

Pension Bill.

The Legislature has a bill before it for the relief of the wounded officers, soldiers and sailors of the late war yet living in the State. It appropriates $30,000 annually out of any moneys of the State not otherwise appropriated. No warrant to be issued until after the 1st of January, 1886. No one to receive money except on his own application, unless insane or otherwise incapable of acting for himself.

The Exposition and the Sabbath.

The management of the New Orleans Exposition, consulting the public sentiment of the city of New Orleans, and ignoring the moral sentiment of the world, keep the Exposition open on the Sabbath. It is a grievous shame. Professor Holmes, one of the gentlemen in charge of the North Carolina exhibit, explains, on our second page, how the disgrace to us as a Christian nation comes to be perpetuated and we commend his article to our readers.

In answer to our request that the writer of the article would suggest what action might be taken in this matter, he states that he had hoped the United States official Commissioners of the various States would have protested against the keeping open on the Sabbath of the building containing the exhibits of the United States Government and of the several States and Territories, but nothing of the kind was done. He adds: "With the public sentiment in the city of New Orleans, among the press and a large class of citizens, so strongly in favor of keeping the Exposition open on Sunday, with the Director General and Board of Managers in favor of it, and with the sentiment against it in the city and the country at large, among a majority of every good people, rather passive; and lastly, with the Exposition in great need of money, and attendance on Sunday increasing, I may repeat that I know nothing that can be done except by way of protest; and I think that an earnest protest ought to be made."

This protest, Professor Holmes thinks, and we cordially agree with him, should be by the press and the people—even if not more than a simple protest in their Church courts—presbyteries, conventions and the like—a protest on both religious and moral grounds. In the name of the Presbyterians of North Carolina we do most earnestly denounce this desecration as contrary to a proper sense of the moral obligation resting upon all mankind to observe the law of God as proclaimed in the Fourth Commandment.—N. C. Presbyterian.

When and where did the Almighty ever fail to vindicate his deers? He often bears long with offenders, but the reckoning is sure to come. Prof. Holmes, alluded to above, had hoped the national government authorities would interpose to prevent a desecration of the Sabbath by the Exposition, being largely concerned in it &c. Did Prof. Holmes forget that our government is a constant violator of the Fourth Commandment by running the mails on the Sabbath, and in requiring Postmasters to discharge their usual labors on that day? That is not a whit less sinful than selling goods or doing any other unnecessary work on the Sabbath.

Charlotte Observer: Mr. Marcus Gains died in Malard Creek township, last Saturday, after lying in bed for thirteen years with a broken back. Mr. Isaac A. Martij, an old citizen of Long Creek township, died last Sunday from the effects of exposure to the recent severe weather. He had fallen into a swamp where he remained 40 hours, exposed to snow and rain, until accidentally discovered by a passerby. Whitfield Dry, of the vicinity of Mt. Pleasant, has been arrested on the charge of setting fire to the mill of Jacob Dove, of Cabarrus county, causing him a loss of about $6,000. Dry was formerly in Dove's employ as a miller. A horse with a broken shoe was tracked in the snow from the mill to Dry's house, and led to his arrest. Stone wall Jackson's old war horse, heretofore in the care of the Virgilian Military Institute, left Richmond, Va., Tuesday, in the care of Maj. R. A. Venable, formerly of Jackson's staff, for the New Orleans Exposition.

The Old Liberty Bell of Philadelphia, in transit to the N. O. Exposition, was auct. at Beauvoir, Miss., Monday, by Jefferson Davis, and a large delegation from New Orleans and Philadelphia, and citizens of the surrounding country. Though sick and in bed, Mr. Davis got up and turned out and made a handsome speech on the occasion, creditable alike to the land and heart of the grand old patriot. The ceremonies on the occasion were both beautiful and touching, and the part borne by Mr. Davis especially so.

The Democrats and Republicans of the Illinois legislature, nearly equally divided, have been manoeuvring and skirmishing for some weeks without very decided advantage to either side. It is now said that the Democrats have nominated Mr. Haines, an independent Republican, for permanent speaker, and that they will secure the organization of the House and probably elect a Democratic Senator to succeed Logan.

