OL XVII.—THIRD SERIES.

NO. 11

Carolina Watchman.

THURSDAY, DEC. 31, 1885.

Humbugger.

The Statesville Landmark has been dealing out some sensible advice to those who trade with strolling peddlers, having heard of a considerable swindle in a neighboring county by one of them. The WATCHMAN also has from time to time warned country people to beware of the strollers, and when they want anything to go to a responsible and respectable merchant who may always be found and confronted, if necessary, about any article he may sell which fails to be as represented. But people are hard to learn—so hard that it convinces that Dr. H— of Louisiana, when a young man and had occasion to excuse himself for "playing on the harp of a thousand strings," was right when he exclaimed, "Bless your life, friend, the people love to be humbugged, and if you don't humbug 'em some they won't like you." Yes, he was right in his judgment of the nature of men and women; and as he was fond of popularity, he would feel the bumps on their heads and blows; if sick, he would give them bread pills and cure by inspiring with the hope of living; if suffering for the lack of excitement, he would send up a balloon, or tell a laughable story. He always knew what he was doing, and made every thing pay as it came or as it went. "People love to be humbugged," peddlers know it, and the newspapers had about as well stop preaching against them, for they are going to "travel" in spite of it all.

The Charlotte Observer notes the fact that no accidents have happened on the railroads this Christmas, as is generally the case, whereof railroad men are glad. The same paper reports a gunning accident in Lincoln county on Christmas day. Several young men were out shooting rabbits, and a man on brush heap, in hand, trying to scare one out, fired at it as it ran, but instead of hitting the rabbit, lodged three shot in the face of one of the party, by which an eye was certainly destroyed and may have to be cut out.

H. C. Eccles moves out of the Central Hotel, Charlotte, and opens the Belmont, over Wilson's Drug Store. He is a prince in his line.

Samuel R. Cohen, an old merchant of Charlotte, is dead.

A Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier Journal, writing about President Cleveland, says: "His most obvious characteristics are straight forwardness and simplicity, both in speech and in bearing. He is uncommonly self-possessed and self-contained. His disposition is entirely kindly and courteous. He is at heart a gentleman. I like him best when I meet him face to face. He possesses the faculty of curing doubts and allaying fears. He is conscientious and disinterested and is trying to do his duty. There is no room to say much more in favor of a man."

The Apache Indians are making bloody work in Arizona and New Mexico. They have massacred numerous white families, plundered and burned their houses and run off their stock. Government troops are no longer relied on as a protection. The Governor of Arizona and the frontiersmen are organizing military bands to pursue and kill or capture them.

A story comes out from Washington city on the fashionable girls of the capital, to the effect that they are tattooing their cheeks to make them rosy, and that it is done with such consummate skill that it will not only last through life, but that they will go to their graves with red cheeks.

Some one in New York whose conscience troubled him about public funds, wrongfully in his hands, cut the bills making the sum into two parts, and sent one part to the U. S. Treasurer one day and the other part the next day.

A negro who murdered Miss Carrie Boyer, at Gains town, Clarke county, Alabama, on the 18th December, was chained to a tree on the 27th, and slowly burnt to death by an indignant crowd of whites and blacks.

Four boys sent from New Jersey to Pasteur, the Parisian scientist, to be cured of hydrophobia, are still under treatment with no unfavorable symptoms.

It cost $118,000 to extirpate the small-pox from Montreal, Canada. It is no small misfortune to a town to have such a disease get abroad.

Hall & Bahanon, tobacco manufacturers of Hickory, compliment their friends this season with a very pretty Christmas card.

NOTICE TO DRUGGISTS AND STORE KEEPERS.

I guarantee Shriver's Indian Vermifuge to destroy and expel worms from the human body, where they exist, if used according to directions. You are authorized to sell it upon the above conditions. David E. Foutz, Proprietor, Baltimore, Md.

Letter From Africa.

Through the courtesy of Mr. James H. Ramsay, a portion of a letter written him from his brother, Mr. W. G. Ramsay, now at the Akankoo mines, West Africa, is published. It bears date Nov. 12, 1885. He says:

Nothing of interest has transpired in this part of creation since I last wrote you. I went down to Axim day before yesterday. Axim is about 85 miles from the mines by river. We went down in our launch in two hours and five minutes. Pretty good traveling for a steam launch on a river in Africa. Coming back I saw four or five alligators sunning themselves on the river bank. I had no gun or I could have killed them. I had a pistol though, and shot at them. Whether I succeeded in hitting any of them or not I can't say, but I woke them from their sleep and caused them to roll into the water. Also saw a monkey and more parrots than you could shake a stick at. Axim is a small town on the sea shore and only one or two white people are there. There is only one building of any importance in it and that is an old slave fort. The British D. Commissioner now resides there. These old forts along the coast are where they used to bring the slaves bought for safe keeping until some vessel came to take them away. I was honored to—by a visit from one of the native kings, who came down in all his glory with all his emblems of royalty about him. After talking awhile through an interpreter, I gave the old fellow a bottle of trade gin, and he went away very much pleased; for they are all passionately fond of gin. When one dies they all want gin to have a kind of Irish wake. One of them "kicked the bucket" not very long ago, and they came to me to get gin for a "palaver," as they call it; but it not being exactly in accordance with my notions as to the way dead people should be treated, or rather living people should treat the dead, I sent them away empty handed.

