MAKES CHILD-BIRTH EASY

It is an impressive truth that sometimes in the very lowest forms of duty, less than that which would rank a man as a villain, there is, nevertheless, the sublime ascent of self-sacrifice. — De Quincey.

Where They were Born.

Sometimes after the war Gen. Crittenden met three ex-Confederate officers at dinner, and they became very friendly.

"Major," said Gen. Crittenden to one of them, "where were you born?"

"Well," said the Major, getting a little red, "I was born, sir, in Nantucket, Mass., but you see I lived ten years in the South and I married a Southern lady, and as all my interests were in the South, of course I fought for them."

"And where were you born?" he asked the second.

"Well, sir, I was born in Nantucket, Mass., but I lived in the South 20 years, and of course—"

"I see," said the General, turning to the third. "Colonel, where were you born?"

"I was born in Nantucket, Mass., too, but I had been 30 years in the South, and—"

"That's curious, isn't it?"

"Tell me, General," said one of them, "where were you born?"

"Well, I was born in Huntwell, Ala., but I lived in the North for many years and I fought for the Union."

Then they all drank around.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

Dr. Deems Wasn't Afraid.

When Rev. Charles Deems of the Church of the Strangers in New York city wanted money to pay off a debt on building he called on Commodore Vanderbilt.

"Are you going to preach what I want to hear?" asked the old man, sternly.

"I shall try to preach acceptably," answered the clergyman, in an evasive manner.

But no sooner had he said the words than all the manhood in him rose in revolt, and the spirit of John Knox seemed calling him to account.

"I shall preach the gospel as I believe and understand it, and if you have any special sins I shall be most likely to preach against them."

"Humph!" said the Commodore, and ended the interview.

The next day he sent Mr. Deems a check for $50,000 for not being afraid to do his duty.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a revival of trade at Klutz's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

What She Said.

Young man (to messenger boy)—"What did the lady say when you gave her the flowers?"

Messenger boy—"She asked the young man who was sittin' on the porch with her if he didn't want some for a button hole bouquet." — New York Sun.

Brace Up.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with headache, you are fidgety, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very poor for an hour, and which stimulate in cheap condition than before. What you want is an alternative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at Klutz's Drug Store.

No faculty is ever better for being dull. But when it is sharpened only by selfishness its mission remains unperformed. It is then only a means of personal gain, whereas its true purpose is a wide and general diffusion of happiness.

Stupid Ed Johnston.

Elsie—"Don't you like Ed Johnston?"

Edith—"No, I don't."

Elsie—"Why?"

Edith—"Well, he was calling on me up at Mechanicsville last night, and I undertook to show him how well I could whistle."

Elsie—"Well, what of that?"

Edith—"A great deal of that. I just pucker my lips up as sweet and pretty as I could, and then—"

Elsie—"Well, what then?"

Edith—"He just let me go on and whistle."

The Black Man's Rights.

Yes, I did find one colored man in Alabama who claimed that he was oppressed on account of his color and previous condition. It was at the depot in Selma. We two were alone on the platform, and as we drifted together and he made up his mind that I didn't intend to steal his satchel, I asked how he was getting on.

"Poorly, sah; very poorly," he answered.

"Don't they give you a chance?"

"No, sah—no, sah. White folks down on us mighty bad."

"Give me a sample case."

"Wall," he replied, after taking a little time to think, dey don't respect our rights 'tall. One night las' fall free of 'em come to my house at midnight an' dun woke me up, and lugged me off to jail."

"What for?"

"Said I had done stole a hog."

"That's cool. And you were an innocent man?"

"Certain I was, and if dey hadn't searched my house wid out havin' a warrant or the slightest authority I'd hev proved it."

"But why couldn't you after the search?"

"Kas dey found de polk under de floor, sah? If I had been a white man do you reckon dey would have attempted any high handed outrage like dat? Dey dey do it kas dey knowed I was a poo' black man widout any rights? Talk to me sah, of a cull'd pusson's rights down here?" He haint got none. Dat polk was stole in the night, an' I didn't leave a single track behind, an' dey come an' jumped right in on me like dey was sure all de white folks was honest an' all the rest of de cull'd people had moved away. — Detroit Free Press.

