"Josiar."

I never kin for't the day That we went out a-walkin', An' 'ot down on the river bank, An' 'ept on hours a talkin'; He twisted up his apron string, An' 'folded it together, An' 'e thought for harvest time 'Twas cur'us kind o' weather.

The sun went down as we sot there— Josiar seemed uneasy, An' mother she began to call: "Loweezy! O Loweezy!" An' then Josiar spoke right up As I was just a-startin', An' said: "Loweezy, what's the use Of us two ever partin'?"

It kind o' took me by surprise, And yet I knew 'twas comin'— I heard it all the summer long In every wild-bee's hummin'; I'd studied out the way I'd act, But I couldn't do it; I meant to hide my love from him, But seems as if he knew it, An' lookin' down into my eyes He must a seen the fire. An' ever since that hour I've loved An' worshiped my Josiar!

Secrets of Beauty. "Virginia," in St. Louis Chronicle. Girls, if your skin be dark, be satisfied to be in the category of the nut-brown maidens if for no other reason than that "the leopard cannot change his spots." Let the sun kiss the dusky cheek, and add to it the ruddy glow that belongs to the dark skin, and which the rouge pot cannot supply.

Of course you cannot change your features. But you needn't trouble yourself much on that score. Some person has said that if "our Mary" could put some of her beauty of feature into red every day prettiness she would be loved where he is now admired.

The towering nosed maidens among the proud daughters of the Nine was the beauty of Solomon's day, as was the woman with no nose at all in the time of Tamerlane. In the "land of the free" there is no standard of beauty on the nose question. The American nose is a type all to itself. But at all events your nose is a foregone conclusion, and all the sleeping in clothes pins to pinch down the too prominent nostrils, or stroking with the lead pencil to subdue the obnoxious bump, is so much labor thrown away. But when it comes to the mouth the would-be beauty has a more promising subject to deal with. Although the shape of the feature cannot be altered, if the lips be kept fresh and the teeth in perfect condition, very much is gained. If the stop where love seals its rows be of an exaggerated size don't be constantly on the grin, as that keeps the muscles on the stretch. Cultivate a classic repose of feature. Keep the mouth shut when asleep for more reasons than one. (Don't snore.) Never bite the lips to make them red or for any other reason. Bathe them occasionally in water, with a little dissolved alum or borax, and apply glycerine and tincture of benzine. This will keep the lips fresh looking. The only harmless way to keep them red is by contrast with the teeth, which should be milk white.

A good tooth, beautifier is powdered sulphur, which is also an excellent tooth preserver. This may be used daily. For occasional use, say once a week, the following is a good recipe: Parnicestone, one ounce; bicarbonate soda, one half ounce; powdered talc, one half ounce.

Fresh looking lips, clean white teeth and a breath like "sweet frankincense, aloes and myrrh," will make up for many a deficiency in feature.

If the ear be big and obtrusive, a loose arrangement of the hair or a few curled locks brushed carelessly back will help the objectionable organ wonderfully. Never comb the hair straight back from an ugly ear.

As for the eyes, better leave them alone. Trimmed lashes often refuse to grow again. Dark eyebrows and lashes are a great promoter of beauty, and if yours happen to be lighter than your hair, especially if that is red, I think you might just touch them lightly with a sponge dipped in black walnut bark boiled in water with a little alum, or apply simple walnut juice. The eyebrows may be given a slight arch, and the fine line so much sought, by simply pinching the hairs together between the fingers several times a day.

But it is through the complexion that you have the largest scope for beautifying. If every pore in your skin is stuffed full of "lily white" you must expect those dreadful pimples and horrid black specks. To the girl with the ugly skin I say, you must take a two or three mile walk every day; you must wear shoes big enough for perfect comfort, and if the skin be thick and oily, you must eschew fats and pastry.

In the spring it would be well to try the sulphur remedy, and at the same time you may rub sulphur in a little glycerine on the face at night, washing it off in warm water and a few drops of ammonia in the morning.

A little camphor in the water will remove all "shine." And remember girls, all face powders are snares and delusions.

No Genuine Granite at All. Cincinnati Sun. "There is no true granite in America as geologists understand it," was the rather surprising remark of Expert de Roser to a little gathering on "Change the other day."

He was asked to explain himself further, and he went on thus: "Well, Mr. Dana, the celebrated geologist, says: 'True granite is composed of quartz, feldspar and mica.' I believe those are his exact words. Now, this is a fact; then, I repeat, there has never been a block of true granite discovered on the American continent nor anywhere else in the world that I have ever seen. All accepted granite has a portion of hornblende in it. This is admitted by the modern German lithologists as a natural component part of the great paving stone. The more hornblende that appears the harder is the granite. In fact, all hard American granite is called hornblende granite."

