WEAK/UNDEVELOPED

CAUSE OF UNHEALTHY BODY ENLARGED DEVELOPED. DRUGS, STRENGTHENING BLOOD, AND INTERESTING. I have a remedy for this. It is a simple, natural, and safe remedy. It is a fair, good copy of an old-time Dutch bak-oven done in variegated bricks. The temporary resting place of Garfield's remains in Cleveland is far handsomer. Not an hour of daylight passes that from one to twenty visitors do not visit the Grant tomb, and on Sundays thousands go there. The improvements of the park around the tomb has made the latter look shabbier than it used to. A few trees, particularly if they were placed so as to hide the site of it from a distance, would save the city from its present humiliation in some degree.

ELY'S CATARRH CREAM BALM

Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation. Heals the Sores. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell.

TRY THE CURE. HAY-FEVER CATARRH is a disease of the mucous membrane, generally originating in the nasal passages and maintaining its stronghold in the head. From this point it sends forth a poisonous virus into the stomach and through the digestive organs, corrupting the blood and producing other troublesome and dangerous symptoms.

A particle is applied into each nostril, and is absorbent. Price 50 cents per bottle, by mail registered; 60 cents. ELY'S BROS., 239 Greenwich Street, New York.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. MARY H. MYERS, NORFOLK, VA.

Dead—the word is harsh—she fell asleep like a child, With her gentle hand light folded over a heart so pure and mild. Like a child she dropped life's sorrows while treading the meadows of peace; She went to the "Promised Land" gladly, where joys, we are taught, ne'er cease.

How could she leave her loved ones? The thought comes with a curious pain. Read the smile on her tranquil lips—she knew she would join them again. It was only a going before, an unknown step in advance; It was God's will, long ordained—He leaves nothing to mere chance.

She wished to prepare the way, the path for her darlings to tread; She prayed she might light the beacon, that they should have nothing to dread. And why should we mourn to-day? Her own sweet will has been granted. A loyal crown on earth she earned—in heaven she is sainted.

TELLIE MAY FORNEY.

Coal is extremely scarce in Western Minnesota and Eastern Dakota and many people are preparing to bring hay burners into use.

A New York syndicate has purchased a large tract of land in Florida, and will attempt to revive tobacco growing, which was very profitably carried on before the war.

Noddy Moses was arrested near Ward's, Putnam county, W. Va., for placing obstructions on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad track to wreck the pay train. He confessed his guilt.

Columbus Byrd and Jesse Hicks, two prosperous farmers living near Augusta, Ga., quarrelled over an unsettled account of $2. Hicks got a hickory stick and threatened to kill Byrd, who took the stick away and did the killing himself.

At a meeting of Protestant clergymen in Chicago, Congress was petitioned to stop mail carrying on Sunday, to discontinue railroad and telegraph service, and newspapers were requested to cease printing and publishing on the Sabbath, as to do so is in violation of human and divine laws.

It Does Not Pay!

It does not pay to have fifty working men poor and ragged in order to have one saloon-keeper dressed in broadcloth and flush of money.

It does not pay to have these fifty working-men live on bone soup and half rations in order that the saloon-keeper may flourish on roast turkey and champagne.

It does not pay to have the mother and children of twenty families dressed in rags, and starved into the semblance of emaciated scare-crows, and living in hovels, in order that the saloon-keeper's wife may dress in satin, and her children grow fat and hearty, and live in a bay-window parlour.

It does not pay to have ten smart, active and intelligent boys transformed into hoodlums and thieves to enable one man to lead an easy life by selling them liquor.

It does not pay to give one man, for a trifle, a license to sell liquor, and then spend an enormous amount on the trial of Tim McLaughlin for buying that liquor and then committing murder under its influence.

It does not pay to have one thousand homes blasted, ruined, defiled, and turned into hells of disorder and misery, in order that one wholesale liquor dealer may amass a large fortune.

It does not pay to keep six thousand men in the penitentiaries and hospitals, and one thousand in the lunatic asylum, at the expense of the honest, industrious taxpayers, in order that a few rich capitalists may grow richer by the manufacture of whisky.

A saloon-keeper sold a drinking man one pint of new rum, making fifteen cents clear profit. The man, under the influence of that pint of rum, killed his son-in-law; and his apprehension, confinement in jail, execution, etc., cost the county more than one thousand dollars—which temperate men had to earn by the sweat of their brow. It does not pay!

The loss sustained by society, morally and financially, the sorrow and suffering, the misery and destitution, produced and augmented, and what is infinitely a greater consideration than all else, the destruction of soul and body, the inevitable result of using or trafficking in intoxicating liquor—these all attest the truthfulness of the verdict—IT DOES NOT PAY!

