J. D. Schank went to Charlotte a week or so ago and bought a gasoline traction threshing machine. He went up the Sherrill's Ford road. The machine did not work, so he sent to Charlotte for the bosses. They came and found him going up the road without speed. They tore the thing to pieces saying that they would run the thing or blow it into splinters. They soon had it ready for work and then started up the road in full speed, over hills and rocks, to J. Robert W. Owen Killed.

While on duty as guard at the post house, about two miles east of Salisbury, last Thursday evening, Robt. W. Owen was fatally shot by an unknown white man. The stranger appeared on the place and made indecent proposals to a female inmate who gave an alarm. Mr. Owen came out and ordered the man away, but this was probably misunderstood as Owen had an impediment in his speech and only by long acquaintance could he be understood. The man did not leave at once, so Mr. Owen got a pistol and fired, then the stranger turned with fatal effect, piercing the bowels of the guard. The stranger then made his escape and has not since been heard from.

Mr. Owen was a quiet inoffensive citizen, about 54 years of age and leaves a wife to mourn. The funeral took place at Franklin Saturday.

The city aldermen held a meeting at the city hall Thursday night. Going into the election of officers H. J. Overman was re-elected city clerk. The contest for this office was between Thos. W. Bost and Mr. Overman. The vote was a tie. Aldermen Parker, Kesler, Daniel, and Hennessey voting for Bost, and Welch, Wallace, Straghan and Maupin voting for Mr. Overman, the mayor breaking the tie and gave the job to Mr. Overman. Mr. Bost failing to get the position was somewhat surprised, for in addition to those who voted for him, he claims to have had the promise of Alderman Wallace's vote, made in good faith. Mr. Bost, however, is young and will soon learn that politicians and seals have some similar characteristics.
