their share of the divide should they jointly carry the State. It is to be a game of chess just as it was before, and they will interchangeably play kite or tail according to the company they are in.

No Protection Needed.

Columbus, Ga., has a practical cotton manufacturer who has also studied the tariff question as affecting his business. Mr. W. H. Young, president of the Eagle and Phoenix Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, says the proposed reduction in the tariff would have no effect whatever on the cotton industries of the South. He says a reduction of 20 per cent, on heavy goods would not enable either England or the Eastern States to compete with the South, and illustrates it thus:

"The company over which I preside consumes about 50 bales of cotton per day. A New England mill consuming that amount of cotton would have to pay $350 per day more for it than it costs this company, and a mill in England would have to pay more than that."

"The advantages are so great that the tariff, if entirely removed, would not enable England to compete with this country on heavy weight goods, and if the tariff was removed on all articles that enter into the cost of manufacturing, then this country could command the markets of the world and the supremacy of England would be ended."

Again he says: "I believe the manufacturing interests in this country with their natural advantages, if free from all tariff legislation, would soon make the United States the manufacturing center." Mr. Young is not speaking at random. He has made repeated trips to England in successful prosecution of his business and has diligently studied the whole subject in all its relations. His opinion is therefore entitled to great weight.

CONGRESS.—The holders of patents are patiently besieging Congress against the passage of a bill designed to protect the people against some of the evils of the patent system. One of its provisions protects the purchaser of a patent article whether sold to him by an authorized or unauthorized agent. It leaves the fraudulent seller responsible to the patentee for the fraud, but releases the innocent bona fide purchaser.

The educational bill was under discussion in the Senate on Tuesday, having special reference to the education of the negroes; and in the House (in committee of the whole) "the bonded extension bill," the design of which is to relieve the distillers who have made more whiskey than they can sell at a remunerative price, and to rescue those banks which have advanced money on a whiskey basis. There is said to be 80,000,000 gallons locked up in bonded warehouses, and that the holders of it don't want to pay the Government tax, which will soon fall due on it, unless the state of the market would justify it. In other words they want to make the Government a copartner with themselves in the whiskey business.

The old fisheries on the Yadkin—the "Narrows" and the "Falls"—are non-productive up to this time. Indeed, they have rarely, of late years, paid for the nets employed, and the reason for it is said to be the obstructions in the river about the "grassy islands."

ONCE MORE!—The people of North Carolina have ratified by their votes the present county government system no less than three times, and they considered well what they were doing every time they voted for it. Is that not enough? Oh no. The Republicans will run it again in the next canvass just as though it were a new question.

It is an easy thing to tear down a house but it takes much time and labor to build one. The present county government system has worked well and subserves the best interests of all parts of the State. The people have repeatedly declared in favor of it, why then ask them to pull it down and make another?

A negro preacher named John Clarke, of Cincinnati, Ohio, has created considerable excitement in Baldwin and other counties in Georgia, by incendiary speeches to the negroes, delivered to them in the woods away from the ears of white people. He is calling on the negroes to rise and butcher the white people, killing all, old and young, sparing only the girl children. His incendiaryism leaked out after a while, and the white people obtaining full information of his work, put the sheriff on his track, and now the would-be second John Brown, would rather be in the jungles of Africa than in the briar patches of Georgia. He turned the heads of a good many negroes who have since quit work and commenced their preparations for the proposed general rising on the 31st of March, inst. No doubt he has done mischief by bringing others into trouble, and for which he ought to be hung.

By all odds the handsomest walk within the borders of this Commonwealth is that which extends between those stately cedars that grow beside the historic Moravian graveyard in Salem; and the town cemetery which is on the hill-side near by is the loveliest place to be laid away that a person who happens to be fastidious about such things could find in many a day's travel.—State Chronicle.

