When fades the snnlight in the Western sky, When dimly shadows fall on sea and land, When breezes whisper of the day gone by, And home the blackbirds fly, a chattering band: Then lonely heart, faint not, but be thou strong, Thy life shall also have its evening song. Shoreward at dusk the sea-gull takes her flight.

And slowly all the tiny tide-waves break ; Homeward the skiffs return again at night, And fishing dories safest harbor make. 'Tis evening hours that bring the wanderers home ; Take courage, heart, thine eve shall also come.

At Evening Time.

At eve the laborer turns from toil and care : And, as the noisy peals of action cease, Soft chimes the vesper-bells, for praise and

To The Earthquake. Hello, old Earthquake? Howd'y? Shake. Just put it there! What will you take? Beer? No? Aha, it will appear You tried to give us all a bler! Well, then E. Q., perhaps you'd like A Whiskey raw, with quinine spike? That's mighty good for shakes, they say, And you are somewhat on that lay! Say, Great Convulsion, honor bright, Why did you give us such a fright? Thee'd shake us that way for a drink? Or dids't thee think thee'd have some fun By making all the women run Out of their houses, to the street, Dressed in a tablecloth or sheet, When every thinking person knows How much all women love their clothes? Your conduct's shocking ! Further now We can't explain, Convulser how The more careful you read the more you You came with such uulucky stars
