Recalled By Love.

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 23.—Mrs. R. W. Phillips knows how it feels to be laid out for burial and hear the mourning of friends and relatives over her supposed death.

She had been sick with peritonitis. For many days all hope of her recovery was abandoned by friends and physicians.

She made a frantic effort to speak; her husband discovered some signs of life, a flutter of the heart, and immediately began to pour strong alcohol into her hand.

The story has been thoroughly investigated, and there is no doubt as to the correctness of the details given.
