Wedding Bells. As was announced by cards, Mr. John W. White, of Charlotte, and Miss Anna Holmes, of this city, were married Tuesday at nightfall. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Chas. B. King, her pastor. Only a few relatives were present at the marriage. In the quietness of the night they boarded the vestibule train and are now taking their honeymoon in New York and Washington cities. They have the hearty congratulations of many people, who join the WATCHMAN in wishing them a happy life.

Air Line, including Charlotte, and all station on Chester & Lenoir narrow-gauge, Gastonia to Lincoln ton inclusive. For information call on nearest ticket agent.

The Circus. John Robinson's circus train pulled into this place Sunday morning at sunrise. They unloaded their entire train before the average boy was out of bed. They erected their tents on Sunday—a thing we can't commend—besides doing much other work, not consecrating the holy day.

The country people came into town in wagon loads Sunday evening about sunset. Monday morning they still continued to come until the town was crowded.

The street parade took place at 10 o'clock and was witnessed by an immense throng. None of the cages were open and but few animals followed in the procession. The elephants were not paraded.

The performance was good. The lady riders were expert, in fact the riding was all very good. John Low, Robinson's famous clown, quit the ring more than a year ago, but is now equestrian director. A committee, by request of the ladies of Salisbury, waited on him asking him to appear in the ring as clown. He came forward and announced that by such a request he would not feel at night. He said it would probably be the last time that he would ever enter the ring as clown.

After the day performance was over a balloon ascension was announced. A large balloon with a parachute attached and attached to that a trapeze, was sent up into the air. An acrobat was swinging by his hands on the trapeze, and while going up he performed daring feats by changing his position at different times and once swung himself head downwards suspended by his feet only, and at last when he looked not larger than a small boy he cut his parachute loose and descended to the ground safe. He landed near town creek.

One thing commendable, there was little gambling going on, a thing so common on circus days.

THE PIEDMONT FAIR. The Fair Opens With Good Weather—Proceedings Up to the Time of Going to Press. The Fair opened Tuesday at 11 o'clock. The Pilgrim Cornet Band, headed by the marshals and a hack containing President Beard and Vice-President McDonald, of Cabarrus, assembled on Main street, and after giving a brilliant piece of music, marched in the direction of the Fair grounds.

Hon. Syd B. Alexander was expected on the morning train, but for some reason he did not come, therefore we were left without a speaker the first day. Very few people, owing to the circus yesterday, we suppose, were in attendance Tuesday. The day was taken up in preparation rather than amusement. Two runaways within the Fair grounds added some to the amusement of those within. A horse hitched to a wagon ran off with it and ran past the floral hall. Strong men ran behind trees, dodged in houses and otherwise took care of themselves, while a plucky lady off to one side said: "Look at those cowards! I wish I was there to catch that horse."

A running horse, while training, tripped, fell and threw the rider about twenty-five feet. The horse ran all over the grounds without doing much damage. The display was very good in all departments. Greater interest is shown in the ladies department than in any other. The exhibit of hand work is grand and our ladies are certainly to be praised. The embroidered quilts are fine. The hall is full and to know and appreciate what is exhibited, it must be seen.

Quite a number of the cages are filled with poultry. The poultry display is as fine as has been on exhibition at any time. Thos. Johnson is the right man in the right place. The entries of live stock is quite large for such an early day, and the stock does credit to the section in which they were raised.

The scrub racing to-day was good, but at this time the winner cannot be learned. The boy bicycle race was much enjoyed by all. This ended the first day of the Fair.

WEDNESDAY. This day opened under more favorable auspices. The large crowd on the street showed signs of a bright day for the directors. The veterans did not lose sight of their day and came out en masse. Two hundred and seventy veterans were inside the grounds with their badges. Hon. Charles Price had been selected to address them, but circumstances were such as to detain him in Statesville. The committee then was on the lookout for another one. They hit upon Hon. J. S. Henderson, the right man in the right place. He made them such a talk as he is always expected to make and such as would suit the ears of his listeners. His speech was appreciated by all. After his speech was ended the old-time soldiers fell in line and marched in the direction of the table which was spread by the good ladies of the town and country. Many empty sleeves and wooden legs showed the sign of the veteran in truth.

And now to the Fair. Tuesday was only a shadow of what yesterday was. Fully 1,500 were within the grounds. There were representatives from all the adjoining counties. The displays in all the departments were much larger than on Tuesday, and they still continued to come in up to 6 o'clock yesterday evening, when the entry books were closed. To the untiring energy of the president, Capt. John Beard, much of the success is to be credited. The Fair is a success so far as a fine exhibit is concerned. We have heard it whispered by those who have visited both places that the display of exhibits is as good, if not better, than the one at Raleigh.

