Increase of Force.

A Spencer special to the Charlotte Observer says: The biggest increase made this year in the force of employees at the Spencer shops of the Southern Railway came today when a large number of men were called back into the service after being out five months. The machine and erecting shop forces were increased about fifty per cent. while a proportionate number of additional men were called back into the boiler shop, blacksmith shop, paint shop, and other departments. A corresponding increase in the number of aphour days per week. The car deter work five days. The roundhouse is working on full time. The increase in the force is hailed out: with great delight by all the citizens of Spencer and is taken as a sign of the return of prosperity.

The character which has appealed so strongly to Mr. Dixon is one of the most interesting in the new play. In fact it is absolutely unique in being a type never before presented on the stage. There is no gainsaying the fact that Mr. Dixon is physically the exact embodiment of this character and as his early youth was spent in the mountains of North Carolina his interpretation of the role should be faithfully realistic.
