The High Tide at Gettysburg.

A cloud possessed the hollow field,
The gathering battle's smoky shield,
Awhirl the gloom the lightning flashed,
And through the cloud some hoarse man dashed,
And from the heights the thunder pealed.

Then at the brief command of Lee
Moved out that matchless infantry,
With Pickett leading grandly down
To rush against the roaring crown
Of those heights of destiny.

Far heard above the angry gulf,
A cry across the tumult runs,
The voice that rang through Shiloh's woods
And Chickamauga's solitudes,
The fierce South cheering on her sons.

Ah! how the withering trumpet blew
Against the front of Pettigrew!
A kinsman wild that scorched and sighed
Like that infernal flame that fringed
The British at Waterloo!

A thousand fell where Kemper led:
A thousand fell where Garritt bled,
In blinding flames and strangling smoke
The remnant through the batteries broke
And crossed the waters with Armistead.

"Once more in glory's van with me!"
Virginia cried to Tennessee,
"We two together, come what may,
Shall stand upon these works today,
The reddest day in history!"

Brave Tennessee! Reckless the way
Virginia heard her comrades say,
"Close round this rent and riddled rag!"
What time she set her battle flag
Amid the dust of Doubleday.

But who shall break the guards that wait
Before the awful face of Fate?
The tattered Standards of the South
Were shrivelled at the cannon's mouth,
All all her hopes were desolate.

In vain the Tennessee set
His bravest against the bayonet!
In vain Virginia charged and raged,
A digress in her wrath unaged,
And all the bill was red and wet!

Above the bayonets, mixed and crossed,
Men saw a gray, gigantic ghost
Receding through the battle cloud,
And heard across the tempest loud
The death cry of a nation lost!

The brave went down? Without disgrace
They leaped to ruin's red embrace,
They only heard Fame's thunders wake,
And saw the dazzling seaboard break
In smiles on Glory's bloody face!

They fell, who lifted up a hand
And bade the sun in heaven to stand
They smote and fell, who set the bar
Against the progress of the stars,
And stayed the march of Motherland!

They stood who saw the future come
On through the fight's delirium!
They smote and stood who held the hope
Of nations on that slippery slope
Amid the cheers of Christendom!

God lives! He forged the iron
Toat clutched and held that trembling bill
God lives and reigns! He built and sent
The heights of Freedom's battlement
Where floats her flag in triumph still!

Fill up the banners! Smelt the guns!
Love rules. Her gentler purpose runs,
The mighty Mother turns in tears
The pages of her battle years,
Lamenting all her fallen sons!

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.

President Cleveland's message to Congress has been as closely studied as any similar document ever was by members of Congress, and it is evident that it is going to be a powerful factor in the financial legislation of the session. It apparently opposes the ideas of many Democrats in both the House and Senate, just as his celebrated tariff message of 1887 did, but honest and conscientious belief is conspicuous in every sentence of it. And the opposition to what are known as silver Democrats is more apparent than real, for they all agree with the President's recommendation for the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman law, only differing as to what shall be substituted. The message recommends the repeal and leaves the question of a substitute to the wisdom of Congress, and nine-tenths of the Democrats are certain that the recommendation as to repeal will be followed, and that other financial legislation, which will be equally satisfactory to the silver Democrats and to President Cleveland, will be agreed upon by the Democrats in both House and Senate, and that the persistent efforts of the Republicans to split the Democratic party on the silver question will fail.

Acting on the maxim quoted in the President's message—"He gives twice who gives quickly"—the Democrats in the House, both silver men and anti-silver men, are trying to reach an agreement to take up and decide the silver question without waiting for the appointment of committees and the adoption of rules. It will be easy to take the matter up without an agreement, only a majority vote being required, but if an agreement can be reached upon just what is to be voted upon and how much time is to be given to discussion, much time will be saved that would necessarily be wasted if no agreement is made, to say nothing of the possibility of endless filibustering.

The silver men have in caucus decided to vote for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law, if the bill for its repeal provides for the free coinage of silver on such a ratio as will provide and maintain the parity between gold and silver. The fact that no particular ratio is mentioned is significant. It means that the caucus of silver Democrats did not believe it possible to succeed in maintaining the present ratio of 16 to 1, and that they are willing to increase the ratio.

