MCCREARY'S CONSULAR BILL

Restored to Solvency.

The Cost of the Diplomatic and Consular Service Estimated by the Author.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The diplomatic and consular service of the United States costs the country but half a million a year. Attention was called to this fact by Representative McCreary, of Kentucky, the chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs in his report on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, which was presented to the house today.

While the bill carries a million and a half in grand numbers, McCreary is well out on that account. A million is received in fees at the various consulates abroad. Of the different appropriation bills reported to the house, the diplomatic takes the least money from the government. Although the saving of $400,000 has been effected in the bill this year, Representative McCreary says that has been made in directions which will not impair the efficiency of the service.

DOES THEM GOOD,

The Promise of Tariff Reform Starts Up Numerous Industries.

According to the Textile World of Boston, 173 new mills for the manufacture of textile goods were erected in this country last year.

These mills were projected after the election of the present tariff reform congress, and most of them after the inauguration of President Cleveland. Twenty-seven of the fifty-two cotton mills erected are in the south. North Carolina leads with thirteen. Alabama has two. New England has fifteen. All but two of them being in Massachusetts. Nearly all of the fifty-three new spinning mills also use cotton. Most of them are in the middle states, the south and west having, however, fifteen between them. There were six cotton spinning mills put up, only one less than in 1904.

The profits of the woolen manufacturers were cut down some, but they were sufficiently large to justify the opening of thirty-three new woolen mills. They are scattered pretty well over the country, every section being represented.

About half as many silk as woolen mills were established. New Jersey and Pennsylvania manufacturers putting up the most.

It is too early yet to tell how many mills will be erected this year, but a good start has already been made, and particularly in the south. The production of textile goods is, however, increased not so much by the establishment of new mills as it is by the enlargement of the capacity of the cotton mills in the south has recently seen a most being increase.—St. Louis Republic.

LACT ACT IN THE TRAGEDY.

Moore Baker's Wife and Child, Both Murdered, Buried in the Same Coffin.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., March 5.—The funeral services of Moore Baker's murdered wife and child were held in the Dutch Reformed church in Franklin Park, at 2:30 p. m. yesterday. The Rev. James H. Blaauvelt, who has been the pastor of the Baker family for many years, preached the funeral sermon. No text was taken, and, out of respect to the wishes of the family, but few remarks were made. Hymns which the murdered woman loved were sung by a choir composed of her friends.

The church was crowded to the doors, and it is estimated that fully 10,000 people attended the services. People drove twenty miles over fearful roads to see the last act in the tragedy. The mother and child were buried in the same casket, which was covered with flowers. Mr. Baker was present and seemed to bear up very well under the strain. The negroes were very quiet, and during the funeral services some twenty of them sat in the gallery. At the house a score of curious people wandered around all day trying the doors and windows in a vain effort to get in.