No Money in the Boom.

"Is your boom about over here?" asked a stranger of a man standing on the depot platform in a Dakota town.

"We-I-I," answered the native, doubtfully, "I dunno; it depends upon how you look at it."

"How is that?"

"We're boomin' just as hard as ever, but outside capitalists 'pear to be gettin' sorter tired. There ain't much money in that kind o' boomin', you know."

"What are you people doing?"

"Oh, we're just boomin', that's all, just simply boomin'. Yesterday we organized two new railroad companies another Board of Trade an' incorporated a company for manufacturing balloons an' another for makin' paper collars, but I said, there ain't no money in it."

"The kind that pays is about over, then?"

"Well, I reckon so, for this summer. We can plat more additions further out any time there seems to be a call for 'em but things are so quiet in some that are already out that we haven't the heart to do it. There's a good crop o' wheat growin' on Central addition, an' a powerful fine outlook for corn in the public park an' on Court House square, while the men who are farmin' the college grounds and custom house block are kickin' 'cause they are so far from 'rket. I reckon we'll have to lay 'em off 'til next spring and then scoover iron ore over in that hill." — Dakota Bell.

The Patient Proof Reader.

The proof reader is a patient animal; he is a mass of erudition; knows everything and everybody is acquainted with most languages and is on speaking terms with a great many; and can detect a typographical error, straighten out the grammar, correct mistakes of fact right along the whole at a rate of speed that would paralyze the ordinary reader of a newspaper.

He is one man against whom the recording angel never balances the account. He may capture and summarily execute one hundred typographical brigands bent on making nonsense of some interesting and instructive article, but if one slips by him no recording angel drops a tear and wipes out the blot. Not a bit of it. Irrate editors, furious reporters, incensed managers unite to pour out their vials of wrath on the proof reader, and if Nature, with her grand gift of compensation, had not provided him with the hide of rhinoceros he might, once in a while, feel sore. — George B. Perry in The Writer.

Among Strangers.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend. Seeds thus sown by the wayside often bring forth an abundant harvest. You might sojourn among strangers that they should be better and happier, through time and eternity, for your works and your example.

The new German explosive, roborite, belongs to what is known as the Sprengel class or type, being a mixture of two substances, neither of which separately possesses explosive properties. In this case both components are solid and the resulting mixture has a sandy granular appearance, somewhat resembling the commonest yellow sugar. Roborite is the invention of Dr. Carl Roth, an eminent German chemist and analyst.

Men who complain most loudly about the inequalities of the human lot are generally a little blind to those great stores of wealth and blessing that no class can monopolize, and no wealth can buy.

When fragile woman sighs, deploring The charms that quickly fade away, What power, the bloom of health restoring, Can check the progress of decay? The only aid that's worth attention, For pains and ills of such description, Thousands of women gladly mention— 'Tis "Pierce's Favorite Prescription." The price of this royal remedy, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is but one dollar. Specific for all those chronic ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women. Words of Wisdom.

Lack of desire is the greatest riches. Life is a short day, but it is a working day.

To what gulfs a single deviation from the track of human duties leads.

With the generality of men policy is much more powerful than principle.

How much better is the love that is ready to die than the zeal that is ready to kill.

A sound discretion is not so much indicated by never making a mistake as by never repeating it.

Envy, like a cold poison, benumbs and stupefies; and conscious of its own importance, folds its arms in despair.

Covetous ambition, thinking all too little which presently it hath, supposeth itself to stand in need of all which it hath not.

The primid dainties shine aloft like stars; the charities that soothe and heal and bless are scattered at the feet of man like flowers.

To escape from evil, we must be made as far as possible like God; and this resemblance consists in becoming just, holy and wise.

Whenever you commend, add your reasons for doing so; it is this which distinguishes the approbation of a man of sense from the flattery of sycophants and fools.

Opportunity is in respect to time, in some sense, as time is in respect to eternity; it is the small moment, the exact point, the critical minute, on which every good work so much depends.

How the Ratcheter Works.

