SALISBURY, N. C., FEB. 15, 1905.

We are afraid one Dr. Orne will soon find Salisbury an unhealthy community.

If it was not for the "trust" a good many folks would go beefless.

Having found something in the Congressional Record worth printing, we claim the Carnegie hero fund.

W. Thos. Bost, who has been with the Sun for several months, has accepted a position with the Post. Mr. Bost is a charming writer and we wish him much success in his labors.

It is said much snow and ice does great good in the way of destroying insects, vermin, etc. May we hope the weather will be severe enough to include the pestiferous spring poet.

Chairman Bailey, of the anti-saloon league, says the advocates of bar-room and distilleries are skating on thin ice. The recent weather conditions hereabouts indicates Bro. Bailey's remarks are out of season.

A ship carries more sail in a calm than in a gale, an engine puffs hardest when about to stall, an empty wagon makes more noise than a loaded one, a tin-horn gambler makes the biggest pretension of honesty when pinched and vain, silly egot will tell the biggest lies when about to fail. All of which has no reference to an illusion.

The presence of Dr. Orne, of New York, in Salisbury, looking after the interests of our great population of street gamins and juvenile criminals must be one of great satisfaction, of course supposing the Doctor has long since straightened out New York and nearby cities.

We notice the life insurance companies in which McCue, recently hanged in Virginia, for wife murder, intend to contest the payment of the policies held by him. This is wrong and if the people would take note of such companies and refuse to give them another dollar's worth of business it would teach them a well deserved lesson.

We are unable to see why it is a good thing for municipalities and counties to issue bonds for public improvements and a bad thing for a State to do it.—Greensboro Record.

The trouble with those who do not see the need of issuing State bonds is they know it is not only bad policy for the State but likewise for the municipalities and counties. A small extra tax will meet every requirement.

A Seedless, Coreless, Bloomless Apple.

The latest thing in the fruit world is what might be called the scientific apple, a real bloomless, coreless, seedless apple. This is something in the line of the seedless or navel orange and was produced by John F. Spencer, of Grand Junction, Col., after several years of experimental research. The Scientific American says the apples are a beautiful dark red with yellow strawberry dots, of a goodly size and have a flavor similar to the Wine Sap.

A DOUBLE BARRELLED PHENOMENON.

COME THOU AND WELCOME.

Sometimes we hear of people who object to the immigration to this State of white European emigrants. These objectors are themselves, in all cases, the descendants of immigrants. The only people in this country who are not immigrants or descendants of immigrants are Indians and negroes. The former are natives and the latter are imports or descendants of imports.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Our good neighbor has likely overlooked the apparent inconsistency as displayed above. To be sure there are thousands of good people in Europe and elsewhere that would make model citizens for North Carolina or any other commonwealth, but they are wise enough to seek and find and are gladly received, but this importation by the drove is an entirely different matter. There is no objection to substantial progress, but the mills of the gods grind slowly, as they should, and we who live here by the sacrifice of the lives of our ancestors have a right to some consideration for ourselves and posterity, and though the thing is advocated by our governor, senators and the whole official regime it is for us, the citizens of the State, to say whether our assets and resources shall be set afire at both ends. Away with the immigration bureau, but allow those good people who are coming a wide berth and a hearty welcome.

STAY AND STARVE, OR GO.

Every now and again some foreign scheme of swindling is unearthed in North Carolina. It used to be the so-called building and loan imitating our home institutions. Then it was and is more or less investment companies. Then a firm of bankers. If our home people would only learn to patronize our home building and loan associations and our home savings banks, it would be better all round.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The New Zionist Plan.

We had always looked upon Zionism, that is, the colonizing and nationalizing of the Jews in Palestine, as more or less visionary scheme not likely to be realized for many a long day and then only to be put in effect if it is in reality a part in the fulfillment of prophecy as to the return of the scattered nation to their ancient country, the Holy Land of the Bible. But the recent offer of the British government to give the "Zionists" a tract 5,000 square miles in extent, in East Africa, looks as if it may result in some practical scheme of colonization in which emigrants from many of the crowded cities of the Old World and from the countries where the Jew is still an object of positive hate and outrageous cruelty will take part and go forth to found a new State under national leaders of their own race, and to show to the world that the chosen people, unassisted by other races and uninjured by what in Europe are hostile influences, can accomplish.

Of course there are Zionist leaders who see in the movement toward Africa an abandonment of their cherished hope and a surrender of all the inspiration that comes from national pride and a strong faith in the ultimate return of the people to Palestine. East Africa is not the Holy Land and they will have none of it. Not so Mr. Zangwill, the Jewish leader who favors the establishment of Jewish State, along practical lines. Of course neither he nor any other but the wildest visionary imagines that the well-to-do Hebrews of this country or of others will take part in the movement, other than to lend sympathy and give money. Property owning, prosperous, thrifty and highly esteemed Jews in all the various professions and business of free America are not thought of in the plan.—Charlotte Chronicle.

CURRENT COMMENT.

A Legislature in session is a present reminder of the many ills a State is heir to in the way of petty legislation. The Legislature considers many questions that should be left to the regular monthly meetings of county commissioners. As a usual thing, our county commissioners are poorly paid for their services, but this could easily be remedied and legislation in line with a county's needs could be more easily brought about by vesting them with a little authority that is taken up by the Legislature on matters which serve as a blockade to other questions of more importance.—Stany Enterprise.