True, it is a sweetly quiet resting place. But we are reminded, just here, of a highly respected but not very reverential old Frenchman, who fell sick in Salem a good many years ago, and thought he might need a resting place soon. He sent for the Moravian minister, who was rejoiced to think that sickness had brought the old gentleman to the point of making his peace before his departure into the presence of the Judge of all the earth, and obeyed the summons with alacrity, and very naturally lost no time in introducing the subject of the soul's salvation. But the sick Frenchman met him with the prompt reply—"No, no, I no send for you for that. I want to say to you that if I die don't have me buried up here in this Liberty (Winston), but give me a place in your grave yard. It was a very wet blanket for the parson, but the boys about Salem got hold of it and passed it along the line with zest."

"THE EXPOSITION NEWS." Mr. P. C. Enquias, well and favorably known to many of our people, will commence publishing a 20x28 weekly news paper the beginning of April, of the above name, in the especial interest of the Exposition, but devoted generally to the interests of the State and the business affairs of her people. The price is low, 75 cts. for 50 Nos. 5,000 copies will be issued.

MAY 20TH.—The annual celebration of this day at Charlotte, bids fair to be observed this year with more than ordinary interest, the notes of preparation for it seeming to indicate this. We note just now, that Hon. Geo. H. Pendleton, member of Congress from Ohio, has consented to deliver the leading speech. Other distinguished gentlemen about Washington are expected, among them Mr. Carlisle, says the Observer, has accepted an invitation to follow the orator of the day.

Edward Ray and W. A. Anderson, the cold blooded murderers of three peaceable citizens in a mica mine in Mitchell county, confined in the jail of Buncombe, awaiting trial, are causing some uneasiness by fears of their escape from prison, the jail in Asheville not being considered secure against their friends outside. The Governor has ordered the sheriff of Buncombe with the military of Asheville to remove the prisoners to Henderson.

A mother in Wilmington in haste to deliver a new message to a servant starting on an errand, sat her sucking child on the floor on which there was a tub of water, and ran to the front door to deliver the word. In the brief space of her absence the child crawled to the tub and fell into it head foremost. The mother on returning snatched it from the tub and with great presence of mind employed proper means to restore its life, which, says the Star, was well nigh gone.

Hon. Jefferson Davis made a short speech in the Legislature of Mississippi a few days ago in which he said, if it were to do over again he would pursue the same course he did in the sectional contest of 1861-65. That the Southern people contended for a great principle which though defeated by the war will yet prevail.

The story of the old farmer who always gave good heaped up measure when selling his products because he could not after death return to correct mistakes, is again going the rounds of the newspapers; and we are pleased to say that we know quite a number of farmers in Rowan who practice the same rule.

What right has Congress to tax a man's tobacco or corn crop any more than his potato crop?—Charlotte Democrat.

A Flood in the Mississippi river is causing great distress in the valley of that stream, submerging thousands of acres of land, and chasing off the inhabitants living on its shores. The levees have broken in several places and the waters, which are still rising have spread far and wide into the country.

The Rev. J. S. Hellig, says the Concord Register, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Lutheran church at Harper's Ferry, Va., and regrets the loss of so able and faithful a minister of the Gospel and so pleasant a family.

"A miserable thief," says an exchange, broke into Mr. —'s store and stole 20 cents—broke in at a back window, etc. If he had stolen $20,000 it would have been a grand robbery, and no misery in the case, except to the loser of the money.

THE GREAT FERTILIZER FOR FINE BRIGHT TOBACCO ALLISON & ADDISON'S "STAR BRAND" SPECIAL TOBACCO MANURE

FOR THE TWENTY YEARS during which we have been selling and manufacturing Fertilizers, we have made the Tobacco Crop the subject of special study and extensive experiments, with the object of making the best possible Fertilizer for that crop, without regard to analyses or book valuations. The relative value of the different fertilizing materials has been studied in the Plant-Bed, in the Field, in the Barn, and in the Salesroom. Our

SPECIAL TOBACCO MANURE is the product of the information and skill gained in this continuous effort to improve, and we offer it with great confidence as being the VERY BEST FERTILIZER FOR BRIGHT TOBACCO yet made. Crops raised with it bring the highest average prices in all the markets of Virginia and North Carolina.

IMPORTANT We use nothing in its manufacture but materials of the highest grade, which are known to be specially adapted to this crop. We use no fiery ammoniates, ground leather, horn, hoof, shoddy, or wool waste, or other inferior or injurious ammoniates.