What it Takes to Build up a Town. Grit. Push. Snap. Vim. Energy. Churches. Schools. Colleges. Morality. Enterprise. Harmony. Industry. Corollary. Advertising. Cheap property. Healthy location. Good country tributary. Talk about it. Speak well about it. Help to improve it. Advertise in and read the town papers. Patronize its merchants. Faith, exhibited by good works. Honest competition in business. Welcome manufactories and rail roads. Welcome macadamized streets with plenty of shade trees. Make things look bright and attractive. Help along all public enterprises. Elect good men to office. Speak well of its public-spirited, enterprising citizens, and be one of them yourself. Remember that every dollar invested in permanent improvements is that much on interest. Always cheer on men who go in for improvements.—Industrial South.

The Pot Hunters. Lookout for the idle town and country pot hunters from now until winter puts an end to their wild frolics. If your land is not posted post it at once, and then enforce the law upon every one you find tramping around with gun and dogs upon your premises. These gentlemen pay no regard to your vested rights, but bang away right and left, regardless of what may be in the way. Over fences and through gates they go, not stopping to close the one or put back the rails they tumbled from the other. They would fish in your private pond or shoot your tame turkey for a wild one as any other. They do not respect law, but trespass around with impunity, and are insolent if you warn them off. Near the towns they have become a great nuisance, and they are not unknown in the more settled sections of the country.

Land owners should band themselves against these people. Farmers should act in concert, have their farms posted, and when a gang of these hunters comes around, assemble in a squad and warn them off or take to a magistrate. Of course those who come and politely ask permission to hunt or fish, and will demean themselves with becoming propriety and regard to property, should be dealt with differently. It is not the value of the game these people capture, so much as the petty annoyances and trespasses they are guilty of, that make their presence so undesirable.

We say give them no encouragement. Enforce the law. At the same time we would advise that you proceed

Help Yourself.

Young men help yourself—fight your own battles. Ask no favors of any one, and you will succeed five thousand times better than one who is always beseeching some one's influence or patronage. No one will ever help you as you can help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs. The first step will be such a long one perhaps; but carving your own way up the mountain, you make each one lead to another, and stand firm while you chop still another out. Men who have made fortunes are not those who have had five thousand given to start with, but boys who have started fair with a well-acquired dollar or two. Men who have acquired fame have never been thrust into popularity by puffs begged or paid for, or given in friendly spirit. They have outstretched their own hands and touched the public heart. Men who never knew a man fail so signally as one who induced his affectionate grandmother to speak a good word for him. Whether you work for fame, for love, for money, or for anything else, work with your hands, and heart, and brain. Say "I will," and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have it to say, "I have dragged you up." Too many friends sometimes hurt a man more than none at all.

Keep Some For Home. Why is it that we so often treat those we love best with indifference? Is it because we are ashamed to show our love, or that we think they must know how we feel towards them, and it is unnecessary for us to give them the little attentions that we are careful to give to those for whom we have but a slight regard? If we only knew how frequently we hurt the feelings of those whose happiness is more to us than our own, how would we weigh well our actions, or more properly, our lack of action. If we have not time to do acts of kindness and consideration for the general public and our own loved ones, by all that helps to make life worth living, let us neglect the general public, and care for those who look to us for happiness and consideration.

When we are away from home, and time is limited for correspondence, do not give that time to the one whom you fear will be annoyed if you do not write, but to the one who waits lovingly for the message of remembrance, and who if it does not come, will invent scores of excuses for its non-appearance, and give no expression to their disappointment. There are souls whose affection, like some flower, flourishes under neglect. But many friendship buds of bright promise have never reached maturity because they were not prized, not cared for properly. But who can tell of the love that has been blighted in our own immediate circle, of the heart-aches carried through life of the ones who have drifted outside of home and kindred for the sympathetic courtesy and attention that was denied them because "they are one of ourselves?"

Do not be afraid to show your love by acts of kindly attention and thoughtfulfulness, and learn to value fully the love within your grasp.—Christian Union.

Scarlet Fever From Milk. It is now said that scarlet fever is from the cow just as smallpox is from the discovery of an English physician. If this be true, then, as the Mobile Register suggests, the milk for children ought to be boiled. Many dyspeptics cannot drink unboiled milk. Raw milk to many is a positive poison. The Savannah News says: "The man who discovers an antidote for scarlet fever will render as great a service to humanity as the physician who discovered the cause of the disease, and it is probable that his fame will be greatest."

There is an antidote. The eminent Dr. Holcombe, of New Orleans, President of the Homeopathic Board of Health, says that belladonna, if taken in time, is as much a specific in scarlet fever as vaccination is in smallpox. That is to say, as many would be cured by its prompt use in the one disease as would escape small-pox from vaccination in the other disease.—W. Star.

When heaven has taken from us some object of our love, how sweet it is to have a bosom whereupon to recline our heads, and into which we may pour the torrent of our tears!—T. Jefferson.
