

Carolina Watchman.

THURSDAY, OCT. 1, 1885.

CHARLOTTE FAIR.—The annual Fair at Charlotte, opens this year on the 27th of October, and will last three days. The officers have issued a large and attractive show bill, announcing the main features of the proposed occasion.

CHINESE MUST GO.—A mob of masked whites went for the Chinese at New Castle Mines, Wyoming Territory, Saturday night last, and compelled them to leave in 24 hours or be killed with bullets. A special train carried them off.

THE NEWSPAPERS report a personal difficulty of no serious character between Capt. John S. Wise, Republican candidate for Governor of Virginia, and Dr. Temple, of Danville. Conflicting reports leave the whole matter in a fog to those at a distance, to whom accurate information would be of small consequence.

THE N. Y. Sun says that the bogus butter makers commenced business by using only the clean fat of beef cattle, but that they have gone away from that, step by step, until now they have got to using all kinds of grease, cotton seed oil, and gelatine, which is made of the hoofs of neat cattle and horses.

FIRE.—A prairie fire broke out in Dakota on the 18th, when the wind from the south was blowing at the rate of 60 miles an hour. The fire was driven with terrible fury, consuming everything in its track for miles. The loss in buildings and farm implements was heavy.

The Carthage Bulletin gives the particulars of the narrow escape from death of a three year old child which was playing in one of the streets of that town. It was attacked by a sow, which caught the child by the arm, and evidently intended to eat it. A negro woman happening to be near ran to the rescue of the child. The sow also ran, dragging the child as she held it by the arm, but the pursuit becoming wearisome she dropped it. The child was bruised and cut by the teeth of the animal, but not seriously hurt.

THE "SMITH" well fixture is probably the strongest and most durable of all the patent well fixtures extant; but this is insufficient for use on public wells. The one recently placed in front of the Holmes block was badly abused on Monday by people attempting to draw water from that well. The old fashioned windmill, if the frame could be made ornamental, is the only device that will accomplish the work satisfactorily; punish the careless, and be in place when Christmas comes.

It is now very generally known that sending written messages on the margins of newspapers through the mails is against the P. O. laws, and subjects the offender to the penalty of a fine of $5—provided, the person receiving the package refuses to pay letter postage on it. But is that all? Every citizen is under an implied oath to obey the laws. When he disobeys a law does he not disregard the oath? Or when he breaks the law does he not break the oath, and perjure himself? In this view of the case the offense cannot be regarded as a peccadillo, but a crime to be repented of.

FABUS H. BUSBEE, Esq., that stirring, public-spirited young democrat of Raleigh, has been made United States District Attorney for the Eastern District of this State. He is a lawyer of ability; a fine speaker, and has never been afraid to put his shoulder to the wheel and work for the best interests of the State when opportunity offered. Let the workers have office and not those who are content to lean quietly back in the easy arm chair of indolence, pillowing their heads on the downy cushion of "what I have been," and fly in and out of the party at will because office and honors are not poured at their feet. Times have changed. The toilers must reap the rewards.

Fertilizing Fruits.

It has been demonstrated that the quality (and it is believed the quantity also) of fruits may be very materially improved by a proper selection of the fertilizers employed for the trees. Very acid fruits may be made sweeter by fertilizers calculated to neutralize the acidity in the soils in which they grow. Lime, ashes and bone meal, applied in the fall and again in the spring, will be found useful agents to improve the quality and quantity.

Honors to Fitz Lee.

The people of Roanoke county, Va., propose a grand ovation and procession in honor of Gen. Fitz Lee, the distinguished Democratic candidate for Governor of Virginia, to take place at the county seat, Salem, Oct. 1st. A very large gathering is expected, and the preparations for accommodating and marshaling the people are thorough and exact to a minute. Gen. Lee will address the people at 11 o'clock, a. m. At night it is arranged for him to address the citizens of Roanoke City, and visiting clubs that may be present. D. G. Armstrong, in command for the occasion, seems to be the right man in the right place, and has planned a very brilliant day for the distinguished candidate.

