SCOICH HUMOR.

The Scotch have a well-developed sense of humor at times. A while back Andrew Carnegie gave £1,000 to found a library at Aberdeen. That town is pependent principally upon the granite industry, and the cit zons, aware of Baron Carnegie's oppression of the working people in America, held a meeting and resolved that they wanted none of his ill gotten gain. The big bugs, however, who composed the city council, accepted the gift. Now, not to be in any manner WHEN you go to the polls next beholden to the Baron, the granite workers, who comprize the greater porcutters of America.