Since I last wrote you I have had an attack of the celebrated "African fever," and I tell you it's "a caution." It don't give any warning of its approach, but suddenly comes on and lays you on your bed to stay until it gets through with you. I had awful pains with it all the time. A pain would start down my back like "greased lightning" and branch off into two or three parts and die out. These pains would almost make me jump out of bed, and they returned about every ten seconds. (The severest pain I had near the heart. It was caused by an inflammation of some of the parts surrounding the heart, and when it first came on it felt as if a heavy weight were resting on my body. Soon after commenced a throbbing pain, which lasted a whole day and night. The doctor put a leech on my chest which took some blood from me. I can't describe the African fever, and there is no use in my trying. The symptoms are peculiar to it—not experienced in any other disease. I am entirely over it now and feel perfectly well.

I would certainly be in no hurry to leave here, but the Company will, I am almost sure, burst up in a few months. So much money has been spent foolishly on the property, that now the Company is about to get a good reef from the money runs out. The same old mining story.

A postscript says Mr. Ramsay will probably remain in Africa until the last of January next, after which time he will visit Paris and other points in the old world before returning to his native State.

Literary Department.

Conducted by A. R. Goldsboro, N. C.

"The Century Magazine"—Conspicuous among the varied features of the January "Century" are the short stories, "Trouble on Lost Mountain," by Joel Chandler Harris (Uncle Remus), is even more powerful than his longer character novelette, "At Teague Ivets's," the scene of both being laid among the moonshiners of northern Georgia. In the other short story of the number, "The Cloverfields Carriage," by Frank R. Stockton, the humorous motive is the desire of a negro coachman who had left his former owner, in order to make his freedom appear a reality, to recover his former dignity as a trustee of the white family. Mrs. Mary Halleck Poote's new serial of Western Life, "John Bodewin's Testimony," in the third part points strongly to dramatic situations. Mr. James' "Bostonians" assumes new and interesting phases as it approaches the conclusion, which will be reached in the next number.

The companion magazine issued from the same presses is the "St. Nicholas"—a magazine for Young Folks. The issue for January is both in point of time and contents another Christmas number. W. D. Howells leads off with his long-promised story, which is delightfully unconventional, and has the bewilderingly suggestive title, "Christmas Every Day," and some amusing illustrations by his little daughter, Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett follows with another installment of her charming serial, "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; Horace E. Scudder, the author of the favorite "Bodley" books, contributes the opening and very interesting chapters of his story of the life of George Washington, which will be illustrated from many sources; there is a short "Bit of Talk for Young Folks," by Helen Jackson (H. H.); and H. H. Boyesen writes one of his entertaining tales of two continents. There is not room to tell of the many other attractions of this number.

"Outing"—The January number of Outing contains several articles of special interest. In "Thoughts on Archery" is presented a history of archery from earliest times accompanied by a frontispiece and many other superb illustrations, drawn by Hy. Sandham. An illustrated yachting article, in two parts, "The Cruise of the Phylon," with humorous illustrations by Reel, from the Log of the Cruise, begins in this issue. The "Thomas Stevens series," "Around the World on a Bicycle," increases in interest with each issue as he journeys toward the Orient. The January paper of the series is entitled "Bulgaria, Roumelia, and into Turkey," and is fully illustrated. A description of "The Ladies' Tricycle Run to Kettle Cove," by Minna Caroline Smith, graces also the pages of "Outing." Published at 175 Fremont St., Boston.

"The Overland Monthly"—The last "Overland" is a fit number to close a year of great advance and promise. It contains the announcements for 1886, which show a prospect of even larger gains during the coming year. The Eastern, English, and Colonial press has for months begun to comment on this Pacific magazine in tones as warm as those of the Western press; and "far in advance of any literary periodical west of the Alleghenies," is a frequently recurring phrase. It is always a matter of surprise to those making the acquaintance of the "Overland," that the Pacific slope can produce so mature literary results; and it is hard to imagine anything that can do more to raise the Eastern and foreign ideas of the Pacific community than a journal like this, going out, as the "Overland" does, to all corners of the English-reading world. All other developments of a community's higher civilization—its schools, art, music, churches, libraries—remain within its own borders, and are known to outsiders only by visits; but its literature goes forth far and wide, to everyone's door. Such a magazine is certain to prove a most valuable agent in building up the good name of the State and thereby attracting to it the best class of people. It is therefore not only an honor, but a matter of direct interest to the people of that region to support liberally this excellent journal. No cultured home can do without it. Published monthly at 120 Letter St., San Francisco, Cal.