A reporter for the Raleigh News-Observer must be "daisy"—he objects to grease and wood chopping on the streets of the capital city.

THE NEW YORK STATE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The New York State Democratic Convention concluded its labors at Saratoga on the 24th. DAVID B. HILL received the nomination for re-election as Governor. The platform adopted by this Convention, opens with congratulations of the "people of the whole Union on the election of Grover Cleveland to be President of the United States." Next, they endorse the State government by Gov. David B. Hill. And next, they re-affirm the declarations of the Democratic National Conventions of 1876, 1880, and 1884 in regard to the necessity of reforming the civil service, but condemn the actual administration of the existing civil service law as the same as has been executed by the Republican party, who abused its provisions for the purpose of keeping Republicans in office. The platform condemns the further coining of silver as likely to injure the business interests of the country, and demands the repeal of the act under which the compulsory coining of silver goes on. They call for a revision of the tariff upon the principles of fairness to all interests, and an enlargement of the free lists—that American labor shall not be deprived of the ability to compete successfully with foreign labor, &c.

Three Men and a Woman Lynched.

Last Tuesday morning the bodies of four negroes, Jerry Finch, his wife Harriet, Lee Tyson and John Patti-shall, were found hanging to the limbs of a tree about one mile from Pittsboro, in Chatham County. They were the perpetrators of the two Chatham County murders—the most heart-rending, cold-blooded crimes that have blackened the fair name of the State for years. The Gunter murder occurred in Dec. '83; Mrs. Olive Gunter, Miss Jane Gunter (both aged people) and a little eight year old grand-daughter of Mrs. Gunter were the victims. The Finch murder occurred the night of the last fourth of July, '85, and was also a triple murder. The victims were Mr. Edwin Finch, Miss Sallie Finch (70 and 81 years respectively) and a negro boy named Ellington, who slept in the house.

After careful investigation, aided by expert detectives, it was ascertained beyond a doubt that the parties who were found lynched last Tuesday morning were the guilty ones. The people, whites and negroes have been on the verge of taking the law in their hands ever since suspicion pointed to the four negroes hanged, but they wisely waited for the facts to come out before the execution took place. There is no doubt but that they deserved death; but does not every Judge and lawyer in the State tremble at this state of things! Will the people's respect for and confidence in the courts ever return? How long is it to last? The people have taken the administration of criminal law into their own hands. When it is ascertained that murder, rape or arson has been committed, and there is no doubt as to the guilt of the party, there is a lynching. Why so? Because there is no confidence in the administration of the laws through legal channels. This is terrible! How long can it be kept up within present bounds? Will not the spirit soon spread until it poisons every institution and lays hold on the vital foundations of society? There seems to be no limit. O that the laws were administered in righteousness that the people might be saved from crime!

State Fair.

The North Carolina State Fair, will be held this year from the 12th to the 17th of October. It offers $8,000 and upwards in premiums. Lists of what may be obtained by addressing John Nichols, Esq., Raleigh. Ladies should know that a premium of $25 is offered on the best 10 pounds of Butter. $50 is offered for the largest yield per acre of cotton, from five acres; largest yield of one acre, $25; and for the best 50 lbs. bright lemon wrappers, (tobacco), $50 is offered; for the best 25 lbs. mahogany, $50; best 25 lbs. cutters, $25, &c. For the largest yield of wheat from 25 acres, $50; largest yield of oats from five acres, $50. Send for a premium list if you enter the contests. The present indications promise an interesting week at Raleigh this year.

VIRGINIA STATE FAIR.—The State Agricultural Society of Virginia will hold its 25th annual Exhibition at Richmond, commencing October 21st and continuing three days. It is always an occasion of much interest, and those North Carolina citizens who may attend it, will doubtless see much to please and gratify them. We are indebted to the president of the Society, Robt. Beverly, and the Secretary, Geo. W. Mayo for a complimentary ticket, and circumstances permitting, shall be delighted to visit the Fair.

