There is a curiosity along the Fairmount, Morgantown and Pittsburg Railroad, W. Va., in the shape of two sycamore trees, standing about ten feet apart, that are joined together by a limb, fifteen inches in diameter, and it is a question as to which tree it started to grow from.

A serious fire occurred at the Riverside Mill's waste factory on the bank of the Savannah River in Atlanta, Ga. A section of the northern wall and the roof fell in, burying two white men and eight negroes. All were more or less injured. The damage to the mill is probably $20,000.

The Superintendent of the Census has submitted to the Secretary of the Interior a list showing the supervisors' districts in the several States and Territories as contemplated in the taking of the Eleventh Census. North Carolina is divided into five districts, and Rowan county is in the fourth.

Ben. Webster, a colored man living six miles below Lynchburg, Va., undertook to clear a small field of stumps with dynamite. Placing one cartridge in a large stump, he lit the fuse but before he could reach a place of safety it exploded, and literally tore him to pieces. What was found of his body was unrecognizable.

A rooster belonging to J. A. Fleming, of Williamsport, Md., was killed for the New Year's dinner, when an examination of the crop of the fowl revealed the fact that it contained twenty-five pieces of copper and iron, among which were several good-sized rivets. How the fowl lived is a mystery.

The bill admitting Wyoming has been favorably reported by the Senate committee on Territories, and the same committee has decided to lay aside the bill for the admission of Idaho until the Supreme Court decides a case now before it, affecting the constitutionality of the constitution recently adopted by the people of that Territory.

A son of the employees of the Baltimore and Ohio shops in Wheeling, W. Va., climbed into an engine standing in the yard and pulled open the throttle. The locomotive started at a lively gate down the track, the boy not being able to stop it. After crushing through the remains of the engine that blew up last week, a yard hand managed to board the engine and shut off the steam, but not before the end of the boiler-house was smashed in.

In Newbury, last Monday, a farmer drove up to a store and hitched his horse to an iron awning post, shortly after the horse touched his nose to the post and immediately dropped over as if dead, a gentleman, not knowing what was the matter, ran to the horse to help it in getting up and as soon as he touched it fell to the ground, another person coming to his assistance likewise fell to the ground, when it was found that an electric wire was on the top of the awning frame. The man who first touched the horse was found to be dead while the other man and the horse did not sustain serious injury.

Mr. Z. J. Drake, of Marlboro county South Carolina, has nearly doubled the largest authentic yield of corn ever before grown on one acre. In competition for a prize of $500, offered by the American Agriculturist, for the largest yield on one acre during the year 1889, he raised within a fraction of 255 bushels. The prize of $500, offered by the same paper, for the largest yield of wheat, goes to Henry F. Burton, of Salt Lake city, Utah, for a yield of 80 bushels on one acre.

Nellie Bly, who is making the trip around the world without an escort and against time, reached San Francisco, on Tuesday and started by a special train for the East over the Southern-Pacific route. She is trying to make it inside of seventy-five days, and probably will. Miss Bland who left New York on the same date, on the same errand, but in the opposite direction, reached London on the 18th and it is hard telling which will be the first to arrive in New York City.

Rev. Israel Holler, and his son, Rev. Ephraim Holler, of Brushy Mountain, in Wilkes county, ministers of Hard Shell Baptist persuasion, are preaching to their people, according to reports, that the end of all things is near at hand. They cite scriptures as saying that shortly before the end of the world there will be no difference between winter and summer, except in the budding of trees; and they say the present winter is exactly of the type of the one described as a forerunner of the destruction of the world.

England and Portugal are in a great mess, and it is doubtful what the result will be. England is trying to coerce Portugal, but the Portuguese will not be coerced. It is believed by many that the whole of Europe is on the eve of war. General Granville, speaking in London last Saturday said "the possibility of a European war darkens and saddens all the future, and it is difficult at times to look without a feeling of envy at the great republic across the water, that gigantic daughter of the west, where there are no race hatreds, no blood tax, no fiscal oppression, or no possibility of war, and where sixty millions of men soon to be double and triple that number, can go about their proper human business in confidence and peace. It is not, of course, any merit of the United States that they are thus blessed by fortune. It is simply because they have not the terrible heritage of the past."

A Trust That Concerns the Newspapers. The newspapers in our State have aided the farmers to a great extent in their fight with the jute trust and in all probability will be called upon shortly to help them out in other fights of a like nature. But in the meantime would it not be a good idea for all the papers, especially those that are known as country papers, to turn their attention to a trust that comes a little closer to them and in which they are the only sufferers? We refer to the Advertising Agents' Trust.

The advertising agencies throughout the land have organized, although they do not call their organization a trust or combine, and propose to fix the price of foreign advertisements in all the papers with which they deal. They are a species of the genus called middlemen and demand a tribute on both sides both from the advertiser and publisher. Some of them go farther than this and stipulate that the publisher shall be paid in ink or type, thus making it cut in three ways; and we are sorry to say that some of our North Carolina editors allow themselves to be taken in by it, although at the same time they feel a sense of degradation in doing so.

There is no excuse for any editor who will take an advertisement from an advertising agent at a less price than what he charges his home patrons, yet where is the one that doesn't sometimes do it? There is only one way out of it for us, and that is to form a defensive combination and every one of us refuse these "ads." at any price less than our regular rates. Let's put our foot on it.

