The Call for an Extra Session.

This is a great, grand, rich country, in fact, the most productive piece earth on the globe, and but for this fact the corrupt, extravagant rule the old Radical party would long since have bankrunted it. That party seemed to have labored under the impression that this country's resourses were so inexhaustible that its treasury could never be exhausted and their legislation was shaped as though they believed the people could always meet the demands of their extravagance and pension frauds, and yet be prosperous and become rich.