The field crop department has already entered 167 articles, and they are a credit to any farming country. Mrs. J. C. Lingel in pantry and dairy supplies, has a beautiful collection of good things to satisfy the cravings of a hungry man. In this department there are 150 entries.

The display of orchard products is very good. Department of household fabrics eclipses any other one department. Nearly every premium in this department is contested for. There are 135 exhibits. Department E., mules and horses, is very large. There is a large number of cattle on the grounds.

FINEST DRY GOODS ESTABLISHMENT SOUTH. The Messrs. Tucker at Raleigh Have Won the Prize—A Dry Goods Palace—An Account of this Immense Success—The Men Who Made It What It Is. For years the firm of W. H. & R. S. Tucker & Co., has been a household word throughout the State. They long since won an enviable reputation as merchants and their customers are now found almost all over the South.

One secret of it all is that they know how to buy, what to buy and how to sell. They have always treated their customers honestly. They sell no shoddy goods and have no fancy prices. Rich and poor, high and low, all get the same treatment at that house. Another secret of their success is that they keep up with the times. There is nothing old fashioned about this firm; in fact, they keep ahead of the times. Still another secret of their success is the fact that they advertise liberally. They have done this at an immense expense. But the increase of business and widespread reputation has more than paid back every dollar expended for printers' ink, and to-day the firm fears no competition North or South.

THE STORE INSPECTED. A few days ago a representative of the WATCHMAN went through this colossal establishment. We are always ready to say a good thing for a concern that does an honest business, and especially one that is liberal with its customers. About the first thing you see on entering the store is a good looking, clean shaved young man, who is always busy. He is watching every chance to accommodate a customer. This young man is Mr. John Womble, manager of the dress goods department. All about the front you will see young ladies hurrying to and fro waiting on fashionable customers. It would be strange if you didn't meet Mr. Jas. Boylan pretty soon. He is one of the firm and he has two eyes wide open to see that the clerks are waiting on customers promptly. Pretty soon you will see another quiet, care-worn man. This is Mr. William Boylan, another member of the firm. He is quiet, but it is on the same principle that still water runs deep. Go into the office and you will find another quiet but active man who is too full of business to be very sociable. This is Mr. Dobbin, one of the firm, and one who has done much to make the great business what it is. Here you will also find a handsome man wearing gold spectacles. He is the best looking man in the house. This is Mr. Joe Ferrall, chief bookkeeper and confidential clerk. For nine years much of the responsibility of the house has rested upon his shoulders. You are very apt to stumble over Jim Thompson. He is another pillar of the concern. If you hear a plain looking, rapid talking man making a noise, don't get alarmed. This is Burrell Pierre, one of the confidential clerks. Next you will see a good looking young man about eight feet high. This is Frank Ferguson. He is one of the best shoe salesmen in America. And the fact that the firm carries a $25,000 stock of shoes goes to show that the shoe salesmen don't have much time to play. All around you will see fine goods of every description and dozens of busy clerks. None but good salesmen are employed.

The building is three stories and is packed full of goods from cellar to dome. It is supplied with a cash railway, an elevator and is lighted by electricity. Go up stairs and you will see the finest line of furniture, chinaware, bric-a-brac and carpets ever exhibited in the South. No other furniture dealer in our State has such fine furniture. They also have a large stock of Japanese ware, and many other things both useful and ornamental.

This firm does a big business by mail. They will send samples of dress goods by mail and deal with their customers as honestly in that way as if you visited the store in person.

We are proud to know that North Carolina has such business talent and glad that many other firms in the State are showing enterprise that is so commendable. Truly old North Carolina is coming to the front. All we now need is reform in various lines, for certainly our farmers, mechanics, business and professional men are doing their part to build up the State.

LOST.—On last Friday my large red and white spotted fat beef cow. Had large horns. Any one knowing anything of her whereabouts will notify me at once at Salisbury cotton mills. J. W. W. FISHER.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

We are pleased to see Mr. W. M. Linker in our midst again. Messrs. Adolphus Miller and John Goodman caught a catamount one night last week. Capt. Ennes is building a stamp mill at Gold Hill, near the Barnhardt shaft. Part of the machinery has been moved already. He is a hustler and is going to do some big things about Gold Hill in the future. The enterprising men of Gold Hill, we learn, have raised more than twelve thousand dollars for the cotton factory at that place, and they will without a doubt get the balance necessary to begin building. Speed the day when Gold Hill will have a cotton factory running at full blast. The train on the Yadkin road has three coaches attached this week for the accommodation of those attending the Fair.