We welcome to our desk that excellent monthly, "Ballou's Magazine," which is a family magazine in every respect. The contents for January are unusually "enterprising, instructive, amusing reading." It now appears in a new and attractive dress of type, which, while adding to the appearance of this popular magazine, must greatly increase its value to subscribers by reason of its legibility of character and clearness of the type and printed page reflects credit alike on the type foundry and the printers. The illustrations are faultless and to the point. This improvement, together with the fact that some of the best and most popular writers in the English language will continue to contribute to its pages, makes "Ballou's Monthly" the cheapest and most valuable publication of its kind in the world. Boston, G. W. Studley. Terms, $1.50

An Interesting Fact.

(Hickory Press)

B. F. Grady, Esq., of Duplin county, one of the most learned men in the State, writes to the News and Observer, recalling the historical fact that Aaron Burr resigned the office of Vice-President in 1802 (or thereabouts) and became a candidate for Governor of the State of New York. Mr. Grady proceeds thus: "There upon, if I infer rightly, the Senate chose a North Carolinian to be its presiding officer—Jesse Franklin, of Surry,—at the same time that Nathaniel Macon was Speaker of the house of representatives. At any rate I find their names signed to an act of the Congress approved March 28, 1804. This was a distinction—and the recalling of it was the main purpose of this note—which has no parallel in the history of this Union."

Don't Be a Clam.

Winston Sentinel.

Frank Siddell, the famous soap manufacturer, and the most practical as well as original advertiser in the country, in one of his homilies about advertising, which, it is needless to say, closes with the advice to not be a clam, says: "Don't advertise by means of circulars, or sandwich-men, or fence painting, or bill posting merely because it has been done for thirty years, or because you have always done it, or because some old fossils believe in it. Every family takes a newspaper nowadays; they did not do so thirty years ago. Be on the lookout for new ideas. Keep up with the times. Don't get set in 'your ways.' Don't be a clam."

Our friend of the Tarboro Southern carries a level head on the subject of the Federal Pedagogy invasion. We copy some figures concerning the distribution of funds for education in Edgecombe county. It will be seen that the whites received $1,504.00, and the negroes $7,527.91, and that there is left over from last year an unappropriated sum of $8,000. Here is a showing of one county alone, with an educational surplus of $8,000, and yet members of Congress are blowing for a Federal appropriation to help the schools. Humbug!—Jb.

WARD'S WOES.

His Desperate Struggle and how It Ended.

Just twenty-seven miles from the classic city of Athens, Ga., is located the thriving little town of Maxey, the residence of Mr. Robert Ward, who has just been released from a most perilous predicament, the particulars of which he has consented to give to the public. He writes as follows:

MAXEY'S, OLETHORPE CO., GA.
July 9th, 1885.

For twelve or fourteen years I have been a great sufferer from a terrible form of blood poison which ran into the secondary, and finally it was pronounced a tertiary form. My head, face and shoulders became almost a mass of corruption, and finally the disease commenced eating away my skull bones. I became so horribly repulsive that for three years I absolutely refused to let people see me. I used large quantities of most noted blood remedies, and applied to nearly all physicians near me, but my condition continued to grow worse, and all said that I must surely die. My bones became the seat of excruciating aches and pains; my nights were passed in misery; I was reduced in flesh and strength; my kidneys were terribly deranged, and life became a burden to me.

I enhanced to see an advertisement of B. B. B., and sent one dollar to W. C. Birchmore & Co., merchants of our place, and they procured one bottle for me. It was used with decided benefit, and when eight or ten bottles had been used, I was pronounced sound and well.

Hundreds of scars can now be seen on me, looking like a man who had been burned and then restored. My case was well known in this county, and for the benefit of those who may be similarly afflicted, I think it my duty to give the facts to the public, and to extend my heartfelt thanks for so valuable a remedy. I have been well for over twelve months, and no return of the disease has occurred.

ROBERT WARD.

Maxey's, Ga., July 1, 1885.—We, the undersigned, know Mr. Robert Ward, and take pleasure in saying that the facts above stated by him are true, and that his was one of the worst cases of Blood Poison we ever knew in our county, and that he has been cured by B. REMARKS.

If B. B. B. will cure such terrible cases as the above, is it not reasonable to suppose that any and all cases of Blood Disease can be cured? We do not announce the cure of a man while he is at home groaning and suffering with the disease, but all of our certificates are words of truth from those who have been cured and can look up squarely in the face and say so. We cure in a shorter time, with less money and less medicine than ever before known. We will mail our "Book of Wonders," free to any one, filled with more astounding home evidence than ever before published. Call on your druggist, or address
