We renew to Major McKinley the assurances of our most distinguished consideration. He has returned to Washington and says he has nothing to repeut of; there will be no moulication of the tariff, and the McKinley law is the last ditch and there will the

The only uneasiness we have felt about the late election was the fear that the vastness of the Republican defeat should lead the Republican leaders to repeat and bring forth fruits meet for repentance, and so possibly, regain the confidence of their old followers. But Major McKinley, like Ephriam, is joined to his idols; ne may as well be let alone. Like the Indian who could not find his way home, Major McKinley announces that he is not lost; it's his wigwam that is lost. Mc-Kintey is allright; the people have gone astray.

If Major McKinley will keep on banging the people we are safe for 1892. He still insists upon it that the people are in love with a high tariff, because two years ago Quay bribed a lot of voters in Brooklyn, and the Republicans elected three more Representatives than the Democrats did. The fact that within a very few weeks, atter hearing a good deat more timu they ever did before from Major McKinley hunself, the people have elected an auti-Republican majority of 160 in the next tionse, makes no impression on the Major and we hope it never will. The people have given M .. McKinley and his friends a hint, and if they insist on being kicked in 1889 the people will accommodate them.

The Waterlooed Napoleon observes innocently: "The people of this country, when the question has been fairly presented to them between protection and a revenue tariff, have always decided in favor of the former, and they will do so again." On the contrary, the people never ha so fair a chance at the tariff question, free from all other complications, as in 1890, and the high

Mr. Langston says that the very men whom he had put in office worked against him, and the money he had put in their pockets was used to defeat him. Mr. Langston laughed sarcastically. "The elections bill!" he exclaimed; "it isn't worth the paper on which it is written!"

Mr. Lingston has evidently learned the lesson long ago presented to him in the National Democrat, viz: That the force bill was not designed to prcduce negro or Republican Representaives in the South. The Republican leaders know very well that should such a law be passed that it could not be enforced any more than the prohi bition law is enforced in Maine. But it could be used to keep up sectional bitterness and to fool the negro voters of the Northern States into the belief that ultimately in some States of the Union-South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana-the spectacle be again presented of the negroes ruling white men.