Reader, it does pay to lead a temperate life; to be an honest and upright citizen; to exert a pure and holy influence upon mankind; and to honour God by a righteous use of all His gifts. We beseech you then, for your own soul's sake, and for the sake of suffering humanity, "touch not, taste not, handle not, the unclean thing."

Parting in Anger.

Eli Perkins.

The morning after I lectured in Wilkesbarre there was a great colliery explosion. Hundreds of Cornish miners were killed, and their corpses lay at the mouth of the coal mine for recognition. Wives were wringing their hands and children were crying, and a wail of desolation filled the air.

Sitting at the mouth by a pale corpse, was a young wife. She looked at her husband, but uttered no cry; her eyes were dry. She rocked herself to and fro, her face white with anguish.

"Oh, that I had spoke fair to him at the end!" she moaned. "Oh, that he would come to life one minute, that I could say, 'Jimmy, forgive me, but nothing will help me now. Oh, I could bear it all if I had only spoke fair to him at the end!'"

And then, at last, the story came. They had been married a year—she and Jim—and they both "had tempers," but Jim was always the first to make up. And this very morning they had had trouble.

It began because breakfast wasn't ready, and the fire wouldn't burn; and they had said hard words, both of them. But at the very last, though breakfast had not been fit to eat, Jim had turned round at the door and said:

"Give me a kiss, lass. You know you love me, and we won't part in ill-blood."

"No, Jimmy, I don't love you," I said, petulantly.

"Give me a kiss, lass, please!" Jimmy said.

"No, not one!" and now I was angry, and the tears rushed to her eyes. With awful sob she flung her arms around the corpse.

"Darling Jimmy! Darling Jimmy, speak to me now!" she mourned. "Say you forgive me!"

"Do not grieve so hopelessly," I said; "perhaps Jimmy knows what you feel now."

But the mourner's ears were deaf to all comfort, and the wailing cry came again:

"Who is Jefferson Davis! He is a statesman, a scholar, an orator and a historian, whose defense of the cause of his people is unswerving and unshakable. He is a great man. He is a man of the field of Mexico imperishable lustre to American arms, gave renown to the Senate of the United States, the won, as an orator, the sobriquet of the modern Cicero." As Secretary of War he prepared State papers, which by common consent of critics, friends and foes, are models for the study and guidance of statesmen, and as the head of a new government overcame insurmountable obstacles and waged an unequal fight, for constitutional liberty, for four long years.—Birmingham (Ala.) The Mendelssohn Quintette Club.

Joseph Haydn, the immortal composer of "The Creation" oratorio, wrote: "It is the air which is the charm of music, and it is that which is most difficult to produce. The invention of a fine melody is a work of genius." Now, although this is substantially a rebuke to the pompous utterances of those who aim at astonishing the head rather than at softening and pleasing the heart, still, the error of those of insufficient musical education, consists in the supposition that there is no genial creation in music but the melody. It requires no less genius in the invention of the fine, congruous harmony which embellishes and supports the melody, and in the choice of rich modulations with which to surround it, without taking away one atom of its unity or strength in the manner of its instrumentation, in the combination of the various sonorities and tone colorings; in fact, there is but one creation, which is the simultaneous totality of the distinct parts working as a perfect whole. Therefore, the creation of the musical idea—so simple in the origin of the art—becomes more and more complicated in consequence of the great variety of elements by which the art has become enriched. Hence, the Grand Orchestra is the highest manifestation of music's ensemble identity, and is the standard by which all the salient points in music are judged and referred to.

The Mendelssohn Quintette Club is a complete epitome of the grand Orchestra, and is, beyond question, the best orchestral quintette extant. A rare opportunity of hearing this famous body, in a concert here, Jan. 4, 1888, is offered, and which no one, of any refinement, can afford to ignore; especially in view of the fact, that our "Young Men's Christian Association" is responsible for a stipulated amount of pecuniary compensation to the "M. Q. C." and all money realized in excess of that goes into the building fund of that powerful lever of moral elevation and sublimation established here.

Parting in Anger.

Eli Perkins.

The morning after I lectured in Wilkesbarre there was a great colliery explosion. Hundreds of Cornish miners were killed, and their corpses lay at the mouth of the coal mine for recognition. Wives were wringing their hands and children were crying, and a wail of desolation filled the air.

Sitting at the mouth by a pale corpse, was a young wife. She looked at her husband, but uttered no cry; her eyes were dry. She rocked herself to and fro, her face white with anguish.

"Oh, that I had spoke fair to him at the end!" she moaned. "Oh, that he would come to life one minute, that I could say, 'Jimmy, forgive me, but nothing will help me now. Oh, I could bear it all if I had only spoke fair to him at the end