Says the Washington Post: "Old Geronimo will appear in the inaugural parade, but it would be an act of discretion to not allow him to get into the same division with Gen. Miles." They can hunt up an old cutthroat and scalper like that for spectacular purposes but if some of the '61 fighters against the government were here they wouldn't be invited to officiate at a cat fight.

SCHOOL CLOSING AT SALEM.

Prof. Kizer to Speak. A Balloon Ascension and Large Crowd Expected.

Manning, Feb. 14.—P. S. Klutzz is attending court this week. He is interested in a civil case.

Adam Locke, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Pinkston, has been quite ill the past week, with grip and cold, bordering on to pneumonia.

D. T. Lingle has been kept indoors for past few days with grip.

Mrs. J. B. Lingle and children have been confined to their rooms with grip and bad colds.

Yesterday at noon for one hour in the very jaws of a blizzard, the blinding snow and piercing winds made it very uncomfortable for those who were out doors.

At the closing of Salem school, which very likely will be March 31st, Prof. Kizer, the Supt. of Public Schools, will be present an appropriate address, this, together with the balloon ascension, the many other exhibition features of the old time school-exhibition, will certainly draw a large crowd. W. L. S.

Young Fools That Marry.

A green boy without a dollar, present or prospective, sparking a girl regular and talking about marrying is a spectacle for gods and men. He should be reasoned with, and if he will not quit until he is able to support a wife and so know who he loves and the difference between love and passion, he should be quarantined, or put in a convent erected on purpose for such cases. Nine-tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run at large in the society pasture without yokes on them. They marry and have children before they have mustaches, they are fathers of twins before they are proprietors of pants and the little girls they marry are old women before they are twenty. Occasionally one of these goosing marriages turns out very well, but it is a clear case of accident.

If there was a law against young galoots sparking and before they have cut all their teeth, we suppose the little cusses would evade it in some way, but there ought to be septiment against it. It is time for these bantams to think of finding a pullet when they have raised money by their own work to buy a bundle of lathes to build a coop for her.

But they see a girl who looks cunning and they are afraid there are not going to be enough girls to go around and they begin to get in their work real spy, and before they are aware of the sanctity of the marriage relation they are hitched for life, and before they own a cook stove or a bedstead they have to get up in the night and go after the doctor, so frightened that they run themselves out of breath, and then abuse the doctor because he does not run too, and when the doctor gets there he finds there is not enough linen to wrap a doll baby in. About this time he realizes that he has been a colossal, and as he flies around to heat the water and bring the bath tub, goes whooping after his mother or her mother; he turns pale around the gills, his hair turns red in a single night and he calls high heaven to witness that if he lives till morning, which he seriously doubts, he will turn over a new leaf.—Sandwich.

That North Carolina legislator who has introduced a bill to keep fleas out of churches is all wrong. There are church attendants who need something to keep them awake and a few active fleas can do the work nicely.—Montgomery Advertiser.

From Tree to Newspaper.

A London writer says that a German paper manufacturer at Essental has just made an experiment to see how rapidly it is possible to transform a tree into a newspaper. Three trees in the neighborhood of his factory were cut down at 7:35 in the morning. They were instantly barked and pulped and the first roll of paper was ready at 9:34. It was lifted into an automobile that stood waiting and conveyed to the machine room of the nearest daily paper. The paper being already set, the printing began at once, and by 10 o'clock precisely the journal was on sale in the streets. The entire process of transformation had exactly two hours and twenty-five minutes.—Editor and Publisher.

The Editor's Career.

The stork disappears and we look into the cradle and behold a male child. After running the gauntlet of measles, mumps, and chickenpox he enters school. At the age of ten he is a red-headed, freckled face boy and the terror of the neighborhood. At twelve he is an apprentice in a printing office. At eighteen he has acquired two cases of long primer and an army press, and is the editor of a country newspaper. At twenty he is married. At thirty he is bald-headed, stoop shouldered, and is the father of a large family.

At thirty-five he is a corpse in a cheap pine coffin, and as 500 delinquent subscribers file past his bier for the last look, they are heard to say: "He was a good fellow, but he couldn't save his money."—Lockwood, (Mo.) Times.

Hold On to the Farm.

The man who owns a small farm is indeed monarch of all he surveys. He can be independent of everything save death, and tax collectors. He will make the mistake of his life whenever he parts with his land and moves to town. He can educate his children right there on that farm. It is all nonsense to suppose that an education can only be had at college. Horace Greeley educated himself. Many of the successful men in American life did the same thing. Hold on to the farm. Encourage the boys to read newspapers and magazines and to work puzzles around the fireside, and they will come out all right in the matter of education. Hold on to the farm.—Milledgeville Union Recorder.

CAROLINA WATCHMAN Calendar

CALENDAR - 1905. Table with columns for months and days of the week, showing dates and corresponding days.

As to Our Proposition.

In offering THE WATCHMAN at the present price, 50c, some small explanation is appropriate. Realizing the fact that to employ some one to make a complete canvass of the county, the cost would most probably reach 50 per cent. of the receipts, if not more, so we have decided to give this amount to the subscriber who comes in with the cash, any time between now and March 31st., after which the price will be $1.00. We are sending out some sample copies for the inspection of those who may receive same, which, by the way, is also an invitation to become a subscriber. Any one subscribing now will get near a year and three months for his money, so it is to your interest to subscribe at once.