The manufacture of cotton in India, where also the plant flourishes, continues to expand, and it may come to pass that England will find that she has discovered a market for home manufactured products by encouraging enterprises in the colonies. Such things have happened and may happen again.

The defuncting Auditor of Virginia, Wm. R. Smith, seems to have been more negligent or careless than his disponent. He seems to have let his business lie around loose, as if public papers and money were of no consequence.

MR. CLARKE'S SKETCHES OF BUSINESS MEN OF SALISBURY.

C. F. BAKER & CO. The above named firm caters to the wants of the people of this and adjacent sections in all that relates to the stove, tinware, house furnishings and similar lines of trade. The co-partners are C. F. Baker and E. B. Neave, each is a practical workman, and their co-partnership has existed since 1870. Mr. Baker is a veteran in the business. When a boy seventeen years of age he began learning the trade with Jno. D. Brown, and about the year 1850 he began business for himself as one of the firm of Brown & Baker, which only continued but for about one year, however. Since then, except during a portion of the war, Mr. Baker has remained identified with the same lines of business. He is also a farmer, owning 300 acres of land about one and a half miles from town. His partner and son-in-law, Mr. Neave, is also a practical man, and learned the trade with Baker & Owen as long ago as 1858. When the war occurred he entered the service as leader of the regimental band of the 4th N. C., and he remained in service from Sept. 1861 until the surrender.

Then he turned his attention to his old trade and Mr. Baker, Mr. Neave and T. J. Foster formed partnership. During portion of the years 1867-68-69 Mr. Neave was at Clinton, DeWitt Co., Ill., giving instruction in band music, and since returning here he has been engaged as now. The co-partners unite in giving their business personal attention, and each can work at the bench whenever it becomes necessary. They carry in stock a large line of the articles that naturally belong to the stove trade, their cooking and heating stoves chiefly coming from Philadelphia manufacturers for years. Messrs. C. F. Baker & Co. inform us that trade is improving somewhat this year, and that prices are, if anything, lower. They are especially well prepared to do all manner of repairing in tin, sheet iron and copper, and also to fill orders for out-door work, and are at all times prepared to make contracts for such work—that they have gained the reputation of doing well.

W. W. REID & SON. We can heartily say a good word for the above named firm in this review of Salisbury and its trade. Whether or not they are animated by the conviction that "cleanliness is next to godliness" we cannot say, but they have certainly just opened one of the neatest, cleanest and altogether attractive a family grocery store as we have seen for many a day—in point of appearance it is incomparably the nicest in this or adjacent counties. The firm is composed of W. W. Reid and J. C. Reid, and was established on the 8th of December, but it was really several days later before the establishment was really prepared for business in all its lines. Now it is in full running order, and we don't hesitate to ask our readers to visit, and it will be queer enough if the temptation to buy does not prove irresistible.

The senior partner, Mr. W. W. Reid, is a native of Rowan county, but he came here one year ago from Cabarrus county where he had lived for thirty years. His occupation has been farming heretofore; for a long time, also, he run a big mill at Mount Pleasant. His son and partner, Mr. J. C. Reid, had formerly been clerking for his uncle, Joel Reid, at Concord. These gentlemen have secured the services of T. J. Morgan, who has been clerking in Salisbury for the past seven years, and who has a large circle of acquaintances and friends, and with new goods, a fair field and no favors, the house may not unreasonably expect to do well. Everything in stock is fresh from the great cities—has been bought at rock-bottom prices, and while we don't suppose W. W. Reid & Son are disposed to actually give away goods, yet they are certainly marking them down. Call and see them, at all events.