THE STATE FAIR is offering very liberal premiums this year, for farm products, cattle, &c.—wheat, oats, corn, peas, rye, grasses, cows, sheep, goats, hogs, horses, mules, &c. Persons wishing to exhibit stock or contest for premiums should send to John Nichols, Esq., Raleigh, for Premium Lists for accurate information.

The News-Observer also notes the fact that thousands of pounds of sumac go to waste every year in Wake; we would add that millions of pounds go to waste in the State. It is a valuable dye, as our country people generally know. It is very valuable as a tan, also, and in Va. a large business is done in sumac leaves.

YADKIN RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. Frank Brown and Engineer Elliott are pushing the government work on the Yadkin river with all the haste possible under the circumstances. For several years great activity has been blocked in a measure by the supposed insurmountable obstacle of Swicegood's mill dam. In the mean time the work was completed up to that point. The Government refused to pay for the destruction of mill dams on the ground that right of way should be given to a great public work of that nature; dam owners, on the other hand, claimed that the destruction of their dams and water powers was too much of a sacrifice for individuals to make, who were no more interested in the benefits to accrue to the whole people than any other individual. So matters stood as the force approached Swicegood's dam, and it looked as if the work must stop, as no effort was being made to buy Swicegood out, and no inclination on his part to concede the right of way. But Mr. Brown's ingenuity proved equal to the emergency. He formulated a plan which he considered perfectly feasible, but the engineer then in charge did not so regard it and refused to send plans forward for approval. Subsequently another engineer was placed on the work who thought favorably of Mr. Brown's plan. Specifications and plans were sent to and approved by the proper authorities, and now, bravo, the work goes regularly on. Mr. Brown's plan not only does not damage the Swicegood water-power, but has given it eight inches more head than it ever had, while the water in the channel the government is making is a foot higher than in the head of the dam.

The water will soon be too cold for the men to work in, so that there will be a lapse until next summer. The season for doing this work, which keeps the men in the water all day, is very short, consequently it becomes necessary to rush the work while the weather is propitious. This has been done, but working in water is a slow business at best. The clearing of the Swicegood obstacle is considered quite a feat for the short season, and much credit is due Mr. Brown for his untiring energy and devotion to the work, which will ultimately result in giving the people of the great Yadkin valley a cheap and convenient freight way to the great marts of the world. The crops in the Yadkin valley, from its source on the Blue Ridge to the State's border, are always good—this year immense—and there is no means of transportation save the wagon. The North Carolina division of the R. & D. is the only railroad which crosses the Yadkin.

Washington Letter.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25, 1885.
The most interesting events of the week have been the resignation of Civil Service Commissioner Eaton, and the reply of the President accepting the resignation. One of the most interesting coming events will be the appointment of a new set of Commissioners. Who will they be, what will they do? It is certain that the new Democratic Administration has been much hindered and embarrassed by the Civil Service Law as interpreted by a Republican Civil Service Commissioner. If a clean sweep could have preceded the making of the law, it would have been salutary. But the attempt to graft the law upon an unspeakable civil service, that rotten heritage of the Republican party, has resulted in the negation of much of such patriots have striven through the use of corrupt art of the ascendancy of the party of spoils. No one with the least acquaintance with the history of politics since the war can deny that the Republican party has been the party of spoils. And it has appropriated the spoils in such an open and atrocious way, from the insignificant places of scrub-women and towel-washers up to the highest judicial places; that its professions of friendliness to proposed reforms in the distribution of office small as strong of hypocrisy as to make one sick.