It is now claimed that a careful poll of the House, made this week, shows a majority of 35 in favor of the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law. The Senate is more doubtful, and it is much more difficult to ascertain how Senators, whose positions are not clearly defined, will vote, but strong efforts are now being made to bring the Democratic Senators together, and the indications point to success. A caucus of Democratic Senators this week appointed a committee of five—Gorman, Ransom, Gray, Voorhes, and Blackburn—to consider and report a plan with that end in view. The Republicans, unintentionally, of course, added largely to the probabilities of united Democratic action in the Senate by their attempts to make political capital, which were promptly and properly rebuked by Senator Gorman, out of the present financial situation.

The Senate committee on Finance, of which Senator Voorhes is chairman held its first meeting yesterday. The committee did not lack for business, either, as more than a score of financial bills which have been introduced in the Senate have been referred to that committee. A majority of this committee are bi-metalists, but some of the most prominent of them, including the chairman, have declared their belief of the viciousness of the Sherman law and their willingness to vote for its unconditional repeal. The Senate is naturally deliberate in all its actions, so it will not be surprising if the House takes up the silver question before this committee reports a bill to the Senate. The resolution of Senator Lodge, of force bill fame, directing the committee to report a bill for the repeal of the Sherman law, and providing that a vote should be taken thereupon on the 23d of this month was only a bit of Republican buncombe, and the adoption of this resolution would have surprised no one more than its author.

As a result, for the Republicans to swallow, was the plain statement that he expected Congress to obey the will of the people, and proceed to reform the iniquitous tariff as soon as the finances have been looked after. Because the troubles brought upon the country by Republican financial legislation have so conspicuously forced themselves upon public attention of late, Republicans have allowed themselves to believe that the McKinley law was to be undisturbed by this Congress. They know better now, and the knowledge doesn't please them.

The Press on the President's Message.

The message of President Cleveland, submitted to the extraordinary session of Congress yesterday, and published in this paper, is in a certain sense a disappointment. The President was expected to ring loud and clear on the repeal of the silver purchase act, and indeed he gives sufficient reasons why it should be speedily blotted out.

But the President is disappointing in his failure to tell the country after the repeal what.

He evidently does not contemplate that Congress shall repeal the Sherman law and stop with that, for in his concluding paragraph he recommends, in addition to this, "other legislative action," which will "put beyond all doubt or mistake the intention of the government to fill its pecuniary obligations in money universally recognized by all civilized countries." This sentence might, in its latter clauses, be construed as a declaration in favor of gold monometallism, but the context would forbid this construction even if Mr. Cleveland were not already on record as an endorser of the party's platform, which declares in favor of bi-metalism.

It is not to be supposed for a moment that the president would repeal the Sherman act and stop. To do that would be to put the country on a gold basis at once. It is not to be doubted that the President would follow the repeal measure which he so earnestly insists upon, with some other provision of law—"other legislative action"—which would provide a place for silver in the currency of the country, and it is to be regretted that he did not in his message outline his plan.

The President throws up the sponge so far as the United States are concerned. Single handed they are powerless. He believes in the "intrinsic" value of money, to which the Messenger refers in another article written before we had glanced over the message. He thinks our currency should be fixed by other nations. It is so fixed, as is apparent from the effect of the British order as to Indian silver upon the action of the President in calling the Congress together, and upon the opinions of the Northern people, especially upon Wall Street. He, therefore calls upon the Congress at once to repeal this awful law that has worked such terrible consequences. He warns against a panic feeling. He makes no suggestion as to what is best to be done after the killing of the Sherman law. But he seems at the very close to give a hint for gold alone as the American standard of values. If that is his meaning he is not in accord with Southern Democrats or with his party as it defined itself at Chicago. He was not elected and never would have been elected upon a gold standard. We do not know that we understand him fully, but if we read him correctly he stands for the gold standard only and repudiates silver.