It is a sight to see the "ratcheter" arrive at the hotel at midnight. He does not register and generally enters by the side or servants' door. He carries a lantern and a bag in one hand, or he may strap the light to a belt, while in the other he wields a pair of tongs. He descends to the lower regions of the ladder, the storeroom and kitchen, all now dark and deserted. The ratcheter utters a low whistle or squeak, which is the intimation of one rat to others that he has found good nibbling, and all the rodents run out from their hiding places in the direction of the familiar and welcome sound, and dazing them by the glare of the lantern, the man picks them up with his tongs and drops them into his bag with such agility that seldom any escape. Blinded and paralyzed by the light, only the isolated ones attempt to run, and these are readily captured. The ratcheter visits the hotel once or twice a week, and the same one is employed by several houses. It is whispered that he sells the rats to the Chinese restaurants, but he denies the insinuation. He says he sells the hides, which he properly cures and stretches. — New York Times.

He Meant No Offense.

"Say, you!" he yelled as he stood on the postoffice steps.

A very solid man halted in his tracks until the other came up.

"Calling to me?" he queried.

"Yes sir. Do you notice my hair? It's a sort of grizzly-gray which makes me look ten years older than I really am."

"What have I got to do with your hair sir?" demanded the other.

"I happened to stand beside you in the postoffice, and no—"

"Suppose you did stand beside me in the postoffice!"

"I saw that you were a man of about sixty years old, but as you had—"

"Suppose I am sixty?"

"But as you had dyed your hair you didn't look a day over forty-five. What I want is the name of the dye you use. You will excuse me, but I—"

He was excused. He knew he was by the way the other raised his cane and jumped at him and offered to mop the streets with him for two cents. — Detroit Free Press.

QUITE AS BAD AS BULLETS.

An Old Soldier Tells of His Campaign in Virginia—He Tells us of a Campaign in Twenty Years Ago.

SEPT. 11, 1887.

Gentlemen—Yours inquiring whether or not I had been benefited by Kaskine, and if so to what extent, &c., to hand. In reply will say that my health has not been as good in twenty years as now. I suffered with chills from malarial poison contracted while serving in the Confederate army on the Peninsula Campaign in Virginia. Did not miss having a chill at least once in twenty-one days, and more frequently once in seven days, for more than fifteen years.

In this condition I visited New York in November, 1875, on business. While there I stepped with Mr. E. D. Barker, of the University Publishing Company. I told Mr. Barker of my condition. He called my attention to your Kaskine and procured for me a bottle. After my return home I took the pellets as directed and found much relief afforded thereby. Of this change I wrote Mr. Barker, who sent two or three bottles during the past year. My health greatly improved. I increased in weight from 165 pounds to 200 pounds, my present weight. I believe the Kaskine did it. Quinine had failed, as had other remedies usually administered in such cases.

Now, unless in case of exposure to extra bad weather, I do not have chills, and my general health is quite good. I turned over half a bottle to a young lady friend a few weeks since. I learn from her mother that she was much benefited by it while it lasted.

I trust you may be able to introduce Kaskine generally in this country, in which many suffer from diseases consequent upon malarial poison in the system. From my own experience I can emphasize its excellence for such diseases. If I can serve you call on me.

I am very truly yours,

JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH.

Seven years ago I had an attack of bilious remittent fever, which ran into intermittent malaria. I tried all the known remedies, such as arsenic, mercury and quinine. The latter was administered to me in heavy and continued doses. Malaria brought on nervous prostration and dyspepsia, from which I suffered everything. Last winter I heard of Kaskine and began using it. A few bottles of the wonderful drug cured me. Malaria and dyspepsia disappeared, and as you have seen a June day brighter for the summer storm that had passed across the sky, so the cloud left my life and my health became steady and strong.

Mrs. J. LAWSON,
141 Bergen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Gideon Thompson, the oldest and one of the most respected citizens of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "I am ninety years of age, and for the last three years have suffered from malaria and the effects of quinine poisoning. I recently began with Kaskine which broke up the malaria and increased my weight 22 pounds."

Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application. Price $1.00, or six bottles, $5.00. Sold by Druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price.
