Small Factories.

There can be no doubt of the great advantages to a country to have numerous and various small manufacturing scattered over it. "Shops," as they were called in former times, where the inhabitants could exchange commodities without trouble and often without an expenditure of cash. There are yet a few establishments of the kind alluded to, and it is believed the tendency now is to encourage them—to increase them in variety and extent. It is gratifying to see that Mr. Frick still holds out against the patent reapers and binders, in the manufacture of the best made "cradle," in the State. It is a line of business which comes down from father to sons, and the sons have not only kept it but improved on the quality of the goods.

Mr. M. S. Brown's fashionable tailoring establishment is another enterprise of the kind contemplated. It is the revival of a branch of business that once flourished here and brought in trade from far and near. The late Horace H. Beard and B. F. Fraley prosecuted it with entire success, and in the course of years received a handsome reward for their skill and toil.

In passing along Innis street, Monday, we saw several very handsome home made coffins in R. M. Davis' shop. They were new and of an improved style and the wood-finish equal to that of any northern or western factory; and we learned from the proprietor that he was preparing to manufacture them and other articles, more extensively than ever before. This is another step in the right direction, and deserves to be encouraged. The late David Watson, before the introduction of northern wood, supplied the community for many miles around with good solid walnut furniture of all kinds.

There should be a good chair factory here, but there is none, either good or bad. There are remnants of chair work scattered about town, such as arm chairs, settees, &c., which were manufactured here, and whenever you find a piece of it, you will find a piece of furniture that is good for another 50 or 60 years. David Julian was exhibiting a piece—a settee—a few days ago, on which he was putting a new coat of paint. He expects to leave it to some great grand child if it shall escape the fire. It can hardly be duplicated, though that is the kind of goods a chair factory should turn out. Nobody wants to buy chairs that would shake into pieces in hauling them home.

Mr. J. Lanier's brick machine is another enterprise deserving of patronage, and we learn receives it.

But then there are many other industries about town—Meroney's machine and foundry works, Thompson's, in the same general line, Freck's, Small's, &c., &c., not to enumerate the large tobacco factories, which depend mainly on distant communities for their support, though they disburse large sums of money among us.

A first class boot and shoe shop is needed. There are several small shops here already; it is true; but they have not established for themselves a name on the superiority of their work—in style, finish, quality of material and workmanship. Local shoe merchants can beat them on all points and consequently take nearly all the trade.

There should be a bucket factory here. There is a good opening for this branch of business, and repair work enough to keep one hand busy all the year round.

A basket factory, a book bindery, &c. It may surprise some of our citizens to learn that a book-binder once lived and flourished here when the town was not near so large as it is now.

Factories of the kind to meet the daily recurring wants of the people, and that would tend to break the incessant flow of money to other markets—easily within the production of home industry and enterprise, is just what is needed here. It is needed throughout the South; and it is a very gratifying fact that more progress has been made in this direction in the Southern States in the last five or six years than in a decade before.

A man named Hoover, who has been going around the country urging the negroes to band together to demand higher wages and telling them to apply the torch if an increase of wages were refused, after a harangue at Warrenton, Ga., Friday night, was dangerously shot by a band of armed men. It is believed that Hoover has been swindling the negroes and was the victim of their wrath. There is no clue to the perpetrators. Hoover may live but it is doubtful. He claims to be a Knight of Labor.—News-Observer.

Our citizens will remember Mr. Hoover as being here about two years ago and speaking in Meroney's Hall on the labor question. We do not know whether he claimed then to be a Knight or not, but we do know that he went to Hickory and there claimed that he had nothing whatever to do with them, and tried to organize an association—we have forgotten the style of it—but it covered the whole of America with headquarters at Hickory. After having quite a warm time with the authorities of that place, he was ordered to leave town, which he did. The next thing heard of him he was ordered out of a town in Georgia for his incendiary speeches, and now we hear of him as being mobbed and shot in Warrenton, and we expect (we came near saying hope) that the next heard of him will be his death.

While Queen Kapiolani of Hawaii is visiting in the United States her is almost in a state of insurrection. The Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese are all plotting over supposed grievances. The city of Honolulu is plagarized with flaming posters offering a reward of $10,000 for the head of King Kalakaua and fears are entertained of horrible massacre. Below is a sample of the articles that appear in the Hawaiian Gazette.

