Preparing for the Burglar.

Mr. Poots—Where is that burglar, Maria? Where is he? Where's the villain gone?
Mrs. Poots—Gone to the station-house. Oh, dear, I'm so distracted. A policeman came and took him. Oh, John, why did you leave me all alone when the alarm rung and run into the garret?
"Why did I run into the garret? I keep my arms in the garret, that's why."
"But you've been gone an hour."
"Took over an hour to oil up my gun and grind up my hatchet. But it's lucky for the burglar that my arms were not in order."—Texas Siftings.

One on Sam Jones.

Omaha Herald.

Sam Jones paused in a discourse on patience, at Omaha, the other night, and said if there was one man present who had never spoke a cross word to his wife, he would ask him to rise. By and by a round faced, good-natured man stood up.
"Thank God," said Sam, "there's one man who never spoke a cross word to his wife."
Everybody took a good look at the paragon, when he broke the silence with the remark: "I haven't any wife. I'm a bachelor."

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems, at first, only a cold. Personal Journalism Out West.

Col. Hellion Corse, editor of the Arizona Paralyzer, makes the following personal explanation in a recent issue of his paper: "Yesterday we were again misled. It will be remembered that both of our former writers cloped with the foreman of the office. To avoid any future inconvenience of that kind we have this time married a lady who is herself a compositor, and she will set the type while we hustle for the ducks who still owe on subscriptions."

Saved His Life.

Mr. D. L. Wilkinson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with Phthisis, also Diabetes; the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from the first bottle; and after taking six bottles was entirely cured, and had gained six flesh, eighteen pounds. Says he positively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief it afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by T. F. Klutz & Co.

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

Everything about the Supreme Court is impressive and awe inspiring. Even the two trim negro men who sit at the inner and outer doors and noisily open them by means of a cord attached to the door knobs, to allow persons to pass in and out, apparently perform that duty with a deep sense of their responsibility. The semi-circular chamber, with its stately columns of mottled Potomac marble, its half-domed roof, lighted by skylights, its substantial, old-fashioned furniture, and the rich upholstery of the sofas arranged upon the sides for the accommodation of spectators, recall historic scenes glorified as they are viewed through the dim mist of time, and its walls seem ready to echo the voices of the past. The appearance and bearing of the nine elderly gentlemen who sit in a row upon a raised platform behind a long desk, clothed in their black silk robes, the absolute silence enjoined upon all not having to address the court, and the subdued monotones in which the business is transacted, makes one feel that here at least are gravity and attention befitting the dignity of a great government.—American Magazine.

A Word to Gossips.

Times and Democrat.

What a mind people have for gossiping! No wonder the divine writer said, "Bridle the tongue." What a disposition to talk about persons instead of things! But then this is easily accounted for when we remember that any fool can talk about persons, but it requires sense to discuss things. There are a few people in every place who seem to delight in running about and telling every little thing they hear, and the worst of it all is that they do not always confine themselves to the truth. With some has grown to a disease. They just must talk about somebody. It is a great source of evil to a town or community and the devil wants no better agency than this to accomplish his design, and the person so engaged is doing for the devil what he won't do for himself. Stop talking about people, and go reading and studying and learn to talk about things.

A Scam in a New York Office.

