A Sober Letter. Happiness in this life is the one great m of men and women. The young seek it more eagerly than those whose age has given them the advantage of experience. Man's imperfect knowledge of what is good or evil should warn him to be temperate, and attach him more firmly to those few things known to be good. A sound mind in a sound body are of this class and first in value. Health and peace, a moderate fortune and a few friends, sum up all the undoubted elements of worldly