SNIDER & MILLER. In October last Messrs. Snider & Miller formed partnership, rented the Nat. hotel property upon Main street and have since converted it into a first class hotel and restaurant, conducted upon the European plan. The firm have worked a complete transformation in the premises. Paint and wall paper have been profusely used, and every department of the Hotel is now in first class shape. The sleeping apartments have all been supplied with attractive sets of furniture. The floors are neatly carpeted, and the walls tastefully papered, while the beds are supplied with most comfortable mattresses and springs. Some of the rooms are en suite, for the use of families, and all are attractive. There are two dining rooms, one public and the other private, so that families or individuals can secure all the privacy they wish. To say that the tables are supplied with all the good things of life procurable no one who knows Mr. Snider will deny. He is fond of good living himself, and the long since learned how to cater to the tastes and appetites of others. Meats, birds, oysters and all the substantial and delicacies abound, and they are both cooked and served well. Upon the ground floor of the European Hotel is the bar and billiard rooms, the latter containing one pool and one billiard table. The bar is very elegantly furnished, its cabinet work being of mahogany and black walnut, artistically designed, and presenting a very graceful appearance. This bar furniture was furnished by Rothschild's Sons, of Cincinnati, and cost several hundred dollars. The choicest wines, liquors, ales, beer and cigars are carried in stock, and this department is freely patronized, and is kept up equally well with the culinary department as a stars.

Messrs. Snider & Miller have done a good thing for Salisbury in opening the European Hotel, and we can see no reason why it should not prove a remunerative investment. It is just the place for travelers of town or country people—its charges are extremely reasonable, and it is evident that Messrs. Snider & Miller will find themselves kept busy in meeting the demands the public will continue to make upon them.

E. N. MEDERNACH. The photographic art has but one representative here, nor is there room for another. Indeed Mr. Medernach has had hard work to build up a trade on the heels of as many failures as have been made here. But he is a persistent man as well as thorough artist, and the community have now learned that he is thoroughly competent. Mr. Medernach was formerly a fresco painter, and one of the best that ever visited the State, as his work at Raleigh, Newbern, Wilmington and elsewhere testifies. St. John's lodge in Newbern presents an enduring monument to his skill, and other cases might be cited, but continued ill-health compelled him to give up that profession, so, in 1865, he engaged in photography at Danville, Va. Subsequently he located at Statesville, and from there he came here and opened a gallery on the 1st of September, 1883. He has fitted up pleasant rooms on Main, corner of Fisher street, has provided himself with the best of instruments and excellent scenic effects, and is in every way prepared to make the various kind of portraits known to the profession. He makes especially fine portraits even up to life size, upon glass in oil colors; he also does beautiful crayon work, as well as enlarging, but thus far his business here has chiefly been photographic work in card and cabinet sizes. Our people ought to extend a liberal patronage to such an enterprise—art work preserves and perpetuates, and the higher the type of art sustained by a community, the higher the standard of intelligence.

WILLIAMS BROWN. During the winter months most of us become more or less exercised over the matter of stoves and all that the work implies, so the Watchman reporter has taken some pains to acquaint himself with the stove and kindred lines of trade here. Upon our note book are some items concerning Capt. Brown, and they are to this effect. The gentleman in question is from Fayetteville, this State, and in 1840, while yet a boy, he came to Salisbury, his father the late Allen Brown, then residing here. In 1841 or thereabouts, he began learning the trade of a tin and copper smith with his brother, J. D. Brown, and about 33 years ago he engaged in business upon his own account. At the outbreak of the late war he enlisted and was commissioned 3rd Lieutenant in the 4th N. C.; nine months later he resigned, returned to this section and raised Co. B of the 57th N. C., with which he went to the front with the rank of Captain, and he remained in the service until shortly before the surrender. In the meantime he had maintained his business here, and after the war he again assumed charge of it. He has had several partners, but for now nearly a year he has been alone. He has occupied the same location for upwards of thirty years. Capt. Brown usually employs three or four persons and besides doing a general range of tin, sheet iron and copper work has a considerable business in the repair of stills. He also does such outside work as roofing, gutters, spouting, &c. In stock he carries a general line of cooking and heating stoves from leading foundries of Albany, Philadelphia, Louisville and Nashville, and in heaters he makes a specialty of the "New Baltimorean" and the "Sunshine Fire Place Heater," the latter made by R. Painter & Co., of Philadelphia, and one that can be pronounced to be without a superior if having an equal. Prices in all lines are extremely reasonable this year, and Capt. Brown has had a most satisfactory business thus far. He looks upon trade prospects as being very fair, and old acquaintances and new will find him ready as ever to give value received in the case of every purchase made at his store.

