CONCORD AND GABARRUS COUNTY.

Judge Montgomery Improving. Twelve-year-Old Boy Torn to Pieces in Cotton Gin. Concord Times, Nov. 11th.

We are glad to note that the condition of Judge W. J. Montgomery is somewhat improved today.

Rev. P. M. Trexler, of Rowan county, will preach at Mt. Gilead Reformed Church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and at Keller in the afternoon at 8 o'clock.

At the regular meeting of the city aldermen Tuesday night the clerk was instructed to write to the street car promoters and request them to finish the work at once.

While R. L. Overcash, of No. 8

township, was engaged in unloading a wagon full of cotton at the gin at the W. R. Kindley cotton mill last Tuesday morning, his twelve-year-old son left the wagon and was walking around looking at the machinery of the gin. Before he was aware his clothing was caught in the shafting and he was jerked upward. His body was horribly mutilated, being twisted almost entirely in two about the waist line. His arms were torn from his body, and it was one of the most horrible accidents we have ever been called on to record. No blame is attached to the owners of the gin, as it was an accident which could not have been avoided. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved parents of the unfortunate lad.

Cotton Goods To Advance?

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—Following the conference held here yesterday between the North Carolina spinners and Northern commission merchants, a very strong impression was found among commission men and cloth and carpet manufacturers today that all cotton goods are to be sharply advanced in price.

Charles Porter, one of the biggest cotton and woolen mill men in the city, said to-day that all mills are running very slowly on spring orders for cotton cloth and are making no money with the present high prices for cotton yarns. "The mills here are paying from 25 to 30 per cent more for cotton yarns than they were two months ago," he said, "in face of the higher market they are warring along hoping that the advanced in raw cotton will break and relieve the situation."

A member of the firm of Robert Megowan & Son, cotton goods manufacturers, said: "I do not think the Southern spinners are making anything at the present high price, but they are asking from 25 to 30 per cent more for yarns than several months ago and that naturally affects our industry. The offering of cotton goods in the stores at retail will not be raised in prices this fall and winter, but if high cotton continues the retail market may be affected next spring."

The Southern spinners who met the commission men here yesterday departed for their homes today.—Spec at Charlotte Observer.

Cotton This Year And Last

There were 455 bales of cotton sold on the local market Saturday. The price ranged from 14 25 to 14. 80 cents, the market being off fully 75 to 90 points from the high levels which prevailed several days ago. For the week 1,880 bales were sold at an average price of about 14.50 as against 1,788 for the corresponding week last year when the average price was 9 cents.

The local banks paid out Saturday on cotton marketed about $82,500 and for seed, estimating 80 bushels to the bale and an average price of 45 cents, $6,140, or a total of about $38,640. For the week for cotton alone, about $182,675 was paid out. As an indication of the difference in price, last week's receipts were only 42 bales more than the corresponding week last year and yet the returns were $41,215 more.

Cotton Weigher Withers stated Saturday that he had used 5,000 tags in weighing cotton from October 5 to November 2, which indicates something of the number of wagons and the small individual lots brought in and sold.

The Western N. C. Conference.

This week the Western North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, met at Hickory and the citizens of Hickory are busily engaged in making preparations to entertain visitors.

There will be about four hundred delegates to the conference and possibly as many visitors. Homes have been provided for everyone and every possible effort will be made towards insuring the comfort of all who attend. A directory has been gotten out containing the names of all delegates and the name and house number of the host to which each has been assigned. Bishop James Atkins, D. D., will be the presiding bishop of the conference.
