A Comprehensive Communication on the Subject by an Iredell County Subscriber.

Correspondence of the Watchman.

I saw an article in the WATCHMAN of the 11th instant on the -"Nine Dollar School House," and was se forcibly struck with it that it brings out a few words from my ren on the same line. I hope they are not a contribution to the waste basket, but that they may meet the eyes of your meny readers, so that if there is a single good thought in them it may serve to arouse our people from their lethargy and cause them to "get a move on" in the cause of education, wherein lies the salvation of our country. While our people are being so much aroused on all the other matters of the day, why are they so grossly dormant in the cause of education, and especially in regard to public schools? All our reform journal write on every other subject in the world but rarely ever say one word about elucation, except through some correspondent like the one above mentioned, or as I am trying to do.

Whoever that correspondent may be he is not asleep, for he certainly "got there" on the subject of school houses I suppose he is from your county (Rowan) but I wish to inform him that our county (Iredell) has pleate such example: I know of school in our county that have been and ar being taught in houses that would not bring nine dollars. A Street Magician.

The following account of an amusing adventure is vouched for by the highly respectable gentleman to whom the incident occurred. "I was walking down one of the principal streets of Sah Fransisco on a windy afternoon, when a sudden gust of wind lifted my high silk hat (for I had been making some visits and had on my best) and sent it spinning down the street. Of course I started at once in pursuit; but before I could reach it, my unfortunate tile was picked up by a gentlemanly looking person who was apparently about to return it to me with a bow, when he suddenly exclaimed, 'I beg your pardon, allow me?' and he drew out of my hat a cabbage.

"This is very odd, he continued, as the half dozen idlers who had been watching the proceedings drew near, but really my dear sir'-drawing out a bunch of carrots-this must be very uncomfortable -extracting half a lozen big beets—'and you cannot surely put such things as these on your head and he held up, amid the laughter of the erowd, a rabbit, who kicked violently as he was held aloft by the ears. Rather annoved at the publicity of the entertainment, I finally succeeded in capturing my hat, and the magicials. fellowed by a small crowd, took his way up the street ready to play his tricks upon any other likely subject." -New York Tribune.

Her Dream.

Ed was standing beneath his love. one's window, and with his whole soul breaking its channel of sentiment into fervid atterance, he was thus breathing to the night his deathless passion in accents as soft and sweet as those the z-phyrs use when whispering to the violets. "She sleeps," he gushed: Silvery night is indeed a curtain fit for a sleep so sweet and pure. The very earth has hushed its pulse, lest it softest throbbings might disturb a slumber which angels now doth covet. The suspensed leaves bath stilled their responsive sighs to wooing breezes, lest Joseph, pastor. their lu'led notes might cause a ripple of discord to creep across the bosom of l as pure as this an enleaving scene for I H Fourt, presit. their sweetest and holiest ministry, I'is well that silken dreams, like those sweet spelis the angels weave, should baths her soul, and strong a seal upon her slambers as glorious as those noisless stars, which benulity the sleep of night." But hark a noise is heard. The holy spell was broken, and he lent up against cu shirt collar and wept, totally una ble to comprehend the wondrous appelike of his lady lave.

The Crescent as an Emblem.

The crescent has been known sinctime out of meaners. In ancient methology it decorated the for-heads of Diana and of Astorte, the Syrian Venice. In the days of Rome's greatest glory the ladies were it as an ornament in their hair. Since the foundation of Constantinople (the ancient Byzantium) it has been the enablem of the city and as such adorus its walls and the cause of education, and then and not you satisfactory results, or in case of public buildings, besides being stamped on its coins and postage. As a specimen of what selection will do, it may be observed that roosters and hens among the Rueusenne tribe of the Indians in the western eart of French (ininea was perfectly white. Not a colored feather can be found among them. The natives have no tradition of a time when, their ancestors had fowls of other colors, but white chickens are probably explained by the fact that white feathers are the choicest ornaments among this people, course.—D. Willis James in New York and they will not wear featiers of any other color. In fact, their fawls are aised more for their feathers than for the cooking pet. It is supp and that a long time ago when their ancestorchole white as their favorite color they gave the preference to those fowls which were rearest white, reserving the others for the cooking pot, and by constantly breeding from fowls that were while or nearly so, the present breed of chickens was evolved.