W. SMITHDEAL. None of the business men of Salisbury are better or more favorably known to the people of this and adjacent sections of country than the gentleman to whom we now refer. Though yet, comparatively speaking, a young man, he has for a long term of years been identified with the mercantile interests of this his native town, and he has ever been known as a man who possessed progressive ideas. Those ideas have been of a practical character, too, and have been productive of practical results. Mr. Smithdeal entered upon the actualities of mercantile life in the year 1850 as a clerk for J. J. and J. A. McConaughy, general merchandise dealers, and he continued clerking until enlisting as a private soldier in the Fourth North Carolina regiment, in 1861. In 1862 he returned from the front and from that time on until the surrender he filled the position of transfer agent here, at Chester and Augusta. In 1865 he went north, realizing that at that time there were better opportunities for securing remunerative employment in that section than here at his old home, and he soon secured a position with a carpet house of Philadelphia. Subsequently he entered the employ of a boot and shoe house in the Quaker City and traveled for it. Upon returning to Salisbury Mr. Smithdeal opened a boot and shoe house here. When he quit that business he became a salesman for R. Crawford & Bro., general dealers, and soon after became associated with Crawford & Heilig, who opened a general hardware house. In 1871 Mr. Smithdeal organized the firm of Smithdeal, Barnhardt & Co. The co-partners being himself, C. T. Barnhardt and P. M. Barnhardt. In 1873

Mr. S. retired from that firm and went to Hickory, where he was in general trade for a year; then he again returned to his old home and opened a hardware house under the firm name of Smithdeal & Hartman, which was followed by that of Smithdeal & Caldwell, and when that firm was dissolved in 1876, Mr. S. became and has since remained sole proprietor. At Concord he also has a branch store, established three years ago, and which is doing a very good business under the management of J. L. Ritchie, the firm style being Smithdeal & Ritchie. In the house here Mr. Smithdeal is assisted by Mr. J. C. Taylor, salesman, who has been with him since 1870, and by Mr. P. M. Barnhardt, bookkeeper and salesman, who was one of the old firm of Smithdeal, Barnhardt & Co.

The visitor to Mr. Smithdeal's place of business will agree with us that it has quite as much the appearance of a wholesale as of a retail house, and we have no doubt that fully one half of the annual trade in the hardware and kindred departments are at wholesale. And so they should be. As nearly as possible Mr. Smithdeal makes his purchases of stock direct from leading manufacturers of the country and in such quantities that he can duplicate Richmond, Charlotte or other jobbing bills to advantage. His expense account is comparatively small—his annual sales are large—and though he does not travel for orders yet country merchants have found out that he can and does fill orders at such rates and with such promptitude as to make the house a desirable purchasing point. Extremely large stocks for a town the size of this are carried, and complete assortments are shown of everything relating to heavy or builders' hardware, tools, paints, oils, glass, cutlery, &c. wagon and carriage material, and blacksmith's supplies generally receive careful attention, and by looking closely to all the details of trade the house maintains its efficiency.

Two very important features of Mr. Smithdeal's business are, farm machinery and wagons and carriages. He sells engines and boilers made by Skinner & Wood, of Erie, Pa., and by the Westinghouse works of Shenectady, N. Y. He also represents the famous Geiser Manufacturing Co., of Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, and the Hagers-town (Md.) Engine and Machine Company—a company that is especially noted for producing the best clover huller ever offered the people of this or any other country. Threshers, reapers and mowers and other implements or machines from leading factories are carried, and particular attention is paid to the Avery and Dixie plows. It is a fact apparent to all that our farmers are rapidly learning that machine labor is cheaper and better than manual labor, and Mr. Smithdeal has certainly had very much to do in bringing about this improved condition of things.

We visited his carriage repository the other day and were astonished at the number of vehicles he carries in stock. Besides the wagons and buggies set up and standing upon the floor were stacked away great piles of boxes, running gear and the other component parts of vehicles and in this department alone there cannot be much less than $3,500 to $4,000 of stock carried. We noticed Columbus and Cortland wagons; also from the Whitney Co. of Syracuse, N. Y., and the world famous Studebaker and Tennessee farm wagons—in other words, they are all reliable goods—such goods as the house can sell without prejudice to its reputation.

