Concrete Belt Armor. The use of re-enforced concrete armor on warships has recently been suggested. An Italian engineer, Lorenzo d'Adda, has been led by the success of concrete land fortifications, as revealed in the Russian-Japanese war, to construct armor plates of reenforced concrete, covered with thin plates of steel, as a protection against the immediate effects of the impact of shells. Concrete armor plates, even when re-enforced by stout and closely inlaid iron bars, must obviously be much thicker than hardened steel armor, but as the specific gravity of the material is only one-third that of steel the weight of the armor need not be increased, while its cost may be very greatly diminished. The substitution of re-enforced concrete for steel armor on a first class battleship would effect a considerable saving. The practicability of the substitution

Seven-Year Alibi Wins. That in the seven years he has been married Henry Langevin has never been out of the house after 7 o'clock at night was the conclusive alibi he established in court recently when he was arraigned on a charge of stealing chickens from Constable Joseph Demoran and Judge Alvan Day.

Over 200 hens were stolen and Langevin was arrested. He swore that he had not been out of the house on the night of the theft, nor any other night for any cause whatever since he had been married. His wife swore that he always was home before 7 o'clock at night and that never since he had been married had he gone out. The judge accepted the evidence and discharged Langevin.-Middleboro (Miss.) SIMPLE CLEANING PROCESS.

Many of us embroider linen or lawn shirt waists, or linen center pieces and dollies, for our friends. Many of us too, though naturally neat, will find our work soiled before it is finished. But if one desires to make up the material or give it to a friend without washing it may be made perfectly clean by sprinkling thickly with French chalk and rolling up for a few days. The chalk may then be easily shaken out, and an immaculate gift presented without destroying, the original finish to the fabric.-Harper's Bazaar.

Preposterous.

An aged Jersey farmer, visiting a circus for the first time, stood before the dromedary's cage, eyes popping and mouth agape at the strange beast within. The circus poper began and the crowds left for the main show, but still the old man stood before the cage in stunned silence, appraising every detail of the misshapen legs, the cloven hoofs, the pendulous upper lip and the curiously mounded back of the sleepy-eyed beast. Fifteen minutes passed. Then the farmer turned away and spat dis-

Fort Monroe, Va .- Pierced with an American Whitehead torpedo carrying a charge of guncotton, which tore large hole in her side, the United States monitor Florida now rests in the drydock at the Norfolk Navy Yard, a victim of a naval experiment to test the vulnerability from torpedo attack of watertight bulkheads. The water in the vessel's hold gives her a list of seventeen inches to starboard. The test took place off Pine Beach, near the Jamestown exposition grounds, where the monitor was anchored in fifteen feet of water. The naval officials, while admitting that the damage done to the vessel is serious, declare that it is not vital and say that the test is satisfactory.
