SOME THINGS WE NEVER SEE.

A sheet from the bed of a river, A tongue from the mouth of a stream. A toe from the foot of a mountain,

- A page from a volume of steam, A wink from the eye of a needle,
- A nail from the finger of fate. A plume from the wing of an army,
- And a drink from the bar of a grate. A hair from the head of a hammer, A bite from thee teeth of a saw,
- A race on the course of study, And a joint from the limb of the law.
- A check that is drawn on a sand bank, Some fruit from the jamb of a door. -From the King's Jester.

On The Dram Head.

We had crossed the river to hunt for Lee and give him battle in the wilderness. Darkness was just setting down and the advance had halted for the night when a squad of cavalry brought in a young man from our front. He wore a mixed uniform, as did most of the confederates at that day, or as did most of those belonging to the partisan commands. He had on blue trousers, a butternut jacket and his hat belonged to neither side. They said he was a spy. They said it carelessly enough, but there was an awful significance in the term at that hour. In camp he would have been searched, interrogreed and imprisoned. It might have been weeks before his trial and he would have been allowed every chance for his life.

We were on the march. There had been fighting. There would be more to-morrow. That meant a drum-head trid for the spy.

How speedily everything was arsaw it all. Within half an hour a court-martial was convened-gravefaced officers who looked into the face of the young man at first with interest -then with something like admiration. I said a young man. I was wrong. He was a boy of 17 or 18. He had blue eyes, chestnut curls and his cheeks were as smooth as a girl's. He was a handsome lad, and I believe that every man in the tent felt to pity him.

"What's your name?"
"James Blank."

"What regiment?" No reply.

"Are you a citizen or soldier?" No reply. "Can you make any defense to the harge of being a spy?" No reply.

The officers looked at each other and nodded, and the president waved his hand. It didn't seem a minute before a file of soldiers came. The face of the boy grew white, but he moved like one in a dream. His big blue eyes looked upon one after another, as it searching for a friend, and my heart yearned to cry out that he was only a boy and T. L. ELLIOTT ought to be given more time.

Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! It was the detail marching off into the darkness.

orrespondence of the Watchman.

In my last letter I informed the 2.500 subscribers of the WATCHMAN that I was going to help the judge to close up the court docket tin his county. Well it being my first experience as a juryman I had to make some preliminary out of the regular order, such as scrubbing, combing, perfuming and pasting myself up a little on the Rise and Fall of the Confederacy, Helper's Imending Crisis, Sumter, Blackstone. Headby's History of Napoleon and his Marshals, Davy Crocket, the Alamo, Scott's Campaign in Mexico and a few other good books of that kind. I then felt that I was ready for anything they could spring and on the fourteenth day of the month at 11:30 I reported to the high sheriff. Very soon eleven other good looking men all having good character were called to the jury box. The court and bar saw that we were fair to look upon, odered the clerk to administer the oath of allegiance to each and all of us. The same old Bible that has been handled and kissed by every negro in the county was shoved out to us to swear on. We, that is myself, refused to swear that way and I did not take hold of the Bible, neither did I kiss, it. I have been for a great while choice about my kissing; in my young days I would not kiss a girl that used snuff ranged! I was at headquarters and the inside of her mouth and not on the unless it was sweet and she used it on outside as I have seen in my travels. Finally we got through with the kissing and swearing act and settled down to business. I noticed the court, bar. plaintiff, defendants and all took a long look at our faces. I fancied that I could hear Col. Jones, Tillett, Clarkson, Basan, Harris, McCall, Henderson and Burwell say it will not do to put a case before that crowd. I also fancied I could hear the plaintiffs, defendants, and witnesses say, we are in for the pen if that crowd gets a lick at us.

The judge opened his book at Genes's and commenced to call the cases as they stood on the book. The first was a railroad case. Captain Bason said they would coninue the next case; some lawver jumped up and said, that case is confinued by consent. And the next and

The Alliance Programme,

Col. Harry Skinner, of North Carolina, talked unreservedly to the National Democrat on the political outlook in North Carolina. Col. Skinner is a brother of ex-congressman Skinner, and brother-in-law of ex-Congressman Latham and ex-Governor Jarvis, of North Carolina. He is a successful lawyer and farmer, and has seen something of public life in North Carolina. He is tor and is accepted as a representative of the young democracy. It was Col. Skinner who first suggested in the public prints the application of the subtreasury idea in this country as a means of financial relief to the agricultural interests. It was subsequently adopted by the Alliance, and applied to all gricultural products, and is now the dominating issue in that organization. Col. Skinner has been on the stump in North Carolina for some time, having made addresses already in twenty or more counties. He says: "The third party movement will cut but a small figure in North Carolina. The Alliance democrats will control the State convention, nominate a State ticket and adopt a State platform with the sub-treasury plank as a prominent feature, and name the delegates to the national democratic convention. The third party business would lose us the State, make negro rule a possibility and possibly result in the election of a republican president. The delegates to Unicago will be uninstructed, but they will be representative Allience men-for instance, sucl. men as Mon. S. B. Alex- quire lability." Natural aptness is ander, now a member of Congress from the Charlotte district. They will represent and emphasize the anti-Cleveland sentiment in the State, and I mention that because it is the accepted opini u among the Alliance people that Mr. Cleveland cannot carry the State. They will effect, if posible, the nomination of a free silver candidate for president. The democaratic nominee must stand squarely on the question if beexpects to carry the electoral vete in North Carolina. I have only to add that if, the democratic leaders in North Carolina believe as they talk the next State convention will give them the biggest surprise they have ever had."

BETTER TEACHERS.

They Are Needed More Than Finer School Houses-Compulsory Education.

MR. EDITOR:-In a recent issue of the WATCHMAN there were two articles headed "Public Schools" and "Public Schools of Rowan." While we agree with the writers of these famed throughout the State as an ora- pieces in regard to the good school school houses, yet it seems to us that bus Post. the most important consideration was entirely ignored. We need better school buildings, it is true, but more so do we need better teachers.

It was said once that all that was needed to make an University was John Hopkins, as teacher, on one end of a log, and Garfield, as papil, on the other. Now we do not mean to say that good buildings are not necessary parts of a school, but if we must have anything sorry let it be the buildings, not the teachers.
