WAR IN EUROPE. At the present writing the news from across the water and the kingdoms for sometime past occupying belligerent attitudes, favors the hope of a pacific arrangement. It is greatly to be desired that two such nations as England and Russia shall give to the world the great lesson of magnanimity, instead of showing to i their ability to damage each other : should conserve the powers at their command in promoting the prosperity and happiness of their people instead of impoverishing and slaughtering them in the battle field. It yet remains to be seen what, if any, peaceable adjustment can be made, and on this question many important interests in this country hang suspended. The most important of these, it is believed, is the agricultural interest of America. If there is to be war, then the agricultural ists of this country should consider how men. it is likely to concern their plans for the year. Will there be a greater demand for cotton and tobacco than for meat and bread ? And their crops should be pitched with some reference to the probabilities of an answer to this question. It is generally conceded that meat and bread for the great armies in the field will in sure largely increased foreign demand for the products of the Western States of our country. Already some enormous transactions have been made in breadstuffs with Chicago merchants, predicated upon the apprehension of war. It is impossible just now to approxinate the increased foreign demand in the event of such a state of things as may result from hostilities between the two great powers mentioned. It is reasonable to suppose, how ever, that it will be large enough to concern the Southern as well as the Northern and Western States. A great many Southern farmers and planters keep their ment houses in the Western States, or depend on them for their meat supplies. mission the number of delegates to Should war come and find them trusting which their several municipalities are

Our Southern farmers cannot afford to compete for supplies under such circumstances. It therefore becomes their duty to consider the present condition of foreign affairs and shape their farm interests with due reference to it. It is always wise and safe to make provision for one's own support, but at a time like this the subject assumes much larger importance.

Waynesville pursues very nigidly the severe course of sanitation it entered upon last year. Then it stamped out en tirely the seeds of typhoid fever which was prevalent and fatal the year before. year there will be none. The causes were recognized, and removed. Let all onr towns, big and small, do likewise.-Ashe ville Citizen.

It is a fact, we believe, that the mountain towns of the State have for years had more typhoid fever than the middle sections of the State. The prevalence of this or some similar disease was, some years ago, the subject of anxions inquiry in some of the communities along the foot of the mountains, some medical men taking the ground that it was caused by the milk of cows which were allowed to graze at will during certain months in the year However this may be, all known causes of sickness, whether in the mountains or in this section, should be destroyed, and every necessary precaution taken to protect the public health. And we advert to this subject more for the sake of reminding the town authorities of Salisbury of the responsibilities resting upon them than anything else. Our town has been remarkably healthy for the last ten or twelve years, and it is believed that the sanitary means enforced here have had much to do in securing to us this blessing of priceless value.