Rumors About Blaine. A Washington special says the belief that Mr. Blaine's resignation as Secretary of State is impending has become very strong within the past few days. The death of his son Walker, it is believed, will furnish an additional and very strong reason to Mr. Blaine for quitting at once his place in the State department. Not only is Walker's death an irreparable personal loss to his father, who was greatly attached to him, but in the discharge of his duties as Secretary of State Mr. Blaine found his son an invaluable assistant, whose place it will be impossible to fill. Mr. Walker Blaine had the confidence of his father to a degree which naturally no one else could obtain, and was thus able to relieve the Secretary of State of a large amount of burdensome work which will now necessarily fall upon him.

Washington Letter.

From our regular correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, 1890.

Mr. Harrison has sprung another English idea on the country in the shape of a Government Measure to be pushed before Congress. His predecessors have contented themselves with recommending what they thought ought to be done, and leaving the rest to Congress, but in the case of the silver bill to-day introduced in the House the English idea of legislation has been strictly followed. The bill was prepared by Secretary Windom, submitted and a majority of the former, and is now introduced in the House as an administration measure. Now if Mr. Windom could only be admitted to the floor of the House to champion the measure the whole proceeding would be entirely English. The bill has been referred to the House committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, and I understand that Secretary Windom has already been promised a favorable report by the Republicans of that committee. It will be interesting to see whether Congress will resist this clear usurpation of its functions by the executive branch of the Government, or whether it will be quietly accepted and allowed to stand as a precedent for future administrations.

Gov. Campbell was to-day partially examined by the House committees investigating the Ohio ballot box forgery. Nothing new was brought out. Ex-Governor Foraker, who was examined Friday and Saturday, did not raise himself any in the estimation of honorable men by his testimony, telling how he bribed Wood to get possession of the forged document. Under cross-examination he admitted that he should have discovered the forgeries if he had made as careful an examination of the paper as he should have done. Mr. Foraker seems for some reason or other to be extremely bitter against Representatives McKinley and Butterworth, of Ohio.

There was a lively time in the room of the House committee on Reform in the Civil Service law. Opposed to the law were Representatives Honck and Ewart, and favoring it the Civil Service Commissioners. The law received some very hard knocks, but if the private claim of the Commissioners—is true, nothing is likely to come of them.

Secretary Blaine has the sympathy of everybody in the terrible bereavement which has fallen upon him, by the sudden death of his brilliant young son Walker Blaine. His funeral took place Saturday and was attended by nearly every public man in Washington and an immense crowd of private citizens.

Ex-Senator Tom Platt, of New York, heard about the incipient Morton Presidential boom, and came over here to read the riot act to the Vice-President and to inform him that New York would have but one candidate to present to the National Republican nominating convention in 1892, and his name would be Platt. Mr. Morton refused to see things in just that light, but Mr. Platt went back home the two would-be candidates patted up some sort of a truce. Mr. Platt was heard to say to a friend, "Oh let Morton think he is a candidate, and spend his money, it will put it in circulation."

As every Congressman asked about it expresses himself in favor of an immediate settlement of the question of location for the World's Fair, it is fair to presume that it will be settled this week, or next at the farthest.

The scholars of our public schools will be interested in an offer made by the Youths' Companion in its issue of January 9th. Its purpose is to stimulate them in a commendable competition and at the same time increase their love for their country. The publishers of the Companion offer to present a large bunting flag, 9 by 15 feet, with forty-two stars, to that public school in each of the forty-two States and Territories, which shall send to them the best essay on "The Patriotic Influence of the American Flag When Raised Over Our Public Schools." These essays will be received by the publishers of the Companion until April 1, 1890. The award of the flag will be made as near June 1 as possible, in order that the successful school may float the "Stars and Stripes" over its building upon the fourth of July, next.—Raleigh Chronicle.

Certainly, hang up the flags; hang two of 'em at each school house in the country. Also have the U. S. Government support the schools through the Blair bill; have the boys in blue uniforms and the girls in striped bunting; have a regulation dinner bucket stamped with "U. S." on the lid; have it against the rules to speak the words "States' rights"; have it expulsion to mention "Jefferson Davis" or "Confederate States"; have it 90 demerits to allude to "Lee" or "Jackson," and have every teacher a negro-equality, Darwinianized—so-called advanced thinker—and a believer in free love. Then we would have reached "perfection in the Northern eye," but we would be training our children to despise their fathers, to hate good government and to go to the grave without belief in God, or a hope of salvation through our blessed Lord and Redeemer.

Administrator's Notice. All persons having claims against the estate of L. A. Jamison, deceased, will please present the same to me within two years, otherwise this notice will be plead as a bar to said claims. December 7, 1889. JOHN F. JAMISON, Administrator.

HE MARCHED WITH SEEMAN TO THE SEA!

Trudged all the way on foot, over mountain and through morass, carrying knapsack and gun, slept on brush heaps to keep out of the mud, caught cold, from the effects of which his friends thought he would never recover. Lingered with slow consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. A few bottles worked a change; six months continued use cured him. Always too independent to ask his country for a pension, he now says he needs none. He helped save his country, he saved himself! Consumption is Lung-scrofula. For scrofula, in all its myriad forms, the "Discovery" is an unequalled remedy. It cleanses the system of all blood-taints from winter causation, and cures all Skin and Scaly Diseases, Salt-rheum, Fetter, Eczema, and kindred ailments. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded. Sold by druggists.

DR. PIERCE'S CATARRH REMEDY cures the worst cases, no matter of how long standing. 50 cents, by druggists.