The Hawaiian Embassy is bringing dispatches upon the Islands. It is high time that an end should be put to the ravages of the present government and that Hawaii be placed on the plane she ought to occupy. A gin-swilling and bribe-taking government ought to cease to represent Hawaii before the world. There is no political nor commercial necessity calling for any expenditure for her Majesty's trip abroad, and it is absolute robbery to expend public funds on any such tour. We wonder how the English bondholders will view the matter. The whole ministerial fabric will tumble like a pack of cards on one of these days and the King along with it.

The 20th of May celebration passed off very nicely at Charlotte, over 5,000 people witnessed the contests and, financially, it was a big success. We have never taken much stock in the so-called Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, and are inclined to place it on a par with the burial of Marshal Ney at Third Creek, but it seems to answer their purpose, and Charlotte will no doubt continue to reap the reward of such a story even though it be a canard.

Lake Linden, a village in Michigan, was almost totally destroyed by fire, last Friday. Among the buildings left are one saloon and only one small store. Loss two million dollars.

The people of Albemarle are served with northern flour in half sacks by Mr. T. C. Heame. And this is a county that produces the heaviest and finest wheat in the world.

Chattanooga has raised $150,000 to subscribe to the Mammoth Mower and Reaper Works, which is to be moved from the North to that place.

In a 100 mile bicycle road race in Maryland, last Monday, Neilson, of Boston, came in winner in six hours and forty-seven minutes.

Eight persons, three colored and five white, were publicly whipped at the whipping post last week in New Castle, Delaware.

Carp Food.
Editor Watchman:—As some of your readers are engaged in Carp culture, with your permission, I will, for their benefit, give them the following information. It had often read about it, but never until recently made the experiment. One day last week I killed a very large rabbit and concluded to utilize it as carp food. I made a rough box about 8x16 inches, with the bottom and one side made of narrow slats, leaving spaces of about one inch between them. I then put on a top with leather hinges. I then drove one stake into my carp pond, and nailed the box to it, about two feet above the water, and having ripped open the rabbit placed it in the box and closed the lid. One side of the box was made of slats also, so as to admit green flies into the box.

In about three days afterwards, I noticed a group of at least 100 Carp working and scrambling around under the box. They remained there all day long, for several days. On a close examination, I found that the rabbit was a working mass of large, fat maggots, which were constantly rolling and dropping through the slats into the water, each one forming a delicious morsel for the lucky carp that got it.

From this experiment I am led to conclude that whenever a bog chicken or other animal dies, it can readily be converted into excellent carp food, so that the owner will get back the value of his dead animal. Try it, carp raisers, and you will not be disappointed.

By the way, it has often seemed strange to me, that more farmers do not engage in the cultivation of this great fish, (the German Carp.) Any one owning a spring brook, can, at a nominal expense, have a carp pond. There is a district, ten miles square in the State of Ohio, in which there are over two hundred carp ponds in successful operation, and the number increasing every year. Now that Western bacon is scarce and very high, it behooves farmers to adopt some method of living with less bacon. There is no trouble in raising them. They grow almost as rapidly as a corn plant, and one-fourth of an acre in carp will produce more food than any ten acres on the farm in any other crop. The carp boom is sure to come at no distant date, as the people learn to appreciate them.

Most of the apparatus for our electric light system has arrived and a spacious building for the accommodation of the plant is being rapidly erected in the rear of the Mayor's office. It is expected that electric fire will blaze in our streets, and that we will at no distant day have street cars driven by electric motive power.—Winston Sentinel.

The Deaf Mute Journal published in New York, says a deaf mute living in North Carolina and an intimate friend of Walter Bingham, is in Washington. He is reported as saying that Bingham is now in Paris, having been sent there by people who knew him in North Carolina, and who out of respect to his family would not secure his arrest.—McDonell Bugle.

The Bethesda All Healing Spring near Jefferson Ashe County, is becoming wonderfully popular, according to the Appalachian philosopher. The chief business of the company consists in bottling and selling the water. Thirty Richmond druggists sell it by retail. Fifty wagons are kept constantly busy carrying the water to the depot and an order for $10,000 worth of bottles was lately sent by the Company to a glass factory.