Mr. Cleveland's message favors and endorses the Republican policy of repeal, and entirely ignores the Democratic policy. If it is right the Democratic party is wrong, and has been wrong for twenty years. If it is right, John Sherman and his Republican colleagues are right and it is eminently fitting that the Rampant force bill champion and gold monometalist, Henry Cabot Lodge, should, as he did, assume charge of the message in the Senate and move its reference to a committee with instructions. The duty of Democrats in Congress is plain and easy. They are not in a position to ignore the Democratic policy put forth in the Democratic platform.

Mr. Cleveland's message will be a great disappointment to the masses of the American people, and particularly to the masses in the South and wes-pose of the West also. We cannot commend either the substance of it or the argument. It has long been understood that he would urge the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, and for that we were rationally prepared, but we had hoped that he would not stop at that, but after consultation with other experienced men would have recommended some further action. In this we are disappointed, and the disappointment is the greater because we have a very high opinion of Mr. Cleveland's capacity, of his extraordinary powers, of his fine intelligence and undoubted patriotism. It seems to us that it was his duty to have recommended some further action in view of the situation which he alleges the country to be in.

ARPS BUDGET.

He Makes Some Suggestions on the Financial Situation.

Now is the time for everybody to show their charity and their good will. Let of all divide out and help one another. The papers all say that there is plenty of money and the banks that have suspended have got plenty of assets, and if confidence could be restored every thing would become calm and serene again. Well, let us all take on confidence and divide out with one another. A man told me that he knew of one man in Atlanta who had shifted all his money into gold and had $20,000 of it locked up in a private drawer in one of the banks and there were lots of men who had from $5,000 to $10,000 locked up in the same way and they were waiting to see what Congress was going to do with silver. That is all wrong. That gold ought to be turned loose. I want a little of it right now. Let us come to a divide until the trouble is over. When the war was over and everybody was as poor as Lazarus there were a few here and there who had notes on their neighbors. The stay law had prevented them from collecting, but when that law had played out we poor fellows who owed a little ante-bellum money were suddenly invited to pay it and it took us years and years to do it. We were sued and pursued. My friend Bill Fort, told me that it was an outrage, and it was. All our substance destroyed and now these debts to hang over us world without end and so Fort tried to get up a town meeting and pass resolutions to have a big bonfire in the middle of the street and let everybody who had a note or a debt on anybody be called upon to come forward like patriots and cast the note or debt into the fire and then let us all take a new start in the world. I thought it was a splendid idea, but when we began to agitate it it was discovered that nobody was in favor of it except those who owed the money. Patriotism is one thing and money is another. They are no kin. But now it seems to me is a good time for everybody to come to a reasonable divide. I will divide with anybody who will divide with me, though I am in Jim Perkin's fix right now. Jim never had any money to speak of, but he always held his head up like a gentleman. One day a poor country man who knew Jim and looked up to him, took him aside and begged him for a loan of $5 until harvest. Jim seemed very much distressed and told the poor fellow that he didn't have that much in the world. Then the poor fellow lowered his sights and asked for $3, and Jim said he didn't have that much. "Well, let me have $1," said he, and Jim said: "Jack, I hate to acknowledge it, but I'll swear before high heaven I haven't had a dollar in a month. No I haven't had a dog-gone cent."

