YADKIN VALLEY FAIR.

Some Splendid Exhibits, Some Medium Ones, Some Good Shows, Some Not so Good and Some Rotten, and More Gambling Than Has Ever Been Here Before. Good Racing.

The Yadkin Valley Fair opened Tuesday of last week with an address by Senator Overman and lasted four days, closing Friday night. Great crowds were present each day and financially, we take it, the fair was a splendid success.

The conduct of the fair proper, the exhibits and racing were reputable and generally of a high order. The arrangement of the buildings and grounds was excellent, as were also the exhibits. The poultry building on the first floor contained numerous groups of thoroughbred fowls, of every variety, including chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, pigeons, etc., a real treat to lovers of the feathered tribe, a sight to be appreciated needs but to be seen. On the second floor of the same building was to be found the agricultural exhibits. This was, as expected owing to the short notice to these likely to have produce, grain, fruits, etc., to exhibit, rather short, but very good in quality.

The grand stand comes next and was well patronized by those who wished to see the racing. This building fronted one of the finest race courses in the State. The racing was splendid and at times quite exciting.

The large, main building and exhibiting hall contained many exhibits of merit and value. On the first floor was to be found furniture of all kinds, crockery, agricultural implements and tools, wagons, buggies, John Howard, Esq., and many articles for farm, household, road and general use. Upstairs in the same building contained what might be called the fine arts exhibit, such as drawings, paintings, photo engravings, decorated china, fine needle work, linens, toys, sewing machines, Will Ruth, etc.

The stock exhibit contained many fine specimens, but the sheep cattle and hog department was not so attractive.

Scattered about the grounds and along the Midway were numerous and sundry things of interest, of merit, uplifting and degrading, of profit and loss, generally loss. Some steam and gasoline engines, saw mills, threshing machines and farm implements were to be seen in operation. The hollow concrete block was represented, the merry-go-round and the Ferris wheel were there; and a squad of Igorrotes, naked, chatting, dancing, throwing spears with about as much dexterity as the average human who never saw a jungle, and gathering nickels by selling platted rings and climbing trees, but none the less interesting. The Kemp Sisters' Wild West show was fair, the lunch and fruit stands were numerous and convenient; the dancing girls were a lot of dirty, brazen, vile, disgusting, squirming, and twisting prostitutes. Such a set should never be allowed to conduct their filthy performances in any decent community. Other booths and stands were occupied by various freaks and curiosities, our good friend J. T. Wyatt, having a very interesting and meritorious exhibit, but one that drew small numbers from the curiosity seeking and gambling inclined crowds. And in mentioning gambling, we expect reference is made to one of the most open and flagrant violations of law of its kind, which has ever occurred in the State. About every other booth on the Midway was a gambling joint, wide open and seemed to be freely patronized, although the sheriff, deputy sheriffs and city policemen were constantly about the places. The games were known as chuckerluck, roulette, throwing dice, etc., all prohibited by law, and all games of chance. A chance for you to lose about nine times out of ten, but, notwithstanding, there were plenty of suckers to bite and keep the games going. However, the losers deserve no sympathy. The person who plays another man's game should expect to lose and ought to take his medicine without complaint.