The Franklin Press says that the prospect of a railroad to Mason from Rabun Gap to Knoxville is bright. The North-western R. R., together with the improvements, right of way, &c., of the R. & D. Co., has been transferred to a new company lately organized by Judge Thomas of Athens, Ga. They have deposited $315,000 in the Athens Bank to secure a faithful compliance of the contract.

Pat Brawer, Jessie Harris, and Frank Kirby, all negro prisoners, made a desperate attempt to escape from Hillsboro jail. They were aided by several prisoners, who caught and held Jailer Lyster while the three men tried to get out of the door. The noise made attracted attention. The three prisoners named are of desperate characters, who were convicted of shooting Young Freeze, of Rowan county, at the University last autumn.

Messrs. J. C. Lowdermilk and J. S. Kincaid, of this county, were plowing in a field on the Capt. Tate farm, near town, last Monday when a threatening cloud arose, charged with electricity. Messrs. Lowdermilk and Kincaid and his mules they were plowing were all struck by lightning at the same time. Mr. Lowdermilk and his mule were instantly killed. Mr. Kincaid was severely shocked, but after some time it was found that life existed; Dr. Moran was called and with skillful medical aid he was restored. Mr. Lowdermilk leaves a wife and five children.—Morganon Star.

Washington Letter.

(From our regular correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, May 23, 1887.

To-day more than a thousand tents white the greenward that stretches around the Washington Monument. The troops are now all here who intended to participate in the National Drill, and they represent Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Colorado, Dakota, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, Texas, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington Territory and the District of Columbia.

The Drill opened this morning, but the day was consumed by some formalities, such as naming the camp, issuing orders, receiving the latest arrivals of troops, etc., and this evening there was a dress parade, by all of the organized companies, but the competitive drill begins to-morrow. The soldiers here represent the flower of the National Guard of their States, and many of the commands are noted for their excellent discipline, and have won trophies in State and interstate drills.

Such a camp has not been seen in this country since the veterans of the civil war broke their camp in '65. Now the soldiers of the North, South, East and West assemble in one camp and contend in friendly strife for the trophies of the peaceful drill ground. The week will be spent in the most lively and interesting way, with drill, with events, brilliant street parades, attractive drills, reviews and street parades.

Washington can boast in superlative language of many things. It has the largest public buildings, the most beautiful streets, the widest and the smoothest sidewalks, the largest number of public buildings and statues, the highest monument, and many other things the most wonderful and best and "biggest" of their kind, and now it adds to the list the largest competitive drill. Up to this time the greatest gathering of this kind was at "Camp R. C. Drum" in Mobile, two years ago, but the National Drill exceeds that more than three fold in the number of military bodies that will take part.

The good people of Washington are rejoicing that the order permitting the sale of intoxicating liquors on the drill ground has been revoked. The bar privilege of the ground had been sold by the Drill committee for $1,800, but it is settled that only temperance drinks shall be dispensed at the refreshment counter under the grand stand this week. The revocation of the privilege has the effect of increasing the influence of the President through the efforts of some ladies of the W. T. C. U., who called upon to interfere, and also to a suggestion from the Commissioner of public grounds, to the effect that the War Department (to which the drill ground belongs) would exclude intoxicating liquors. But from whatever source the influence may have come, more people were pleased with the final decision and action of the National Drill Committee.

After the close of the Drill the President will take a vacation of about ten weeks, accompanied by Mr. Cleveland, Colonel Lambert and his family. They will go to Saranac Lake, New York, where the fishing is said to be good at this season. It is said they will go on the second of June, which is the anniversary of the President's marriage. Doubtless he feels the need of rest, and the gratifying of his probably his celebrated day more agreeable to him.

The financial situation has been demanding a great deal of the President's time and attention of late, as, indeed, it is the most important question now before him. On last Wednesday night the Secretary of the Treasury remained at the White House until two o'clock in the morning, talking over the matter with him. He is being urged by the advocates of tariff reduction to call an extra session of Congress early in the fall for the purpose of considering revenue measures. But Secretary Fairchild is so safe and conservative a manager that there can be no real cause of alarm concerning the stringency of the money market, whether Congress is specially convened or not. Besides the Secretary's powers are sufficient, under existing laws, to enable him to waffle off any threatened danger. In the worst contingency that can be imagined he is at liberty to step into the open market and buy bonds for Government account.