When Mr. Cleveland was placed in the President's chair it was supposed that he would turn out many of the corrupt men who never were appointed on civil service rules, or for and service except such as rendered in the bad cause of fixing elections, buying votes, stuffing ballot-boxes, and stealing the Presidency in 1876. But, the President has been embarrassed by the knowledge that a packed Republican jury in the Senate will sit in judgment upon all his appointments. It is possible but not probable that the Senate will be Democratic before the lapse of the Presidential term. Unless this shall come about, there can be no hope of complete and thorough civil service reform during the present administration. Reformed is impossible while the offices are filled with the corrupt and good men who have been placed in office by a long line of Republican presidents, cabinet officers, senators and members.

Change and purification is a crying demand in all the Departments. The oft used metaphor of the Augean Stables is not exaggeration when applied to them. Democrats, well selected and good men, have been given the prominent offices. In other words new commanders have been placed over an alien army, a host of servile mutineers, whose study, day and night, is to assassinate the cause under the banner of which they are marching. The new commanders sincerely desire to regain the land of political honesty and economy once held by their fathers, and they have given the command "about march" in healthy tones. The Colonels repeat the command but with less confidence, for they are nearer the army, while the captains and lieutenants initiate it with a wink well understood by the treacherous host.

There will never by any serious reform in the Departments until at least one-half of the light fingered expert subordinates are put out, and at least one-half of the army of civil service employees is composed of men in hearty accord with the democratic principles which placed a Democratic President in the White House. There is to-day in the Interior Department nearly every one of the officials who have been responsible for the ring rule which has so long dominated that department. Some of them are kept to-day in the face of the fact that their presence has been the cause of scandal in the past, and must be the cause of scandal in the future. There seems to be a timid spirit running all through the business of the Interior Department; a conservative dread of hurting the feelings of the old ring officials. The same spirit which dictated the recent dodging around the corner appointments in the Patent Office is found in many of the bureaus of this department. There is no doubt that the service here would be greatly improved if as clean a sweep of the chiefs of bureaus were made as has been made in the Treasury Department.

Fading Summer.

Wilson's Mirror.
Summer is fast gathering up her duster-sprinkled robes for departure, while soft as a dream of beauty, gliding Autumn, wet with golden mist, steps upon the russet lawn, and tints with gorgeous coloring the varied scene of nature's faithful studio. Yes, summer time is almost gone, the bloom and beauty of its realm will soon fade away, and even autumn winds, sighing through leafless trees, will, in a little while from now, whisper in its chilly breath of its own short reign, and tell of the icy kiss and frozen embrace of hoary winter. The fall of the leaf is but a whisper to the living, and in the sad transition from bloom to decay, from life and beauty to death and gloom, we learn the mournful lesson of our own mortality, and are brought face to face with the solemn, awful truth that we, too, must die; that like the leaves, we, too, must lose our hold upon the stem of existence, and drop into the hush and silence of the grave. And being thus so forcibly and so touchingly reminded of the certainty of death, how necessary it is for us to strive to make the closing act in life's sad drama a scene radiant with the reflections of contracts fulfilled, and finished, and the calm of dissolution unbroken by not a single whisper of conscience. And now, while the cotton is coming into market, we hope those who are in arrears will remember us, and then the gloom of the melancholy days will fall upon us sprinkled in warm rays of sunshine, and will be like the ashes of our hold upon the stem of existence. Then, come up, friends, and pay for the Mirror, and let us all be ready to die in peace.

CINCINNATI is, by a kind of tradition that has outlived its day, called the hog-packing city of the west. It used to be familiarly known as "Porkopolis." But it is now at the bottom of a list of eight great packing cities. Chicago packs two-thirds of the hogs treated in this way, and Cincinnati less than 3 per cent. of the whole number.—Ex.

Pensioners.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION BY THE BOARD OF INQUIRY.

The State board of inquiry, whose duty it is to pass upon the validity of pensions, &c., has decided that widows whose husbands died from natural causes or disease, and soldiers who were otherwise disabled at the time of their death, do not come within the meaning of the pension act. This makes the number of pensioners allowed about 2,400, of which about half are widows. This will give each a pension this year approximating $12.50. Had the other classes been allowed there would have been 4,000 pensioners and they would each have received $7.50.—News-Observer.
