Bad Spells

"I suffered, during girlhood, from womanly weakness," writes Mrs. Mollie Navy, of Walnut, N. C. "At last, I was almost bed-ridden, and had to give up. We had three doctors. All the time, I was getting worse. I had bad spells, that lasted from 7 to 28 days. In one week, after I gave Cardui a trial, I could eat, sleep, and joke, as well as anybody. In 8 weeks, I was well. I had been an invalid for 5 weary years! Cardui relieved me, when everything else failed."

How to Get Good Stock.

You would like to have better stock, wouldn't you? Well, this is the best time you will ever have to begin the work of improvement, and there are two things of prime importance which you can do, whatever else you may be unable to accomplish. You can grow feed crops for your stock this year, and you can refrain from breeding any animal of yours to a scrub sire. Even if it does cost a dollar or two more and require a little extra effort, don't fail to breed to the very best sires within your reach. If there are no good ones within reach, go in with your neighbors and get what you need. You can do it and it will pay. How is the livestock of the South to be improved if you keep on aiding scrubs of all sorts to perpetuate their kind? Don't do it any longer.—Progressive Farmer.

Are You Interested in Sheep?—We have a choice lot of buck lambs for sale at six dollars each. Shroshire-Rambouillet Cross. May 7, 912. B. B. Miller, Mt. Ulla, N. C. 2c pd.

Why We are Poor Stockmen.

At present, the greatest obstacle to stock-raising in the South is the general dislike for the close and constant attention it requires. It is true, that if we knew more about it, so that it would prove more profitable, we would like it better, but we cannot learn it without practicing it and the progress is, therefore, necessarily slow.

Those who would learn the business must accept and adopt a few basic facts:

1. That livestock are only profitable when well fed and cared for.
2. That feed is not grown for livestock, but livestock are kept to consume and market feeds and leave on the farm the plant foods taken from the soil in their growth.
3. That the feeding and care of livestock is a constant and exacting business.
4. That to learn how to feed livestock the most profitably it is necessary to add to their own experience, what others have learned in the past.
5. That the learning of the business will require much study, as well as hard, practical work.—The Progressive Farmer.

Why Corn Yields are so Small.

The Editor gives five methods of how not to grow corn, and it is sadly true that thousands of men in the South who call themselves farmers are practicing methods of making poor corn crops. Traveling through the country in the South I have often been astonished to note field after field planted in corn on which the man who planted it knew that the land could not make a paying crop. Yet year after year we see them doing the same thing when the land is not in any condition of fertility to make corn, has been simply scratched over, often with only a bull-tongue, and has been butchered in the cultivation, and the crop on an acre would hardly feed the mule that worked it a month. And then the farmer complains that his land is poor, and wants to know how much fertilizer and what formula to use to make a prize crop on a piece of land that made 10 bushels last year. And he cannot do it with fertilizers.—W. F. Massey, in Progressive Farmer.

"I can cheerfully recommend your remedies, especially your 'Favorite Prescription,' for all female disorders."—Mrs. M. M. MORRELL, of Bluff City, Tenn., Route 2. "During the past seven years I suffered from pains in the back and ovaries. Tried many remedies but found only transient relief until I was persuaded by a friend to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After giving this remedy a fair trial, I found that it would do just what it is recommended to do. I used in all seven bottles. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce's remedies for all female derangements."