A rather prepossessing young lady entered the office of a well-known lawyer the other day and enquired:
"Is Mr. Brief in?"
"Won't be in for two hours," replied the dapper young clerk whom she addressed, surveying her from head to foot with an approving glance. "Anything I can do for you?"
"Yes was the reply, and the lady produced from beneath her wrap a handsomely bound volume. "I have here—"
"I thought so," interrupted the clerk, with a deprecating gesture. "I sized you up as soon as you came in. But it's no use. We never fool away money on subscription books in this office. Didn't you see the sign outside: 'No Peddlars allowed?'"
"Sir," began the visitor, "this book—"
"Oh," laughed the flippant young clerk, "I've no doubt but what it's the biggest thing out, but we don't want it. History of the United States, ain't it, from the time of the Mound Builders up to the present day? Big thing, I've no doubt, but we've no use for it."
"If you will allow me—"
"Really," said the youth, who was greatly amused, "I'd like to, but it's against the rules of the office to yield to the blandishments of book-agents, no matter how young and good-looking they are. Couldn't think of looking at the book, my dear. Life of Napoleon, ain't it? That's a chestnut. One of our clerks bought one last month for four dollars, and yesterday he traded it off for a yaller dog, and then killed the dog."
"I wish to say—"
"Or maybe it's humorous work, with wood-cuts that looked as if they'd been engraved with a meat-axe. No, we don't want it. We keep a humorist here on a salary to amuse us."
"I—"
"Say you are awfully persistent, my dear, but it won't do any good. If old Brief were here you might talk him around, because he's a susceptible old duffer, and things every pretty woman who talks to him is in love with him. But I am not of that kind."
"Sir, if you will—"
"I hate to refuse you, 'pon my soul I do, but I'm broke, and that's the truth. Come around in about six months, after the old man has taken me into partnership. I'll be flush then, and I'll take a book, just to reward you for your sticktiveness. I say, you're a mighty pretty woman to be obliged to peddle books for a living. I—"
Just then the attend on the loquacious youth was attracted by the frantic gesticulations of a fellow clerk in another part of the room, and he paused.
"You are Mr. Fleshleigh, I presume?"
"I—yes, that is my name," was the reply.
"I have heard my husband speak of you, I am Mrs. Brief. Will you please hand this to Mr. Brief when he comes in and ask him to take it to the binder?" Good morning."

How to Discourage Your Pastor.

1. Hear him "now and then." Drop in a little late. Do not sing; do not find the texts in your Bibles. If you take a little sleep during the sermon, so much the better.
2. Notice carefully any slip he makes while you are awake; point out the dull portions to your children and friends; it will come round to him.
3. Censure his efforts at usefulness; deplore his want of common sense; let him know that you won't help him because A B does, because you were not first consulted, or because you did not start the plan yourself.
4. Let him know the follies and sins of his hearers. Show him how much he overrates them, and tell him their adverse criticisms on himself.
5. Tell him when he calls what a stranger he is; how his predecessors used to drop in for an hour's chat, and how much you liked them.
6. Never attend the prayer-meeting, or any special service. Why should you be righteous overmuch?
7. Occasionally get up a little gaiety for the young folks. This will be found very effectual about the communion season.
8. Give him no intimation when you are ill; of course he should know; and your offended dignity when he comes to see you will render his visit pleasant. On no account intimate your recovery.
9. Requite him to swell the pomp of every important occasion, unless indeed there are prudential reasons for passing him over.
10. If he is always in his own pulpit, clamor for strangers; if he have public duties, and sometimes goes abroad, complain that he is never at home.
11. Keep down his income. Easy means are a sore temptation, and fullness of bread is bad for every one—but the laity.
12. As he will find it hard to be always at home; to receive callers, and always well prepared for pulpit and platform, you will be sure to have just cause for complaint one way or the other. Tell it to every one, and then lament that there is so general dissatisfaction with him.

The Alligator's Meal.

An observe says an alligator's throat is an animated sewer. Everything which lodges in his open mouth goes down. He is a lazy dog, and instead of hunting for something to eat, he lets his victuals hunt for him. That is, he lies with his great mouth open, apparently dead, like the pussum. Soon a bug crawls into it, then a fly, then several knots, and a colony of mosquitoes. The alligator doesn't close his mouth yet. He is waiting for a whole drove of things. He does his eating by wholesale. A little later a lizard will cool himself under the shade of the upper jaw. Then a few frogs will hop up to catch the mosquitoes. Then more mosquitoes and gnats will light on the frog. Finally a whole village of insects and reptiles settle down for an afternoon picnic. Then all at once there is an earthquake. The big jaw falls the alligator blinks one eye, gulps down the entire menagerie, and opens his great front door again for more visitors.

WHAT AILS THE NATION?

The Average Length of Life Decreasing—Not Pestilence—Not Famine—All our own Fault.

MODERN COOKING AND MODERN LIVING have brought it on. It comes upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint, all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish colored expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become constive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the kidney secretions become scanty and high colored, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart and Asthmatic symptoms; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All of these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-half of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. Shaker Extract of Roots (Seigel's Syrup) changes the ferments of the Digestive organs so as to convert the food we eat into a form that will give nourishment to the feeble body, and good health is the consequence. The effect of this remedy is simply marvelous. Millions upon millions of bottles have been sold in this country, and the testimonials in favor of its curative powers are overwhelming. Hundreds of so-called diseases under various names are the result of indigestion, and when this one trouble is removed the other diseases vanish, for they are but symptoms of the real malady.