We might go into further details relative to Mr. Smithdeal's business, but the foregoing will suffice to convey an idea of it, and that is all we can hope to do. We can add this, however: Every visitor to the house will meet with a cordial reception, whether he proves a purchaser or not.

J. M. BROWN. "Brown's Variety Store" is an establishment that one can better appreciate by visiting than by reading descriptive sketches of it. Upon counters and shelves and in all manner of receptacles are a thousand objects, each of which has its uses and purposes. There are family groceries and provisions, there are lamps and lampware, crystal and Bohemian ware; fancy articles of one kind and another; toys in profusion; there are foreign and domestic fruits—in fact the list is almost an endless one, and it rather puzzles one how Mr. Brown can remember what he has or has not in stock.

The house as it now is presents various stages of growth. Its beginnings were comparatively small, and the advance it has made has been in accordance with the well known and recognized maxim that "the gods help those who help themselves," and if ever a merchant in Salisbury has worked with a will toward the upbuilding of his business, Mr. Brown is one. He is a young man and a native of this town. He began trade life here as a clerk for Foster & Horah, and when he quit that house, ten years ago, he established his present business. He has had no partners and has made no change of location. He has manfully paddled his own canoe, and by the exercise of tact and sound judgment he has been enabled to sail in deeper waters from year to year—in other words the volume and scope of his trade has expanded.

We like to chronicle the success of our younger merchants—they will be the old merchants of the future, and we like to see them laying the foundations broad and deep and strong for future enterprises to rest upon.

(Continued next week.) John J. Ingalls was on the 27th elected United States Senator by the Kansas legislature. The deadlock is yet unbroken in the Arkansas legislature.—No change in the condition of the Illinois trouble to make a Senator.

There is to be a Mardi Gras festival in Mobile, February 16th and 17th. C. G. Wells, a very prominent business man of Galveston, Texas, is dead. Earthquake at San Francisco, at 1:33, on July 25th. No damage reported. A steamer passenger can now cross the Atlantic for $14—less than half a cent per mile. Senator Vest will be re-elected from Missouri. Voorhees has been re-elected Senator from Indiana. R. D. Mattoek shot and killed Pinkney Phelps, at Milton, N. C., on Saturday last, and then escaped into Virginia. The Arkansas legislature cannot agree on the election of a United States Senator. A deadlock has prevailed there for some weeks. FATAL FALSE TEETH.—A sick man in Wheeling, lying in bed, was strangled to death by his false teeth coming loose. A fire occurred among the books and records under the iron roof of the House of Representatives, at Washington, Jan. 24, but was subdued without important damage. A Paris paper announces the invention of a device actuated by electricity by means of which absolute security to railroad trains against collisions is assured. Tramps are getting to be a serious nuisance, especially in some of our more Southern cities. Macon, Ga., is thronged with them, and curious enough, they all profess to be sailors. Barnum has offered Gen. Grant $100,000 for the privilege of exhibiting his trophies and presents in his "greatest moral show on earth." Grant has not answered the letter of application. There was an attempt made last week to burn the Greensboro National Bank. The incendiary employed kerosene. Five hundred dollars is offered for the discovery of the person. The debate on the question of reducing the marriage license fee, has cost the State, says the Chronicle, about two thousand dollars. And yet it was defeated. The tax on commercial travelers ought to be amended to the relief of manufacturers in our own State. Mr. Hege makes a good point on this part of the law, and we think it should be met promptly. Recent snow storms in Italy have been almost unprecedented. The loss of life by avalanches among the mountains in Piedmont, was completely buried. The cries of the people under the snow was heart-rending, and thousands are at work trying to extricate them. There is a marked absence of leading questions for the action of the General Assembly. With the exception of the subject of the judiciary system, there is scarcely a subject which is uppermost in the minds of the members. What shall be formulated for action depends on the large joint committee which has the matter in charge. As before said the demand for larger facilities for the prompt administration of Justice is general.—Asheville Citizen.
