SUICIDE AT SPENCER.

Chas. R. Adams, of Danville, Va., Throws Himself Under an Engine.

Yesterday morning at Spencer, about 7:30, Charles R. Adams, of Danville, Va., committed suicide by throwing himself under a moving engine.

The tragic affair took place at the passenger depot at Spencer. Adams went at the matter coolly and deliberately, and with a determination to work a good job of it. He was standing on the platform talking to several persons, when, with a wave of his hand he said, "good bye," sprang in front of the approaching engine and was almost instantly killed.

The man was identified by J. W. Payne, who is the manager of a restaurant at Spencer, also by papers and letters found upon the body.

Information from Danville is to the effect that Adams was a single man about 31 years of age. He had for some years been a tobacco buyer on the Danville market, but later had resided at Timmonsville, S. C.

The remains were brought to this city and prepared for burial at the undertaking establishment of G. W. Wright, and then sent to Danville.

It is evident the man was deranged, for his action here on the night before his death shows it quite plainly. Sometime in the evening he ran through the home of a citizen of the South Ward, exclaiming in an excited tone, "Don't stop me, they are after me." He was arrested and locked up, but at an early hour yesterday morning he was released that he might take an early train to Danville. Addison is said to have been somewhat dissipated, and his suicide is no doubt due to a condition of mind caused by too much bad liquor. The family of the unfortunate man is said to be of some prominence in Danville.

Mr. Whittaker Visits the City.

H. F. Whittaker, of Pilot Mountain, N. C., the father of the young man killed the other day by Conductor Hedrick, was in the city Monday. He came to look after his son's business affairs and to gather particulars of the killing of his son. Mr. Whittaker stated that his son was but 17 years old, and has been engaged in railroad work for about two years. The young man's mother feels his death very keenly, and Mr. Whittaker thinks she may not recover from the shock. He says he will retain counsel to assist in the prosecution of Hedrick.

Engineer Keever's Condition.

Engineer Dan Keever, of Salisbury, who was seriously injured in a passenger wreck between Black Mountain and Asheville several months ago, spent a few hours in the city yesterday. Mr. Keever is not yet able for duty as he has but little use of his right hand, the arm and shoulder having been broken in 5 different places. It was feared at the time that he would be a cripple for his life and his many friends here are delighted that there is a prospect of his being able to resume his old run if his arm continues to improve. —Hickory Times-Mercury.
