We notice in some of our exchanges that three men were drowned in the Yadkin River last week by a boat capsizing. We take pleasure in saying that the men were not drowned. From what we can learn, Mr. John Hanes and his little son, Jimmie and another man went up the river to raft some logs, and while returning the boat capsized. The man swam to a flat and Mr. Hanes caught his son, placed him in a place of safety and took off after the raft-swimming two miles before he overtook it and succeeded in landing it at Fulton .- Davie Times.

HOW TO SAVE GOLD

TRIPLER AMALGAMATOR!

This machine is a combination of silver plates so as to represent a large amalgamating surface, working with rapidity and efficacy, which has not hitherto been accomplished. The drawing above represents the machine in working position. It consists of four corrugated plates fitted together, allowing a space between of inch. Two plates are perpendicular, connecting with two horizontally inclined. The pulp passes from the battery and falls perpendicularly through the plates, which gives it a zigzag motion, causing the free gold to impin c on each side, when it passes through the horozontally inclined plates, which act as riffles, catching any escaped gold both en top and bottom. The plates discharge in a circular pan at the end which is given a rotary motion, thus concentrating the heavier portion of the tailings for subsequent treatment if necessary. At the top of the machine is a mercury cup which feeds automatically

This machine is especially adapted for placer mines. It can be worked with or without water; it requires no mill for pulverization, it only being necessary to sift the sand, which can be done at a triffing cost, so that low grade ore can be worked profitsbly. This machine has been practically tested and is now on the Herring mine, Randolph county, where it met with such success as to warrant the belief that it will be of great value to the mining interest of this State. This machine has an electrical attachment by which the mercury, should it be sickened by the various causes to which it is liable, can be instantly restored to activity, Inspection is invited. Estimates given for the erection of this machine on places and other mines; also for all other Mining Machinery by the undersigned,