The times are awful hard, but if we will all come to a divide nobody will suffer. It's no time to be drawing on a man through a bank when the bank wouldn't lend you a cent. Banks were established to help the people in just such times and Atlanta brags on her banks, but you can't borrow a dollar through the front door. They say there is a back door or side door or ground floor somewhere but I couldn't find it. I was willing to take silver, but they didn't have it I reckon. I don't like for anybody to draw on me through a bank. What has the bank got to do with a man when they won't help him lap over or bridge the bloody chasm. Here I am without a dollar and can't buy a chicken or pay the preacher and ever an anon get a love letter through the mail saying they have drawn on me through the bank for that little account that has been running so long. Well, as the boy said to the molasses, "just let her run." I'm in a strain just now. It is the first time in fifteen years that I didn't have a dollar in my pocket or somewhere within reach. I can't feel like a gentleman, I don't go down town. I'm waiting for something to happen. Tried to sell some literature, but they smiled and said they were not dealing in luxuries now—at least they were not paying cash, but would give me a due-bill. "What can I do with it?" said I. "Keep it," they said, "until things turn loose again." So I took it for better or worse and I will divide it with anybody who is as bad off as I am. Let us all divide. Now is the time a man wants an office—a salary that comes in every month. Now is the time that these office holders ought to come to a divide. If every man had an office what a glorious world it would be. Great piles of money to come pouring into every family. That's the way it is up North. Every other man you meet in the road has got an office or a pension. Illinois gets $12,000,000 for pensions this year and then there are the office holders besides and then the grab at the World's Fair, and we poor miserable sinners down South not only get nothing, but have to help pay it all. If Mr. Cleveland had been a little bigger around his waist he would have given our boys all the offices as a self-off. There are bowels of mercies and bowels of compassion according to scripture and Mr. Cleveland ought to have them and help our people out. I see that the Boston Herald has figured it up and says that the South has paid to the North $350,000,000 on the pension account, and that it is likely to run on for half a century longer. Don't it make your blood boil this hot weather to think about it? Here I am without a dollar and can't buy a chicken and company is coming next week and I owe the butcher and the baker and the preacher and my taxes are coming on, and yet in the face of all these I hear the same old call for more pension money. Nearly every man or woman north of the line stands around the public treasury with their mouths open like young birds in a nest and say to the paternal government: "Daddy, drop another bug in here." They greedily swallow all the millions that come from pensions and the government contracts for the army and the navy and nine-tenths of all the offices, and these pious hypocrites will go to church on Sunday with a gold bound hymn-book under their arms and thank God in their prayers that they are not as those publicans down South. But the weather is too hot to ruminate upon such things and we will try to be calm and serene.

BILL ARP.

One of Mary Ann's Own Men Was the Thief.

For some time past Marion Butler has charged in his paper—the Goldboro Caucasian—that postmasters or postal clerks were stealing money from letters sent to his paper. The following from the Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer tells who the thief is: The mail clerks on the Goldsboro and Greensboro route tell me that for some time they have been watched, it being alleged that money sent to the Goldsboro Caucasian "turned up missing." A postoffice detective has just enacted the role of "Old Sleuth" and the result is the arrest of a clerk in the office of the Populist newspaper. He has given bail for his appearance.

The Sheriff of Davidson county on last Wednesday advertised the land of 636 persons for delinquent taxes.

As high as $70,000,000 of gold in a single year has recently gone across the ocean from this country to fill English and German coffers.

STARTLING INCREASE!

Insanity Last Year.

The increase of insanity has year over the preceding year was startling! Think of it, persons suffering from nervous troubles, such as sick and nervous headache, vertigo, convulsions, neuralgia, apoplexy, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, paralysis, nervous prostration, epilepsy, etc. The outlook would certainly be discouraging for you were there no means of escape. Any of the above afflictions, and many more, are advanced symptoms of insanity or some other equally deplorable condition ending in suicide or premature death. Dr. Frank M. Allen, the noted specialist, has devoted over 20 years to the investigation of nervous affections, and in the result of his labors has the only hope of those afflicted with the troubles named. His Restorative Nervine is a positive means of relief. If you have any nervous affliction attend to it at once. Do not wait till your intellect is shattered or the frenzy of suicide overcomes you. Debar it dangerous.

Rev. J. R. Miller, Pastor of the M. E. Church, Big Run, Pa., writes: "Overwork caused me to break down completely. The effects of several good doctors, and eight weeks of study, did me little good. I could not read or study, and my condition was serious. I began using Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine, four bottles of which completely cured me. Accept my gratitude." "I was taken sick last April, and had the stomach that at the end of four months I was a helpless invalid, could not eat, and did not get things to eat. I was in bed for six months. I began using Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine, four bottles of which completely cured me. Accept my gratitude." "I was afflicted with nervous prostration over two years, and during that time was unable to perform any work. Through the use of Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine I am entirely restored to health. I am able to conduct my business as usual, and have lost no weight. I am now as well as I ever did."
